Nine Decades of White Rule Ended

Rhodesia Nod To Muzorewa

SALISBURY (AP) — Bishop Abel Muzorewa was elected the first black prime minister of Rhodesia today as his party easily swept 51 out of 72 black seats in parliamentary elections.

The United African National Council, led by the dimunitive, 54-year-old Methodist bishop, captured more than four times as many parliamentary seats as any of his black opponents.

Muzorewa will form the first black-majority government in Rhodesia after nine decades of exclusive rule by the white minority.

With final results in, the 51 seats of Muzorewa's party were followed by 12 seats for Rev. Ndabaingi Sithole's Zimbabwe African National Union and nine seats for Chief Kayisa Ndiweni's United National Federal Party, which champions the minority Ndebele tribe.

Chief Jeremiah Chirau, the fourth partner with Prime Minister Ian Smith, Muzorewa and Sithole in the year-old bi-racial transitional government, failed to win a single seat.

The uneasy alliance of the three moderate black leaders collapsed under the pressure of election reverses. Sithole, trailing badly, charged "gross irregularities" and demanded an investigation.

The other 28 seats in parliament were won by Smith's Rhodesian Front Party in an election two weeks ago. The 28 seats and a quarter of cabinet posts are reserved for the white minority under a constitution that also leaves the whites in control of the police, military, judiciary and civil service for at least five years.

Smith, prime minister for the last 15 years, will take a parliamentary seat as leader of the white minority.

Sithole on Monday declared that the five-day election last week expressed the "will of two million people." But a few hours later, after first unofficial returns put his party in third place in both Salisbury and the second largest city of Bulawayo, Sithole accused the Internal Affairs Ministry of "stage-managing" the voting. He said his party will not consider the results "the verdict of the people" until his charges are investigated.

He said he had reports "from black and white farmers, black teachers and civil servants" that the department "instructed people what party to vote for at polling booths."

"The elections are over and that's it," said Chirau.

Sithole's charge was certain to be seized on by guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe. Vowing to continue their seven-year-old war, they boycotted the election and contended that the new constitution is a sham that gives the blacks the trappings of powers but preserves white control.

CHARLOTTETOWN — The Progressive Conservative party will officially take over the reins of power from the only provincial Liberal government in the country within the next three weeks, premier-elect Angus MacLean said Monday night.

MacLean's Conservatives, out of office for the last 13 years, Monday scored a solid victory over the Liberals led by Bennett Campbell.

Meanwhile, Conservative Leader Joe Clark has seven provincial colleagues — all but Social Credit in British Columbia, New Democrats in Saskatchewan and Parti Quebecois in Quebec.

The defeat also follows federal byelections last October in which Liberals won only two of 15 contests and comes just before a May 10 British Columbia election in which the Liberals are not a potent force.

When he forms the new government here MacLean will join the ranks of sister administrations in Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

The 64-year-old blueberry farmer had stumped across P.E.I. with his youthful campaign aides who said that in MacLean they had a leader who respected the province's lifestyle and social traditions.

Final standings:

PC	21	15
Lib	11	17
Total	32	32

MacLean's victory over Campbell, 35, was apparently a victory for those who believe the province can prosper if it clings to the land and the sea as the source of its wealth.

The most responsive chord MacLean struck with the electorate, 85 per cent of whom trekked to the polls Monday, apparently came when he slammed the government for what he said

If Tories Win by 10 Seats Trudeau Will Keep Power

Times News Services

Prime Minister Trudeau says he would try to form a minority government even if the Conservatives win a "few" more Commons seats in the May 22 election than the Liberals.

And Tory leader Joe Clark has finally decided to enter into a TV debate with the other major party leaders.

(Other federal election stories on pages 8 and 9).

But the PM ruled out attempting to run a minority government if the Tories emerge from the election with a margin of more than a "few" seats — five to 10 — though less than a majority in the 284-seat Commons.

Commenting on his likely post-election strategy should the Tories win a razor-thin plurality, Trudeau said: "I'd put it to the Commons and see what (NDP) leader Ed) Broadbent would do.

Trudeau's remarks were the first time he has speculated about his options if the Tories beat the Liberals in the number of ridings won on election day.

Reacting to Trudeau's statement, Broadbent in St. John's again refused to indicate how his party will deal with a minority Liberal or Conservative government.

Broadbent said Trudeau's comment was "typically arrogant." Minority government is not on the federal election ballot, he said.

In Grand Fall, N.B., Joe Clark said today that Trudeau is "playing games with democracy" with suggestions that he will try to con-

AIR CANADA'S FLYING HIGH

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada will pay the federal government a dividend of more than $40 per share, or $13.2 million, as a result of 1978 operations.

Despite rising fuel costs, a 10-day strike and the sagging dollar, Air Canada showed a $47.5 million after-tax profit for 1978, its biggest ever, the airline announced today.

The airline has 329,009 equity shares, all owned by the government.

The airline's previous best profit year was 1977, when it made $20 million, and president Claude Taylor predicted a $60 million profit this year.

Profit before taxes was a record $84.1 million, but the airline estimates it lost more than $48 million in pre-tax earnings during a 10-day strike last August by its 7,500 ground-service employees.

Patients Evacuated

Times News Services

The Manitoba government will begin evacuations today of hospitals and senior citizens' homes in the Red River Valley.

Premier Sterling Lyon made the announcement at a morning news conference before boarding a helicopter to dicuss the possibility of further evacuations with municipal officials at Morris, 50 km south of Winnipeg.

"The levels of the 1950 flood are now being predicted," said the premier, referring to the disastrous Red River flood that year. He cited forecasts based on 18-hour-old rainfall data.

"When last night's precipitation is factored in it will now be exceeded," he said.

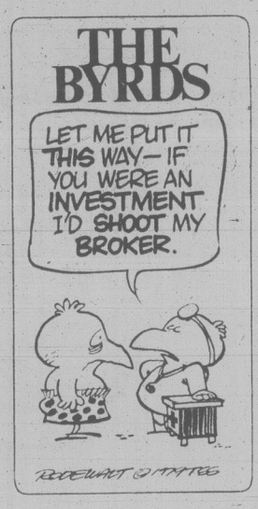
While stopping short of ordering a full-scale evacuation, the premier said he would advise all residents of the area to make their own plans to leave.

Lyon also expressed concern for stored grain in bins and advised farmers to keep track of their losses so that they can be partly compensated later.

If a mass evacuation becomes necessary, "It would have to be an armed forces show," said acting Government Services Minister Harry Enns.

On other flood fronts, about 350 residents of Carman 80 kilometers southwest of Winnipeg have abandoned their homes in the face of Boyne River floodwaters that spilled over dikes.

Flood peaks forecast for Grand Forks, N.D., 200 kilometers south of Winnipeg are around 15 meters above the winter low — and more than a meter higher than the 1950 flood whose effects were so severe it has served as a benchmark of devastation ever since.



Grits Skip City

The provincial Liberal party today announced it does not plan to run candidates in any Victoria area riding.

Doug Denholm, campaign organizer for party leader Jev Tothill, said the Liberals will concentrate on four Lower Mainland ridings.

"We are not encouraging our members to nominate candidates in any other ridings."

Deadline for nominations is noon Thursday.

In the Victoria area in 1975, the strongest Liberal campaign was run by former party leader David Anderson who polled 6,677 votes in the two-member riding of Victoria. His running mate Terry O'Grady received only 3,102 votes.

Bennett Agrees On Hydro

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett said Monday he agrees with a legislative committee which suggests B.C. Hydro should be broken up into several smaller companies because it is inefficient in its present size.

The premier said Crown corporations like Hydro must be accountable to the people and should not be protected by government.

The legislative committee said in a report released Monday that Hydro had planned poorly in building three major dams in B.C. It said the province's financial credibility would be damaged if other dams on the Columbia River were built in the same fashion.

The $550 million Revelstoke dam now is under construction on the Columbia River in eastern B.C. and is expected to begin producing power in 1983.

The committee said that in building the Duncan, Arrow and Mica Dams, Hydro miscalculated financing before putting out the projects to tender and that excessive costs showed management was not able to control costs.

It also said the Crown corporation had broken the law on at least two occasions by not putting jobs out for public tender.

"I'm not surprised that a committee looking into this would arrive at the same

U.S. Oil Firms Report Whopping Profit Jumps

NEW YORK (AP) — Major U.S. oil companies — led by Exxon Corp's $955 million — have begun reporting sharp profit increases for the first three months of the year.

Several other large oil companies plan to release first-quarter earnings this week and experts expect similarly rosy reports.

Exxon and Standard Oil of Indiana, which reported first-quarter earnings of $349.1 million, both said Monday they gained from tight supplies of oil and gasoline — a problem precipitated by the revolution last winter in Iran.

Exxon's first-quarter profits rose 37.4 per cent to $955 million, which translates to $2.16 a share over its 1978 results of $695 million, or $1.55 a share. Sales rose to $18.7 billion from $15.2 billion in 1978's first quarter.

The profits are the highest ever in a quarter for Exxon, the second-largest industrial firm in the United States. The previous record of $862 million was set in the fourth quarter of 1974, at the height of the energy crisis caused by the Arab oil embargo.

Standard of Indiana announced Monday that its $349.1 million in earnings translated to $2.39 a share in the first quarter, a 27.6 per cent increase from $273.5 million, or $1.87 a share, a year ago. Sales for the Chicago-based firm, best known for Amoco gasoline, were $4.4 billion, up from $3.8 billion.

President Carter plans to lift controls on the price of domestic crude oil but he also wants to tax what he calls the "windfall profits" that the oil companies would reap as a result of decontrol.

Exxon and Standard of Indiana also gained from increases in the price of oil and gas during the current supply squeeze, particularly in Europe, where tight supplies drove prices of gasoline and other consumer products up sharply.

Carter said Monday opponents of his proposal to divert additional oil profits to new energy-related programs are trying to pull off a "charade" that will create $4 billion to $5 billion in more oil profits.

340 Facing Riot Charges

LONDON (UPI) — Police charged 340 demonstrators with public disorder offences today over six hours of bloody clashes at an extremist election rally in suburban west London Monday night in which one civilian died and more than 20 policemen were injured.

Three policemen were still hospitalized today with more serious injuries suffered in the running street battles in the Southall district with about 5,000 left-wing demonstrators protesting at an election rally by the right-wing National Front party.

Two policemen were stabbed in the Southall trouble and others suffered broken bones and eye injuries, police said.

The dead man was identified by police as Blair Peach, a New Zealand school teacher aged in his 20s or 30s. He staggered into a house with blood streaming from his head and collapsed. Peach died in hospital four hours later, police said.

A police spokesman said it was the worst rioting since demonstrators fought bloody battles with police and National Front members in the London district of Lewisham — another suburb heavily populated with Asian immigrants — two years ago.

"All 340 persons arrested have been charged with a variety of offenses including assault and causing public disorder and will appear in court within about two weeks," a police spokesman said.

Trouble flared because the National Front, a vocal minority which has no members of Parliament but which advocates compulsory repatriation of immigrants among its extremist policies, were holding a rally in the local town hall. Southall, where almost half the population is Asian, has one of the highest concentration of immigrants in Britain.

Fighting erupted when some of the demonstrators threw paint and stones at police surrounding the building. Attempts to smash past police lines were repulsed by scores of mounted officers

Judge Dismisses Secrets Act Case

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Judge Carl Waisberg dismissed charges Monday that The Sun and two of its executives breached the Official Secrets Act, saying the government cannot make a document secret simply by stamping "top-secret" on it.

The Sun, publisher Donald Creighton and editor-in-chief Peter Worthington were charged with illegally obtaining a confidential 1976 RCMP report and with publishing parts of it in an article on March 7, 1978.

The document, Canadian Related Activities of the Russian Intelligence Services, was stamped Top Secret and For Canadian Eyes Only.

Waisberg ruled that the document was no longer secret when the article appeared in Worthington's column because parts of it had already been made public in speeches in the House of Commons and on a country-wide CTV television program.

"It cannot be secret by the mere stamping itself," Waisberg said. "It must be secret by its nature."

In his judgment, Waisberg criticized the Official Secrets Act as a vague document that attacks basic freedoms of speech and of the press.

He quoted a 1969 royal commission describing the act as "an unwieldy statute couched in very broad and ambiguous language," and said the act, which is based on a 1911 British document, should be made clear and articulate if it is to be used.

Senior federal prosecutor John Scollin said he wants to read a copy of Waisberg's judgment before deciding whether to appeal.

He noted that federal Justice Minister Marc Lalonde has the power to indict the accused, sending them directly to trial.

"The judge didn't rule we could publish secret documents," Creighton said later. "He ruled this wasn't a secret document."

Worthington said he had been surprised by the charge.

"I believe we need an Official Secrets Act, but not this abominable one," he said. "We need to protect some secrets from traitors and spies, not to go after newspapers a particular politician may not like. I don't feel like a traitor or spy."

In the article, Worthington criticized Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau for not taking Soviet espionage in Canada seriously and quoted sections of the RCMP report to back up his argument.

During the sporadic, 10-month-long preliminary hearing, the Crown called a senior RCMP officer to testify that publication of the article had hurt Canadian counter-intelligence efforts.

John Robinette, lawyer for Creighton, and Worthington's lawyer, Julian Porter, counter-attacked by asking the Crown to present documents to substantiate the evidence.

About 17,000 documents were submitted and after months of negotiations the judge and defence lawyers were permitted to see only some of them.

The defence lawyers produced copies of Hansard to show that parts of the report had been discussed in the House of Commons by Tom Cossitt, Progressive Conservative MP for Leeds and External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson.

The defence also showed the one-hour CTV documentary on espionage, Code Blue.

During the hearing last December, Waisberg noted that the CTV program showed the front page of the document.

"There comes a point where secrecy is no longer secrecy," Scollin then said.

"That is my point," Waisberg replied.

In his final ruling, Waisberg noted that testimony revealed the report went through various committee stages after it was written by the RCMP and that 67 copies were made.

Wardair Strike Averted

TORONTO (CP) — A strike by Wardair flight attendants was averted when negotiators for the airline and the Canadian Airline Flight Attendants Association reached agreement today on a tentative contract, a company spokesman said.

The spokesman said details of the settlement were not available but the company was pleased with the contract.

Earlier, more than 500 Wardair flight attendants had voted 97 per cent in favor of a strike.

Assassin Misses Bazargan

TEHRAN (CP) — Premier Mehdi Bazargan and members of his cabinet escaped an assassination attempt today as they walked in the funeral procession of a general assassinated 24 hours earlier.

A man in an air force uniform tried to throw a hand grenade at the 72-year-old premier and his colleagues, a witness said, but guards walking alongside the procession knocked it from his hand.

Then the man raised a sub-machinegun but before he could fire the guards kicked him to the ground and rushed him away, the witness said. A second man was reported arrested also.

Bazargan appeared shaken by the attempted attack. Islamic revolutionary militiamen surrounded him, then pushed him into a car and he was driven off along with other officials.

The two men arrested are not identified. Nor is there an immediate explanation of the attack on the premier, who in recent weeks has been soft-pedalling his criticism of the executions by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary courts.

Later an aide to Deputy Premier Abbas Amir-Entezam, the chief government spokesman, claimed that the assassination attempt "did not happen." But other sources confirmed the first eyewitness report and said possibly more than two men were arrested.

Bazargan, Amir-Entezam and other cabinet ministers were walking in the funeral procession for Gen. Mohammad Vali Gharani, the first army chief-of-staff appointed after the revolution. Gharani was killed in the garden of his home Monday and was the first major figure of the revolution to be assassinated. His two assassins escaped.

A little-known secret organization called Forghan said today that it murdered Gharani because he had a part in the killing of "innocent people" during fighting last month in northwestern Iran between the army and Kurdish tribesmen and because he was a part of the ousted royal regime.

Meanwhile, new fighting broke out between ethnic minorities in the northwestern town of Naghadeh on Monday after the second government-sponsored ceasefire in three days collapsed. But a third truce was called Monday night and appeared to be holding.

Nine more men were executed Monday by Islamic firing squads, bringing the total to 158 since the revolution.

Reporting on the assassination of Gharani, Pars, Iran's state news agency, said one attacker held bystanders at bay with a machine-gun while a colleague scaled the outer wall of the general's home and shot Gharani.

The general was forced to resign March 27 after he failed to convince troops who deserted during the revolution to return to their barracks. He once served as intelligence chief for deposed Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi but was jailed for his anti-monarchy views.

In the northwestern border town of Naghaden, Iranian army units controlled key positions early today as rival armed bands appeared to heed a call for calm after three days of fighting which left at least 150 persons dead.

Reporters in the town said the fighting, mainly between Kurds and Iranians of Turkish origin, has stopped, although several armed groups were prowling around the outskirts and the situation during the night was tense.

Monday night Ayatollah Mahmoud Taleghani, popular Moslem leader in Tehran, appealed for calm in the small town, which has a population of 40,000. Naghadeh is near the Turkish and Iraqi borders.

Biker Wins $121,200

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Pacific Ltd. has been ordered to pay a young motorcyclist $121,200 in damages after he lost his arm in a level-crossing collision with a train.

Quebec Superior Court Justice Marc Beauregard ruled Monday the railway failed to take adequate measures to avoid the accident "which was not only foreseeable but probable because of the dangerous circumstances . . ."

He said the crossing was poorly lit and unequipped with automatic light signals and barriers, and that a metal tower and poles obstructed the view of approaching traffic.

HOW TO GET FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS AND A LITTLE HOUSE WARMING GIFT FROM A COMPLETE STRANGER.

It sounds ridiculous, doesn't it?

It all started with a little innocent house-hunting one weekend.

And all of a sudden, you're on the verge of making the biggest purchase decision of your life, up to now.

If it's your first home, you're probably going to need more money than you've ever seen, let alone thought of borrowing.

Or, if you're trading your present home for a bigger one, you're probably slightly amazed at what it costs to move up a few notches in the housing market these days.

Even if you're simply renovating, or putting an addition onto your present home, the amount of cash you need is still enough to make you swallow hard!

Anyhow, to swing your deal, you need a mortgage. For twenty, forty, sixty, who knows how many thousands of dollars.

But since you read this ad, you pop some small change into a phone and call the mortgage people at Royal Trust.

The voice on the other end listens to the details of the deal. Asks a few questions. Doesn't even sound surprised when you mention that shocking amount of money you need. Just come in and sign the papers.

And the same voice will probably call you back, generally within a day or so, and tell you all's well. The money's yours.

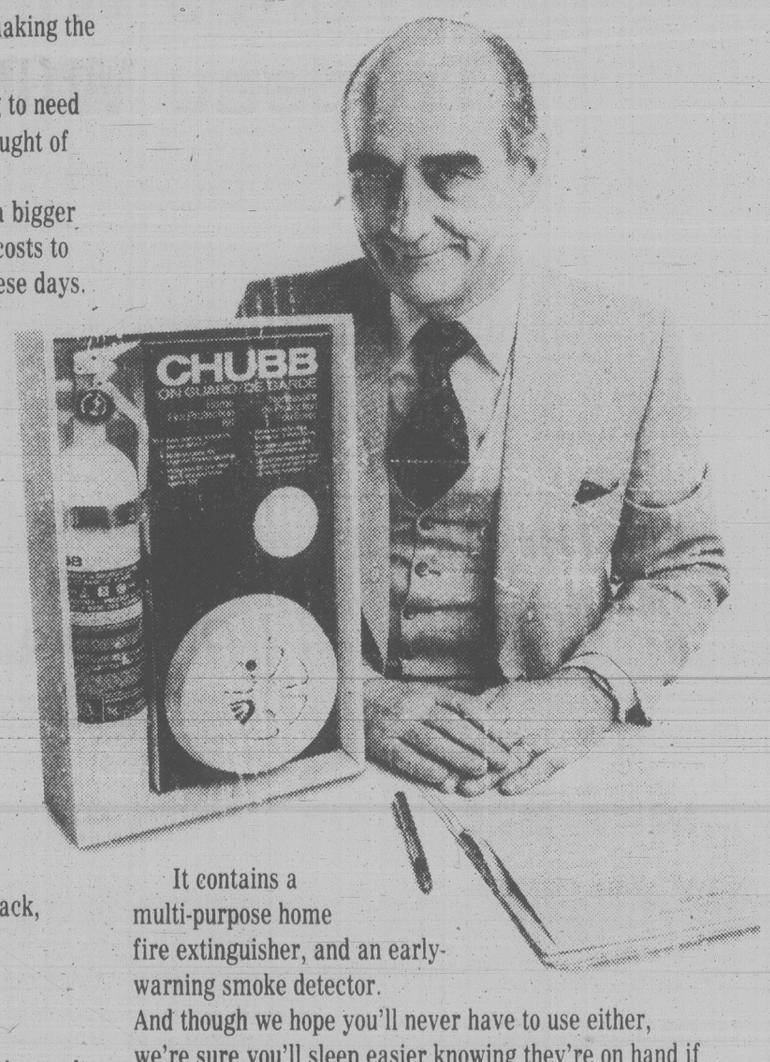
You'll be delighted.

And interestingly enough, the voice on the other end of the line will sound delighted, too!

About that little housewarming gift.

As a small extra incentive to talk to Royal Trust about mortgages this spring, we've arranged a special housewarming gift for each new mortgage customer.

Once your mortgage is advanced, the people at your Royal Trust office (by now, no longer strangers!) would like you to have a Chubb Home Fire Protection Kit.



It contains a multi-purpose home fire extinguisher, and an early-warning smoke detector.
And though we hope you'll never have to use either, we're sure you'll sleep easier knowing they're on hand if you need them.

But all that comes later.

Right now, whether a mortgage is in your future or you're just thinking about shopping for a new home, why not break the ice.

Just call, or drop in to your nearest Royal Trust office and ask to speak to the mortgage expert.

ROYAL TRUST MORTGAGES.

Crazy as Ever, Even Sober, Billy Warns

An unrepentent Billy Carter told reporters Monday in Long Beach, Calif., that he was a recovering alcoholic who would "probably be just as crazy as ever sober." After nearly seven weeks in the alcoholic rehabilitation centre of the Long Beach Naval Hospital, the brother of U.S. President Jimmy Carter summed up his treatment in these words: "I found out water can be drank (sic) straight." Carter, 41, now 11 pounds of beer belly lighter and sporting a trim, brown moustache, made his comments at a hospital press conference in which he freely acknowledged a 20-year dependence on alcohol and said he would be cured "as long as I don't take a drink." He appeared nervous as he spoke and admitted this was his first news conference that would not be followed by a drink. "I feel funny as hell without a beer can," he conceded, grinning.

Back in the hospital again is John Wayne for the second time this year, but a hospital spokeswoman said the veteran actor's condition was not serious. Wayne, 71 — released from UCLA Medical Centre Feb. 10 after his cancerous stomach was removed — was admitted last Wednesday to Hoag Memorial Hospital near his waterfront home, also in Long Beach, for treatment of a chronic bronchial condition. "Since he's been working so hard," said spokeswoman Juanita Garcia, "he's contracted the flu and has a slight bronchial condition."

He admits the ribs were "tasty," but Yul Brynner didn't count on "the classic symptoms of trichinosis" for dessert and he wants $3 million as an anodyne. Brynner, along with actress Joan Diener and her husband, director Albert Marre, tangled with the spareribs at Trader Vic's in New York in 1974. He says all three became violently ill, crimping rehearsals for the musical in which he and Miss Diener then were cast. Brynner's wife Jacqueline didn't eat the ribs — which Brynner's lawsuit charges were "cooked in a primitive firebox" — but she's suing for $500,000 for loss of Brynner's companionship. Miss Diener and her husband are suing for $1.5 million each.

The cause has changed, but the champion hasn't. He's just a decade older. Daniel Berrigan — the Catholic priest who did time back in the '60s for his opposition to the Vietnam War — is back on the soapbox, rallying the protesters and defying the establishment to send him to jail again. This time his targets are nuclear — power and weapons — which he calls "incomparably more serious than was the question of Vietnam."

You don't have to be poor to find yourself on the business end of an eviction notice — which was just the point heiress Louise Vanderbilt made Monday. Evicted she was, from one of her two cushy apartments in Newport, R.I. — but not before barricading the door, crying "I'm holding the fort — where are the Indians" and scuffling with the deputy sheriff sent to do the job. The lady whose late husband's family built the nation's railroads found herself in the street after refusing to pay the 364 per cent rent increase demanded by her landlord.

In a book world upset, Tim O'Brien captured the National Book Award for fiction Monday in a stunning upset over favored Pulitzer Prize winner John Cheever. Three judges in New York chose O'Brien's Going After Cacciato over Cheever's The Stories of John Cheever, after only a brief discussion of each of the five nominees. "We had a problem," Mary Lee Settle, spokesmen for the panel of judges, told a news conference following the announcement of awards in seven categories. She said Cheever's short stories, which won the Pulitzer Prize for literature earlier this month, were written over a period of several years while O'Brien's novel was only recently published, by Delacorte Press.

The Canadian Armed Forces has announced its senior-ranking female officer, Col. Jessie Lawson of Saint John, N.B., a registered nurse, will retire in May after 28 years of military service. She is now director of nursing services at national defence headquarters in Ottawa.

Rolling Stones guitarist Keith Richard went to a Toronto-area court Monday in a pin-striped business suit and white sneakers to thank the judge who ordered him to do a benefit concert for the blind. Richard, 34, met provincial court Judge Lloyd Graburn in his private chambers the day after two benefit concerts by the Stones in Oshawa, Ont. He was reported to have shown Graburn medical evidence that he hasn't used heroin since he was sentenced six months ago. The guitarist's lawyer, Arthur Maloney, said Richard had told the judge that the [illegible] had "a salutary effect upon [illegible] life." Before Richard met the judge, RCMP served him with the official federal notice of an appeal against his sentence.

In Chicago, John Gacy, a contractor already charged with the slayings of seven young men and boys, was indicted Monday on another 26 counts of murder in the deaths of young males. The indictments, also accuse Gacy of having homosexual relations with his alleged victims.

And finally, the Cylons couldn't shoot down Battlestar Galactica, but ABC could and did — particularly since it was an abnormally big budget show with mediocre ratings. Starsky and Hutch could uphold law and order but couldn't sustain the big audiences. And the Nielsen ratings of Delta House, What's Happening, Makin' It and Welcome Back, Kotter, were no laughing matter to the ABC programmers. All will be off the air when the network goes on with its new 1979-80 fall schedule next September.

Shutdown Of Eight N-Plants Mulled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) is considering a proposal to order temporary shutdown of eight nuclear power plants sharing design features with the stricken reactor at Three Mile Island.

NRC Chairman Joseph Hendrie said he anticipates a decision today or Wednesday after further consultation with industry officials.

Only four of the eight plants now are operating — Rancho Seco in California and three Oconee units in South Carolina. But such an order may mean continued shutdown of four other units now out of service for refueling or safety checks — Three Mile Island Unit 1 in Pennsylvania, sister reactor to the one stricken; Arkansas Unit 1 in Arkansas; Davis-Besse in Ohavis-Besse in Ohio; and Crystal River in Florida.

Israeli Attacks on Lebanon Could Wreck Treaty: Egypt

Times News Services

Egypt today condemned Israeli attacks on Palestinian coastal strongholds in Lebanon and said the action could have a negative effect on the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.

The Israeli army said that all Israeli forces returned safely after two days of pounding targets near the Lebanese port of Tyre that "served as headquarters and departure point for terrorist raids in Israel."

Hundreds of families headed north from southern Lebanon fleeing the shelling, Lebanese officials said.

The Egyptian statement deplored the cycle of violence between Israel and the Palestinians, but did not condemn the Palestinian terror strike on Nahariya Sunday that was believed to have sparked the Israeli attack.

"The government of Egypt condemns with all its strength the aggressive Israeli action which contradicts the efforts to establish a comprehensive peace in the Middle East," the statement said.

The actions "also have a negative effect on the implementation of the agreements reached regarding an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty and the efforts to achieve a just settlement of the Palestinian issue," it added.

The foreign ministry statement also condemned Israel's decision to establish two new settlements in the Occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

In Jerusalem earlier today, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's office announced that Israel and Egypt would exchange the documents of ratification for the peace treaty on Wednesday as planned in the Sinai desert despite a report by Cairo Radio that the exchange would be postponed until Thursday.

A Palestinian communique in Beirut today said Israeli border gunners continue to bombard the Palestinian-controlled town of Nabatiyeh, but Israel has said ground forces were not involved in its strikes — that it was "all naval gunfire."

Lebanese provincial officials said six persons were killed by the Israeli shelling during the night, raising the reported toll to 13 Lebanese and Palestinian dead in northern and southern Lebanon since four guerrillas attacked an apartment house early Sunday in the Israeli coastal town of Nahariya.

Israeli Radio said Begin plans to ask his cabinet to approve the death penalty for terrorists found guilty of "unusually cruel" act.

Egypt, meanwhile, ordered its diplomats home from Saudi Arabia and Kuwait after the Arab states, which had propped up Egypt's economy with billions of dollars in aid, cut diplomatic and political relations with Egypt to protest the peace treaty.

In Cairo Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said Egypt had "no assurances" but hoped economics could be kept out of politics in the growing rift with other Arab states over the treaty.

A statement isssued by the Saudi cabinet after a meeting said the kingdom has "decided to cut diplomatic and political ties with the Arab Republic of Egypt" because Egypt is establishing relations with Israel.

The statement made no mention of the pan-Arab decision at a conference in Baghdad last month to stop all economic and financial aid to Egypt.

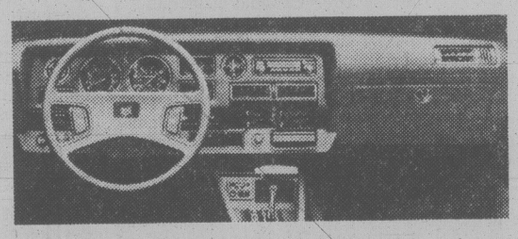
The statement, quoted by the official Saudi press agency, said Egypt has accepted and decided to exchange diplomatic ties with the "zionist enemy" (Israel) and has begun to establish normal relations with it "without the least regard to Arab demands for a just and comprehensive peace."

It added: "The kingdom of Saudi Arabia has therefore decided to cut diplomatic and political relations with the Arab Republic of Egypt.

"The kingdom, while taking the measure, also hopes that the causes which led to it will disappear and that relations between the two brotherly countries, which are bound by the same destiny and objective, will return to normal."

Toyota Celica Supra.

THINK JAGUAR, 'VETTE OR FERRARI. BUT BUY TOYOTA.



When Toyota set out to build a classic yet sporty, luxury GT car, they set out as they have for over forty years, to build perfection. With Supra, they have succeeded.

A classic is born. For 1979 Toyota has provided the world with a performance oriented luxury grand touring automobile that doesn't cost a small fortune. Nothing has been omitted: Like Porsche, Supra has an electronic fuel injected 6-cyl. engine. Like the Jaguar XJ-S, Supra has 4-wheel power disc brakes. Air conditioning is standard on the Supra while on the Corvette you will pay extra for this comfort. Supra has a standard 5-speed overdrive full synchromesh transmission as does the Ferrari. The point to remember is that Supra costs less than all of the other abovementioned "supercars."

State of the art. To qualify for this description an automobile should have power windows, power steering, quad speaker AM/FM Multiplex stereo radio, tachometer, quartz clock, driver seat lumbar support, low profile steelbelted radial tires, rear window wiper, reclining front bucket seats, tilt steering and much more. Supra has it all for less. The only option you might want is the 4-speed overdrive automatic. Only two cars in the world have this... the other is the Toyota Cressida.

The reason to buy. A luxury GT should offer more to the discriminating buyer than mere transportation. The incredible new Celica Supra offers more including formidable anti-rust construction and a 3 year anti-perforation warranty.

So the Celica Supra can take its place among the other tough Toyotas, built to take on the Canadian winter and win.

Limited edition. Your Toyota dealer suggests that you see him very soon in order to marvel at and perhaps purchase the amazing Celica Supra.

Supplies will be limited. Your Toyota dealer would hate to disappoint you.

A chicken in every pot

As the federal election campaign drags on, only one big vote-getting issue has emerged. That is the promise by Conservative leader Joe Clark to allow mortgage payments and property taxes to be considered income tax deductions.

It's a big promise. Just how big nobody, including the Conservatives, quite seems to know. There's little doubt, however, that it's a powerful promise to catch votes from the millions of middle-class Canadians who are forking out thousands of dollars a year in mortgage payments and property taxes. Many Canadians stand to gain as much as $3,000 or $4,000 from the proposal.

Nonetheless, the proposal raises a host of questions, none of which has yet been answered by Clark or his Conservative confreres. And until some answers are forthcoming, the promise shows signs of becoming a promise of disillusionment for many Canadians. At the moment, it is a promise of a chicken in every pot, but without saying how big the chicken is, how much the chicken will cost, or what will happen to the unfortunate people who don't own a pot.

The first and perhaps the most basic question is: How much will the proposal cost in total? Until more details of the program are provided, it is impossible to provide an accurate answer. The Conservatives estimate the cost to the federal treasury at $1.6 billion annually; critics of the program say it could run as high as $3 billion a year.

Even using the lower figure, however, the scheme represents a huge amount of money for a party that at the same time is promising to hold down the cost of government.

Clark has so far been remarkably vague on the question of how he intends to make up this money. He talks about reducing inefficiency and waste in government, but the nickels and dimes that could be saved in this way come nowhere close to making up the losses from the tax credit program.

It seems clear that Clark has only three possible methods of recovering the revenue: He can increase the national deficit which, despite his talk of "stimulative deficits," seems unlikely to help the essential economic problems of the country; he can reduce government services substantially in such areas as health care and pensions to make up the difference or he can increase other taxes to take up the slack in revenues produced by the tax credit.

None of those alternatives is particularly palatable.

The idea of reducing services or increasing taxes becomes particularly unpleasant when it is realized that those who suffer because of them may well be those who do not benefit from the mortgage credits.

These are the people who have no pot in which to put Mr. Clark's chicken.

The first group in this category is tenants. A high proportion of Canadians do not own their own homes; they will not benefit one whit from the plan. It is unclear whether Clark plans to allow landlords to deduct their mortgage payments from the income taxes, but, even if he does, there is no way he can force the landlords to pass those savings on to their tenants.

A second group that will not benefit are those who have already paid off their mortgages. These are often middle-aged and elderly persons who have scrimped and saved for years to burn their mortgages; surely they, if anyone, deserve the benefits of a mortgage program.

The third group unlikely to benefit is, regrettably, those at whom the program is ostensibly aimed: Young families who cannot afford to buy their own home. It is true the program will reduce mortgage payments for these families. However, for a large proportion of them the problem in the first place is not the size of the mortgage. Rather, it is the fact that they cannot save enough for a down payment. Clark's program will do nothing to alleviate that problem.

Indeed, the current program run by the B.C. government will continue to do much more for first-time homebuyers than will the Tory plan. Under the provincial home acquisition program, persons buying a home for the first time may receive either a small grant or a larger second mortgage which they may apply to their down payment.

This program is specifically directed towards those who need help the most. Moreover, the restrictions limiting the grants to first-time buyers automatically control the amount of money the government has to contribute.

Many other questions remain to be asked about Clark's proposal — questions about its likely effect on interest rates, house prices, land prices, and inflation generally.

Until the Tories provide clear and unequivocal answers to all these questions, their promise of a chicken in every pot should be flavored by the voters with a large grain of salt.

RICHARD GWYN

Thoughts from the voters

TORONTO — Any time you come upon a suburban Toronto lawn with two signs stuck into patches of crabgrass, one in Liberal red and one in Conservative blue, you're pretty safe to assume that the husband in that household thinks that Pierre Trudeau must go while the wife thinks it'd be better if he stayed.

For instance, Peter Milakovici, a construction worker, rubs a hand across his stubbled chin and says, "Somebody's got to do something about the way things are going. It's time for a change." Sharon Milakovich, though, disagrees: "I just can't take Joe Clark. He turns me right off."

Vote-splitting is a phenomenon new to this election that I stumbled upon during a couple of days wandering around the northern Toronto riding of Willowdale talking to about three dozen people in stores, on the street, across hedges and at times in their front halls while they wished I'd be off so they could go back to watching the Canadiens whomp the Maple Leafs.

Yin and yang

As a measure of What The Average Voter Really Thinks, my sample was pathetically unscientific. Yet, since reporters always are ready to rush in where pollsters would fear to tread, here's a summary of what some average voters seem to think:

□ There is no doubt whatever that the yin and the yang of this election, the opposed poles between which voters are ricocheting, are dislike of Trudeau and disbelief in Clark. For each "Trudeau is arrogant," and for one (from a housewife) "He's an arrogant, deceitful, hypocritical bastard," I scribbled down almost as many times "Clark is weak", "Clark is too young," and one "Yuk. He's a schmuk."

The Trudeauphobia isn't so much abating, as Liberals like to claim, as being diffused, disoriented almost, by doubts about Clark. Some voters themselves are almost split into two.

Stan Meyers, 35, a supply teacher, used to be a Liberal. Now he's a Conservative, sort of. "Things have got to change," he says. Why? "Look at my car," he waves a hand at his '68 Monaco. "For the first time in my life I've had to buy a used car because for the first time I can't get a decent job." So he'll vote for Clark? "My God, he makes me sick. He waffles. He's too young, he just hasn't had the life experience to lead a country."

□ No one says anything bad about New Democrat Leader Ed Broadbent. Even older people, traditionally Conservative, praise him as "honest", "sincere." You have to wonder whether, if this election stays at dead centre where it is now, there may not be a late lurch to the NDP.

TORONTO
. . . more dislike Trudeau

between jobs, for instance, opens with the familiar and politically lethal phrase, "Things have got to change." Then he adds, "Clark says nothing. Broadbent at least comes out and says what he'll do."

□ The issues are pretty much those you'd expect — inflation, unemployment, leadership, a generalized worry about the country.

National unity doesn't even register on the scale. At an all-candidates meeting at Brebeuf College School, one student brought the gymnasium down when he said: "In 10 years' time I'll be able to say proudly I voted to save national unity in this election, and I'll still be without a job."

Capital punishment is a sleeper issue. Its political cutting edge, though, isn't so much law and order as democracy. A hardware store owner put it best: "The government wouldn't listen to us. We're only the people, so who cares what we think."

□ Even the most scientific of polls will tell you little. Voter loyalties aren't just soft, but mushy. Besides the one in three undecided, many of those now attached to one party or the other are stuck there with the weakest of glues.

"We'd be crazy, plum crazy, to put Trudeau back in again," says Herman Surkis, 34, a freelance photographer. So what will he do? "I'd like to vote NDP, but I'm uneasy. I think I'll wait to see where my vote will do the most good."

A giveaway scheme

□ Clark's mortgage tax deductibility promise is a plus all right but, less expectedly, a minus as well. Several saw the scheme as a giveaway, or saw through it. "Sure I could remortgage my house," remarked Roland Jackman, a retired civil servant, "but that would be taking advantage. A lot of people will I guess, and that's wrong."

Conclusion: Trudeau will lose in Willowdale, and therefore in much of suburban Toronto, and therefore in much of southern Ontario where the entire election will be won or lost, unless Clark wins it for him. Or unless — it won't happen in solid Willowdale, mind you — enough people say to hell with both of them, and lurch to the left without really intending to.

Another conclusion: There's more to vote-splitting than the obvious explanation of Trudeau's sex appeal and Clark's lack of it. Gael Silzer, NDP campaign manager in Willowdale, has noticed the phenomenon even in NDP households. "It's the working wife. The husband, as he's always done, comes home to announce, 'That bastard Trudeau has to go,' or 'The union says we're voting NDP,' and she, to get the message across that she's independent, says 'No'." Still, you get no marks for guessing why errant NDP wives, as much as Conservative ones, when they opt for independence, opt for Trudeau.

Not a waste

Comments by two participants in the recent Canada Winter Games are worthy of note and consideration. An Alberta participant described the Games as a waste of money and a local participant complained about lack of media coverage of the games. There is an interesting relationship between the two comments. The first was a commentary upon the fact that the Canada Games are not open to international calibre athletes. Is this the reason why the media coverage was so woefully inadequate?

The South Vancouver Island Junior Hockey League does not share the view that the Games were a waste of money. This league is proud that four of its players, Don Bodger of Fuller Lake Flyers, Tracey Patterson of Saanich Braves and Ron Brooks and Wayne Proceviat of Esquimalt Legion were selected to play for the B.C. team at the games; and that Terry Foreman, the Esquimalt Legion coach, was selected as the team manager. These participants were unanimous in describing their participation as a highlight of their lives. They were proud to represent their league and their province in a national competition They were grateful for the opportunity to participate on a team of young men from all over this province and against team from other provinces; to meet and make friends with young people from all over Canada; to acquire a better understanding and appreciation of our great country. Surely, this is a description of what the games are all about and a more than adequate justification for the money spent.

The South Vancouver Island Junior Hockey League is pleased to congratulate the B.C. hockey team on winning the gold medal at the games; to commend the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association for its concept of a team that was representative of various parts of the province; to acknowledge the assistance of the B.C. government in making the team's participation possible; and to praise the organizers for having the foresight to develop the type of Canada Games we have. We are disappointed in the lack of media coverage of the B.C. hockey team, in general, and the lack of local press acknowledgment of the contribution of players from our league, in particular. We hasten to point out that local coverage of our league activities is usually quite good.

We can only assume that lack of local coverage is a reflection of lack of national coverage of the games; and that this is a situation caused by national media opinion that the games are not important — surely an opinion based on all of the wrong reasons. — W. B. Naylor, Secretary, South Vancouver Island Junior Hockey League.

Edmontonians like their rapid, cheap (40 cents) LRT.

Why no LRT?

I note that the recent provincial budget included no provision for light rapid transit.

This seems a shame, since LRT is the only proven transportation alternative to the automobile in this country and throughout the world.

Light Rapid Transit combines the best engineering practices of the most successful streetcar and subway systems in Europe and the world. The vehicles make less noise than automobiles or buses, ride more smoothly, emit no air pollution and have proved popular with the public where they have been introduced.

Edmonton is the first city in Canada to try this advanced form of transportation. Instead of giving up to the blight of the auto, city council decided to combat ever-growing parking lots, freeways and air pollution.

By any highway engineers standard, Light Rapid Transit in Edmonton should have been the biggest flop in the country, with the cheapest gas, 73.9 cents per gallon and the highest ratio of cars to people, 1.3 autos for every man, woman and child on the continent.

Instead, LRT in Edmonton has been the biggest transportation success story in the country. Since opening in April 1978 ridership has increased from the projected 10,000 passengers per day to the phenomenal figure of over 18,000. City council has recently given permission for a two kilometre extension to the system.

In 1975 under the NDP government, plans were afoot for the engineering of this advanced transportation system for Victoria, Vancouver, New Westminster and Richmond. When Social Credit formed the next government in B.C. all plans were shelved or dropped. — Gary M. Woodley, 970 Royal Oak Drive.

Housing policy

On reading the full page Social Credit party advertisement in the Times last week I was shocked to find the statement that the party of my choice (NDP) believes "that land should be controlled by the state . . . and that individuals should become tenants of the state." The ad went on to say that the Socreds want you to own a home, etc., etc.

Now you know, and I know that the New Democratic Party is dedicated to increasing home ownership (4,500 more housing starts under the NDP, for example), and entirely in favor of us owning our own land and homes.

The NDP does advocate provincial control of the resources otherwise being ripped off by multinationals and multi-millionaires, which is quite a different matter! — Tom Wright, Ganges.

Al-Anon

Do you know what it is like to live in a family where there is a problem drinker? If so, Al-Anon is for you. If there is an alcoholic problem in your home, the Al-Anon family groups may be able to help you cope with it. If you are a friend or relative of an alcoholic, the Al-Anon family group may be able to help you solve your side of the problem.

Al-Anon family groups are a fellowship of men and women who are husbands, wives, relatives or close friends of someone suffering from a drinking problem. If you are seeking a solution to the problems that come from living in this kind of situation, Al-Anon can help by showing you how to cope with your difficulties and find a more serene approach to life.

At your first meeting you will find an enormous relief to be able perhaps for the first time to talk to people who really understand your problems because they too have experienced them.

Just as Alcoholics Anonymous tries to help the alcoholic attain sobriety and lead a more constructive life, so Al-Anon helps the family of a problem drinker attain serenity and a more normal home life, regardless of whether or not he or she stops drinking.

Al-Anon, as an established fellowship, has been serving the families of alcoholics since 1951 and now has more than 4,500 groups throughout the world. In Victoria there are 21 groups including three Alateen and one male group meeting weekly. If you would like more information about the Al-Anon family group, don't hesitate to call 382-0744. — Al-Anon Information Services, Victoria.

Big money

I am mystified by MLA Charles Barber's claim that "the big money" has lined up with Social Credit. If 500 socialists can afford to toss $12,000 into the election hat, I wish I could afford to be a socialist. — F. Kerfoot, 6244 Rudolph Road.

Put out more signs

As visitors to your beautiful city we would like to compliment you on the lovely tourist attractions. We spent most of March in Victoria where the grass is so green, the flowers blooming and caretakers are working to keep it beautiful. We like to toss a bouquet where it is due, but we also have a beef. I am sure other tourists feel the same as we do.

Please, please get sufficient street signs up, so people can find their way around. We would like to see street signs large enough to read at every intersection where there are traffic lights. The signs at other intersections should be placed so you know from one street to the next where to look for the name of the street or avenue, also in a place high enough and large enough that one can read it before turning a corner and having to look backwards to find out what street you are on.

Even native Victorians had trouble finding signs so as to instruct us what street to cross over or where to turn. This is very frustrating and discouraging.

If you would like to encourage the tourists to "Follow the birds to Victoria" you must do something about this problem. — Howard and Rena Larson, Semans, Sask.

Canada's dilemma: We don't want either man

By ALLAN FOTHERINGHAM

Considering the state of Canadian roadside cuisine, it is hard on the belly as well as the backside for any scribe attempting to drive from Halifax to Vancouver in search of his country's mood.

More depressing, it turns out, is the message picked up along with the heartburn and the aching back. For such a diverse land, as balkanized as half of Europe, the message is surprisingly uniform.

It is that, in what very probably is one of the crucial elections in our tender 112 years, the public doesn't fancy the choice it is offered. There is uniform distaste, uniform despair, uniform complaints, that the choice seems to involve Pierre Trudeau and Joe Clark.

Conditioned by American media fallout as in everything else, Canadians tend to forget they operate under the parliamentary system. In their minds, in their judgments, they talk and seem to think in presidential terms. Save for two ridings out of 282, they won't vote for Clark or Trudeau but their consciousness is riveted on two men — not two parties.

There is this abiding tiredness with the concept of Mr. Trudeau, his individual brilliance by now completely smudged by the overlay of political expediency. He is seen as a creature of Senator Keith Davey and the Liberal party, a dedicated man when he is not flippant, his early inexperience as a politician now overcome by a real and almost nasty liking for power, an academic who has been taught to twist and turn with the party weather vane to the extent he has pretzelled himself away from respect.

Listen to an astute political pro, a lawyer, a man who has held national and provincial offices over the past decade. "Travelling east and west, I now see the feeling about Trudeau like the mercury in a thermometer.

"The extreme dislike of him, the desire to punish him, goes up and down with the polls. But it's like the mercury in that thermometer. It's there. It won't go away. You can't get rid of it. There's too much of it for him to survive this time."

And here is a letter in a Winnipeg paper: "If the Tories get elected we'll have to build a fence from Atlantic to Pacific so Joe Clark can sit on both sides of it."

If Trudeau is seen as a spent force, Clark is seen as an overgrown boy who stumbled into his post by accident and offers little solace for those who so obviously want to get rid of the prime minister. Canadians, in all regions but Quebec, feel slightly sour on themselves at the realization they don't really want either man.

For a traveller, it's the one depressing theme. The beauty of the land, as always, overwhelms. The gentle folkworld of the Maritimes, the sweep of the St. Lawrence below the tintype towns along the Gaspe, the stern fringe of the Canadian Shield in Ontario, the ocean-like calm of the endless Prairie landscape in April's winter. We have our own political slogan: the land is flat.

There were other unifying little links in a drive that touched eight provinces in a month. Jogging indeed has become a national obsession: the businessman in a green track suit chugging in downtown Halifax through snowflakes; a lonely boy early one Saturday morning along the chill highway outside Edmundston, N.B.; a serene mother in a red suit in Toronto's aloof Rosedale at Sunday-brunch bell, while her neighbors sipped gin and contemplated the quiche; a girl in white boots outside the Hotel Bessborough on the banks of the South Saskatchewan in Saskatoon; grim Albertans taking time out from making money in Edmonton; a clutch of joggers silhouetted against a Pacific sunset last week on Vancouver's English Bay. Only in Quebec are the feet relatively stilled. The pitter-patter of the newest fad subsides to a trickle.

There is, also, the re-education about the utter ugliness of most Canadian small towns that have been dragged toward civilization. The only thing that saves those remaining tufts of Norman Rockwell is the highway bypass. But once trapped on the main thoroughfares there is the same depressing melange of junk food emporiums, sterile gas stations, mindless automobile havens — the strip development that so appals Europeans and, astonishingly, is nearly identical from coast to coast.

It is as if there is a certain level of ugliness which, once obtained, must be equalled by even the have-not provinces. They have succeeded.

While, seven miles high, the campaign jets speed the insatiable TV cameras across the land for yet another "photo opportunity"; down below during their first month of the campaign there is little enthusiasm, much regret.

On the prairies, a farmer stops short a story about Joe Clark. "Save it," he says. He cuts his hands across his chest. He doesn't want to know about the Conservative leader's supposed weaknesses. He's made up his mind, his ballot, and he'd rather not hear trivia that might intrude.

The mood of the land in fact is pensive, the elctorate contemplating whatever fate has thrown at them — one leader who has lost his magic and a challenger who seems at best a few years seasoning away.

Perhaps the resigned personality of the country has something to do with the fact that the public recognizes in its fractured state that it has produced the two imperfect choices. Canada is hunkering down for a period of being governed by a man who will have little enthusiasm behind him.

Rene winning without fight

TORONTO STAR

Premier Rene Levesque and the Parti-Quebecois are running circles around the pro-federal forces in Quebec, simply by confusing the issue of separatism. Unless our political leaders come up with some clear and positive options to counter the Quebec government's propaganda campaign soon, Levesque is going to win his referendum without even a contest.

Indeed Levesque now seems well on his way to winning his "sovereignty-association" referendum. According to a CBC opinion poll, more than half of Quebecers are prepared to give his government a mandate to "negotiate" a new relationship between the province and the rest of Canada.

But wait a minute: The same poll showed that nearly two out of every five Quebecers couldn't say what "sovereignty-association" is, and nearly a third assumed that a "sovereign" Quebec would go on electing MPs to the federal government in Ottawa.

And if it appeared doubtful that the negotiations would succeed, only 22 per cent would give Levesque a yes vote. Moreover, if English Canada really dug in its heels and refused to talk at all on Levesque's terms, then his referendum support drops off to 17 per cent.

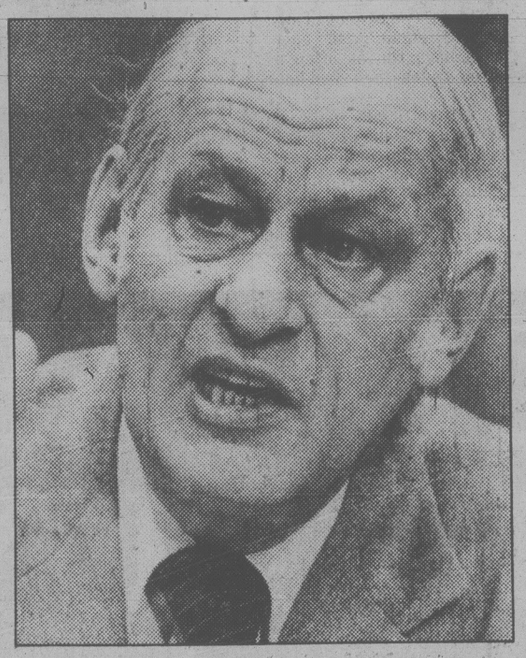
What's the innocent bystander supposed to make of all this confusion?

Mainly that Levesque and the Parti-Quebecois are making headway with their referendum campaign by the technique of confusing and disarming their federalist opposition.

But in this case vagueness and playing with words are among Levesque's strongest weapons. The verdict he seems to be aiming for amounts to no more than a mandate to "go see what you can get." In winning it, however, he will give an appearance of Quebec unity and determination to attain unspecified goals.

Yet there's no reason Levesque should be able to get away with this. His concept of sovereignty-association is unworkable. It assumes Quebec could become an independent country like Mexico and then establish a common market and other economic relationships with the rest of Canada.

But it wouldn't work that way, and Canadians in the rest of the country should be countering Levesque's calculated waffling by spelling out why it wouldn't work. For one thing, the rest of Canada isn't going to give Quebec an equal voice on monetary and other matters when Quebec has less than a quarter of the population. For another, Levesque hasn't admitted to Quebecers that he wouldn't even be able to negotiate a Common Market without changing other Quebec policies, such as government purchasing policies that favor Quebecers. Nor is it clear that the rest of Canada would even want to negotiate a sovereignty-association arrangement; in fact the opposite seems true in spite of Levesque's comment that the rest of Canada has no choice.



LEVESQUE . . . confuse and disarm opponents

At the same time, Levesque shouldn't be allowed to let Quebecers think that his deliberately vague concept of sovereignty-association is the only option.

A revitalized Canada in which Quebec plays an active role and in which Quebecers share the benefits is another alternative, to which can be added arrangements that allow Quebecers to control aspects of their life that protect their language, culture and social policies.

Such an alternative has not been clearly spelled out by Canada's political leaders. It's something they have to do without further delay. Quebecers need signals from the rest of the country.

Levesque shouldn't be allowed to win his referendum; in particular he shouldn't be allowed to win it by default.

But unless federalists in Quebec and the rest of Canada start speaking out strongly on the pitfalls of sovereignty-association — why it's even a bad idea for Quebecers — and start outlining more attractive alternatives, Levesque will win. That will be bad for all of us.

More television interference?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

It is understandable why the federal government should have wished to delay publication of the Clyne committee report. Voters who get their television by cable are not likely to welcome the suggestion that about 80 per cent of the prime-time American television shows they have been watching should be blacked out. There are a lot of these voters. According to the committee, "well over 50 per cent of all the homes in Canada are cable subscribers".

The government has been sitting on the report of the Consultative Committee on the Implications of Telecommunications for Canadian Sovereignty, which was appointed by Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve with J. B. Clyne as chairman. But a gremlin who apparently felt that such material was fit for public discussion during an election has been scattering copies far and wide. The voters will know what is being proposed for their television sets. One proposal, according to Michael Hind-Smith, president of the Canadian Cable Television association, would "black out what would effectively be 80 per cent of the prime-time American programs seen on cable television".

The majority of the Clyne committee is in confusion on at least two points. It interprets Canadian sovereignty as belonging not to the Canadian people but to the government and its agency, the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission. It fails to recognize the vastness of the communications revolution, although it says of it, "What is happening now in telecommunications will set the terms of life in the 21st century." In fact, the revolution is going to be too big for the government or the CRTC to block.

The committee properly objects to one means of impeding competition from the United States which the CRTC has required be used — random deletion of U.S. commercials from U.S. programs carried on cable, and the simultaneous substitution of Canadian signals. "There is something repugnant to us," says the committee, "in the notion that, whatever the legal niceties, it is permisible to pick up someone else's property off the air and tamper with it for profit."

But the majority of the committee takes the wrong approach to transplants, what it calls "American stations carried in their entirety on Canadian cable systems". It recommends "that, when a Canadian broadcaster buys exclusive rights to a program for a given area, cable companies in that area be required to respect these rights and the CRTC to enforce them" — that is, black out the U.S. presentation of the program. It says that the recommendation should be discussed with the public — and when better than during an election? — and reports that two members of the committee, Mr. Clyne and Robert Fulford, "firmly hold the view that this would be unacceptable to Canadian viewers who regard the watching of transplants as an incremental right, given the technological capability of cable."

The committee also recommended: "The CRTC, in authorizing the carriage of television stations by cable, should continue to give precedence to Canadian stations, and should not increase beyond four the number of U.S. stations that may be distributed."

Even the somewhat enlightened minority misses the important points. They interpret Canadian sovereignty as preventing Canadians from watching programs they want to watch and driving them, by elimination of competition, to watch Canadian programs. Sovereignty cannot be dictated against the will of a sovereign people.

Nor can the CRTC censors function in the explosively widening telecommunications world which the committee says is advancing upon us, but plainly does not understand. "A broadcaster," it says, "does not sell programs to audiences; he procures (or produces) programs and sells audiences to advertisers." And that is what will end. The new technology will provide vast numbers of channels for delivery of vast numbers of messages. Choice will be possible, and in the end the public will insist on choice.

Mothers who do know best

katharine whitehorn

LONDON — Last week we had Mothering Sunday in Britain, but before that we had to have Friday — Nancy Friday, the lady whose book on how frightful mothers are was such a wow in the States. It has to be said that she hasn't been so wildly received in the country that houses the Mother of Parliaments.

Ladies hating their mothers, like Ms. Friday and Joan Crawford's daughter, who also, I recall, made a bomb out of the hideous revelations of her childhood, at least make a change from men hating their fathers, such as author Beverley Nichols telling how he had wanted, and indeed planned, to murder his. And "Don't blame me, blame mother" has been a cry heard ever since Freud and his followers began to suggest that the nursery, far from being a place of gambolling innocence, is where all the black deeds of the world begin.

But it's generally felt that Ms. Friday has funked the issue somewhat by (understandably) refusing to become a mother herself. For you only begin to understand why your own parents acted so meanly to you when you catch yourself doing exactly the same things to your own kids.

From the moment when you vow to love, honor and cherish; to refuse ever to say "I told you so" or "When I was your age . . ." you find yourself treading inexorably along the path your parents took. Suddenly the intolerable restrictions they laid on you make sense — you aren't too struck on your own children, now, running out and getting hit by a truck (at age three) or laid by a truck driver (at age 13).

You tell them to do things with no apparent reason, because the real reasons are ones that you can't very well name — like needing to get out of their darling presence before you go stark, raving crazy; or wanting to get a few hours alone with your own husband. You banish a kid to the kitchen because you can't say, "While you are still in the room this visitor will never tell me what she came to say, and until she has, the old gasbag will never go."

There are so many types of Awful Mother — from a daughter's point of view: the smothering one, or the one who doesn't really care, or the one who (Nancy Friday is good on this one) is scared of sex herself so doesn't hold with your enjoying it either; the ones who are so brilliant they make you feel dumb or so adoring they make you feel suffocated. But isn't there any image of a Good Mother — suitable for the age we actually live in?

What would you say to one, intensely maternal herself, who never urged her daughter to get married, never said anything pointed or needling when neither of her children showed the slightest signs of producing a grandchild for her, though both were over 30?

How about a woman who takes on board everything her daughter says — and understands it — although she's been deaf for 30 years and lip-reads the lot?

What about a mother who let her daughter go bicycling alone when she was 17, hitch-hiking alone when she was 21, and only asked for postcards to be sent home to say that all was well?

Or one who, because of a serious illness, got into a Cambridge college but was never able to go there to study — but has taken a keen delight in her children getting degrees and using them, travelling and getting jobs; who, at 76, takes more interest in her grandson's science fiction writings than anyone else he knows?

A mother who taught her daughter that sex was wonderful but who, even during the most turbulent teenage years, never read her daughter's diary — and the daughter could be absolutely sure she wouldn't?

That's my mother. I don't see how the model can be improved on, and the only reason I'm glad I haven't got daughters myself is because I don't think I could live up to it. But it wouldn't be a bad idea if the likes of Ms. Friday pointed out that it is possible to be a caring mother — and not smother; a clever mother — and not daunt; a modern mother, and as absorbed and loving as any granny out of the old books. Any fool can denounce their parents; it's copying them that's difficult.

Flak Flies as TV Election Campaign Opens

CUTTING COMMENT on never-ending stream of campaign promises is offered by sign outside building supply firm at 1920 Oak Bay Avenue. Nancy Heath, seen here with saw, is just the girl to do the job.

The battle of the television broadcasts has begun in the May 10 provincial election and the NDP and Socreds have already run into flak because of their vote-seeking efforts.

For the NDP the difficulty has been a kind of left-handed compliment — the CBC has asked the party to change their format because the ads are too professional.

And Social Credit is being attacked by opponents for placing its advertising on a U.S. border television station.

The NDP television ad campaign featured 14-minute freetime political broadcasts complete with an anchorman, rock station disc jockey Michael Morgan, but the CBC, worried that viewers tuning in late might mistake the slanted "newscasts" for the real thing has requested changes.

The ads, which showed prominent NDP candidates talking to voters, answering questions and giving speeches, were too realistic, said CBC regional director Len Lauk.

The ads were equipped with a CBC-style introduction — "The NDP News. . .with Michael Morgan" — similar to the public network's opener.

"The NDP came up with something new and it was rather well done," said Lauk. "Rather too well done, I might say."

Soren Bech, the NDP communications director, said the party will change the setting and introduction of the ads to meet the CBC demands, but the basic material will be the same.

Morgan will lose his anchorman's desk and have to sit behind a coffee table. And his introduction will be changed to point out at the start that it is an NDP freetime political broadcast.

Bech said the idea of the newscast format was to inject some "visual excitement, humor and flexibility" into the programs.

He said the NDP felt there were adequate safeguards against the public mistaking the ads for a newscast because there is a disclaimer at the beginning and end of the programs.

Meanwhile, the Social Credit party has been spending thousands of dollars on paid advertising with KVOS, a Washington state television station that has a Vancouver office and a large audience in the southwestern B.C. area.

The party's 30-second ads, costing about $240 each, have been run as often as three times in a two-hour period.

Party officials make no apologies for the use of U.S. television time in their campaigning and scoff at NDP criticisms of the U.S. advertising.

Dave Brown, Social Credit advertising chief, says the ads are justified because many British Columbians watch U.S. television and some of the revenue paid to KVOS comes back to Canada in the form of taxes.

"The name of the game is to reach British Columbians," said Brown. "If I had to advertise on the moon, I'd do so — as long as I had a transmitter strong enough to broadcast to B.C."

Bech said the NDP would not advertise on the U.S. station.

"They're an American station and we think the B.C. election should be fought in B.C.," said Bech.

"One of the things Premier Bill Bennett has been basing the campaign on is that B.C. is not for sale," added Bech. "If they're advertising on an American station, I'd call that a little ironic."

Ferry Run To Kitimat, Barrett Vow

B.C. '79

TERRACE (CP) — NDP leader Dave Barrett said Monday an NDP government would build a ferry terminal at Kitimat.

Barrett, speaking to an enthusiatic crowd of more than 750 at a public meeting here, said the NDP would eventually build two ferries to serve the west provincial coast.

He said the ferries would not be built immediately but in the meantime other vessels could be utilized. He estimated costs of the ferries at $16 million each.

Barrett was asked about the Western Canada lottery draw during a question and answer session. He said while he does not personally favor lotteries, he would set up a non-political agency to dispense lottery funds.

Barrett also told the crowd his party is fighting ghosts in the May 10 provincial election campaign.

He said no one knows from week to week where Premier Bill Bennett is going to be.

He said when the NDP brought in the Royal Hudson steam train, which is "the only engine running on steam not generated by politicans," the Social Credit party criticized the move.

Now said Barrett, if you want to find the premier look for the Royal Hudson.

Barrett also promised an NDP government would remove the $3 surcharge now on B.C. Hydro power bills. He said that surcharge was imposed to meet the $1 billion debt stemming from the Columbia River treaty.

Barrett also said the Social Credit party had a cutdown, closed-down, shut-up philosophy.

When the NDP was in government it had negotiated a northern rail agreement with Ottawa to extend the B.C. Rail to the Yukon, with a spur line running to Kitimat, but that pact was cancelled by Social Credit in 1977.

Earlier Monday, he told a news conference that the $9 million the provincial government has committed to treating heroin addicts could be better spent on health care services.

Barrett said he has worked in prisons for five years as a social worker and discovered the best way to treat heroin addicts is with "benign neglect."

In Terrace, Barrett said the government's long-term extended care program is starved for funds and inflexible.

He said the Social Credit government shows it does not understand people when it announces it plans to close Skeenaview Hospital.

Bennett Says He'll Revive Natural Gas Pipe to Island

COURTENAY (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett said Monday his Social Credit government will go ahead with plans to build a natural gas pipeline to Vancouver Island from the mainland.

Bennett accused the previous NDP government of scrapping the pipeline which he said was to provide low-cost energy, and of causing an energy threat to Vancouver Island.

In 1971 the cost of the pipeline was estimated at $150 million.

He said inflation is going to make it a lot more expensive, "and that's a cost the people of B.C. are going to have to pay for the NDP's years of delaying."

Bennett told 75 persons that the pipeline was a commitment of the previous Social Credit government which was defeated by the NDP in 1972.

"They scrapped plans for any additional Hydro capacity to Vancouver Island and we're playing catch-up now," he said.

"We've reactivated studies on the gas so that you will be able to benefit from our natural gas, denied by the NDP. Remember they stopped it and we're going to get it going again."

Bennett said the B.C. Energy Commission and B.C. Hydro will submit reports on the subject to the government, which will consider the pipeline among other options.

Bennett said Hydro will be going ahead after what he called an inexcusable delay on their part in not providing sufficient power initially.

"We just told them to get on with it. We're going to make sure that the people over here are protected from blackouts and brownouts."

Bennett said the government is not looking to nuclear power for its energy needs and will not do so for many years, preferring to rely on existing sources.

"We have taken advantage of those things that are there — hydroelectricity, natural gas and other energy sources."

He said he is concerned with NDP advertisements "somehow suggesting they are the safeguard of the people who will not allow nuclear power, where somehow we are going to be sticking down unclean energy sources among you."

Riding Dumps Smith

SMITH
... former speaker

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — Former legislature speaker Ed Smith lost his bid Monday to run as Social Credit candidate in Peace River-North.

Smith, 53, had held the seat since 1968, but was defeated by Tony Brummet in the first ballot at a nomination meeting here.

Brummet, a local junior high school principal, campaigned heavily during the last three weeks and promised to give local voters a voice in party policy.

A party spokesman said Smith was defeated because some party members thought his resignation as speaker diminished his ability to represent the riding in the legislature.

Smith resigned as speaker last year following allegations that he had used improper influence in the hiring of his secretary into a higher posting.

In other nominations Monday, the Socreds picked Harvey Schroeder, a member of the last house, to run again in Chiliwack riding.

Woman Strips, Judge Skips

NELSON (CP) — The leader of a Doukhobor religious sect and two others appeared in provincial court Monday for the first day of their preliminary hearing on charges of conspiracy to commit arson in this and other communities in southeastern British Columbia.

During the court session, one of the female witnesses disrobed, prompting the judge to leave until the woman had put her clothes back on.

John J. Verigin, leader and honorary chairman of the Union of Spiritual Communities of Christ, is charged with four counts of conspiracy to commit arson.

Doukhobors Peter Astaforoff and William Evdokimoff, are also charged.

Jail Death Probed

SALMON ARM (CP) — An inquest jury which examined the suicide of a 19-year-old man in the RCMP lockup here has recommended that police keep closer watch on their prisoners.

The jury attached no blame in the hanging death last Feb. 19 of Ronald Wayne Williams of the nearby Gleneden Indian reserve but called for better and more frequent inspections of cells.

Tentative Pact

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The city reached tentative contract agreement Monday with 450 civic workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Siedo Tzogoeff, the city's bargaining agent, said the two-year contract retroactive to Jan. 1 will provide wage increases of six per cent in each year.

PM Unafraid Of Book, Maggie Says

NEW YORK (CP) — Margaret Trudeau says she was willing to put off the publication date of her book about her broken marriage until after the May 22 federal election, but that Prime Minister Trudeau told her it wouldn't affect the election outcome.

Appearing on NBC television's Today show, Mrs. Trudeau took exception to some of the questions by interviewer Jane Pauley, co-host of the network's morning program.

After the taping in New York on Monday for the two-part series scheduled for presentation today and Wednesday, the estranged wife of Prime Minister Trudeau walked out in a huff rather than remain for the retaping that is normally done to refine the program before presentation.

Despite all the publicity she has generated, Mrs. Trudeau said she would like "to disappear now — you know, just be with my children and have a plain, good life."

Pauley approached the question of Trudeau's campaigning for re-election at a time when Margaret's book Beyond Reason, published in mid-April, was on the Canadian best-seller list.

Mrs. Trudeau was asked whether it was right for her book to be out while her husband was running in a difficult election.

"Did you ever consider not writing the book, or postponing?" Ms. Pauley asked.

"Oh, yes," Mrs. Trudeau replied.

She said she had asked the prime minister about the book.

"I said to him, 'I want to write this book while I have all of the details of the life, and all of the funny stories and all of the incidents very clear in my mind, so that it would make a very good story.'

"I felt then was the time to write it. But, I said: 'The publication date doesn't make any difference to me at all.' And he said: 'Your book won't affect the election' "

Pauley remarked: "Some people say it could be the final nail in his political coffin, as it were."

Laughing, Mrs. Trudeau replied: "I think those people are wrong . . . wrong and vicious."

She said the book gave her a chance to present her side of the years of marriage to Trudeau.

"The press has managed to really assassinate my character completely, particularly in Canada, and now at least I have something on the other side for people who have more open minds to see."

Pauley said the advance publicity for the book had generated stories about things that were not in Beyond Reason.

"The press is not kind, they're very vicious," Mrs. Trudeau said. "My husband . . . is a very powerful leader governing a powerful country . . . and I'm the easy prey to attack him, to attack everything."

There was an exchange over allegations of a romantic relationship with Senator Edward Kennedy, although his name was not mentioned. Kennedy has denied any such relationship.

Pauley said Mrs. Trudeau had written in her book about falling in love three years ago with "a high-powered American, a southern gentleman."

The interviewer tried to pin down Mrs. Trudeau on what she meant by "southern gentleman" — whether she meant someone from the southern U.S. or just someone south of the Canadian border, but Mrs. Trudeau refused to give any further clues:

"I just can't take it any more . . . read my book. I'm fed up with it (that sort of questioning). It's so unfair."

Tories Move Ahead In CBC Poll

TORONTO (CP) — An election poll by CBC television says the Progressive Conservatives are ahead in every region of the country except Quebec.

However, the CBC says the poll, released Monday on CBC's Newsmagazine, also showed voters — even committed Conservatives — consider Prime Minister Trudeau the most competent leader.

The poll, conducted by CBC television news and Carleton University in Ottawa, found that if an election were held today, the Conservatives would win 40.2 per cent of the decided vote, the Liberals 38.4 per cent, the New Democratic Party 16 per cent and the Social Credit Party 4.6 per cent. The undecided vote was 31.5 per cent of eligible voters.

The CBC says the poll showed the Conservatives with strong leads in the crucial southern Ontario and southern British Columbia regions.

In southern British Columbia, the Conservatives had 43.6 per cent of the vote, compared with 28.2 per cent for the Liberals and 25.6 per cent for the NDP.

The survey was conducted in the two weeks ending Friday, April 20, and involved telephone interviews with 2,286 voters across Canada.

Fifty-seven per cent of those who voted Liberal in the 1974 general election said they will do so again. Fourteen per cent say they will switch to the Conservatives and six per cent to the NDP. Twenty-one per cent of the Liberal voters were undecided.

But the poll indicated Trudeau is the most popular leader. Asked which leader seemed most competent to deal with the issues, 38 per cent chose Trudeau, 14.9 per cent chose Conservative leader Joe Clark and 8.8 per cent chose NDP leader Ed Broadbent.

The CBC says voters feel three issues are most significant in the campaign leading up to the May 22 election. Unemployment and inflation each were cited by 18.3 per cent of those surveyed. National unity was chosen by 13.2 per cent.

Quebec voters expressed greater interest in national unity than voters in the rest of Canada, who indicated more concern about unemployment and inflation.

"It was done by students from Carleton (University) telephoning across the country for the first time."

ELECTION 79

Eighty In the Running For Scattered Seats

Canadian Press

The races in most of Canada for the May 22 federal election close today, and at least 80 candidates will be in the running.

Most of Canada may seem a misnomer since today is the official close of nominations in only 25 of the country's 282 ridings — but they cover about 80 per cent of its total land area. They stretch from Labrador to the Queen Charlotte Islands, and from the area south of Hudson Bay to the High Arctic islands. Several of the candidates are Eskimos.

Three others were Liberal cabinet ministers in the last Parliament, and one is the Progressive Conservative standard-bearer, Joe Clark.

The Liberals nominated candidates in all 25 ridings where the nominations traditionally close early because of the difficulty of distributing election machinery through the vast, remote areas. Ballot boxes and the like have to be flown to lonely polling spots and enumeration of the scattered voters is a major task. Fewer than 10 per cent of the country's eligible voters live in these ridings.

On the eve of the close of nominations at 2 p.m. local standard time, the other two major parties lacked candidates in Burin-St. George's in Newfoundland, where an NDP candidate had withdrawn, and Manicouagan in northern Quebec, where no Progressive Conservative had filed by Monday. But there were at least two Social Credit candidates and a sprinkling of independents.

Nominations close in the other 257 ridings Monday, April 30.

Begin Gives Sympathy Only

EDMONTON (CP) — Federal Health and Welfare Minister Monique Begin has written a city woman who is campaigning for better pension protection for older divorcees to tell her she has a point, albeit one the federal government has turned down.

Lila Lofts, 60, who is about to be divorced, has been questioning candidates of all political parties about a widespread pension rule that says if a divorced pensioner dies, his wife receives nothing.

Mrs. Lofts, mother of three, said she is undertaking her campaign to let other women know where they may stand.

Miss Begin wrote Mrs. Lofts saying the government dropped the idea of letting housewives contribute to the Canada Pension Plan and earn a pension in their own right, because they have no earnings as such.

Admitting homemakers into the scheme on a voluntary basis "would represent a fundamental departure from its income protection role."

However, Miss Begin added she personally supports the principle that pension assets should be owned jointly like other property and split upon divorce.

Broadbent Wooing Halifax Dockyard

By PATRICK NAGLE
FP News Service

HALIFAX — The three national political parties seem to have agreed on one thing in this election campaign — they want to do something for the nearly-derelict shipyard here.

Monday, it was New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent who donned the obligatory hard hat for a tour and an offer of help should he get a piece of the action in forming a government after May 22.

Progressive Conservative leader Joe Clark has already weighed in with his promise for the crumbling facility, as has Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen for the Liberals.

In the words of Alastair Reekie, finance vice-president for the yard, "We don't care who's the government, we want the new drydock."

As Broadbent made his way through the grit and junk of the 60-year-old buildings, few workers were around to shake his hand.

Only the old-timers, the longest service men — about 200 of a full work force f 1,300 — are in the plant these days.

"I've been out for eight months," said Charlie Fleming, "if we weren't painting the ceiling, we'd still be out in the street."

Frank Smith, another painter, said he had been with the firm for 27 yaars but had just resumed work after two layoffs.

"Bring us lots of work, that's what we need," said Smith.

After the tour, Broadbent agreed that the $40 million outlay for a new drydock would create more jobs in the area and he offered 75 to 80 per cent federal partieipation as a reasonable expenditure.

In echange, he said, the government should take a minority share-holding position in the yard.

"This would be an immensely successful economic investment," Broadbent said, "I don't belive in going around the country and spending money that cannot be justified on economic grounds."

He leader produced a table of projects the yard could have undertaken in the past year if a new drydock had existed in Halifax.

One of the items listed was the oil tanker Kurdistan, which broke in two off the Canadian Atlantic coast earlier this year. Only the stern section of the tanker was saved and the yard estimated a total of $5.25 million could have been earned to refit the ship.

Executives of the shipyard said they would definitely consider Broadbent's offer of money in exchange for a share deal.

Barrett Fears Echoed

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Two federal cabinet ministers have echoed the concerns of Dave Barrett, British Columbia NDP leader, who says the province's fish processing industry is in danger of being taken over by Japanese interests.

However, Fitness Minister Iona Campagnolo and External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson differ on how to solve the problem.

Campagnolo, who is running in the Skeena constituency which takes in this north coast fishing industry city, said she agrees with Barrett's call for greater provincial control over the issuing of licence permits to new companies entering the industry.

In Quesnel, Jamieson indicated that licensing powers should be in the hands of the federal government.

Trudeau a Thief: Clark

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Joe Clark told Newfoundlanders Monday that Pierre Trudeau is a man who breaks promises and who is trying to steal their resources from both in the sea and under it.

At a rousing evening rally here and at a clam chowder luncheon earlier in Gander, the Progressive Conservative leader said a Clark government would recognize that the province had full title to the fishery and any oil found as a result of current drilling in the seabed.

He labelled Trudeau "the prince of broken promises in Canada" for implementing wage and price controls after campaigning against them in 1974, for not reducing inflation as he promised in 1974 and for failing to deliver on a development plan for the Atlantic region.

He said Trudeau had "earned the distrust of Canada" for not keeping his word.

Cheers surged through the crowd of more than 300 supporters overflowing a room in a local hotel as Clark interrupted his speech to tell them the Conservatives had won a majority in Prince Edward Island's Monday election.

"There is only one Liberal govenment to go," he said as the crowd cheered and waved Joe Clark placards.

"It is fundamental to Progressive Conservative policy that the province of Newfoundland and other provinces by the sea should have the same rights over natural resources that a province like Alberta or a province like Saskatchewan has over the resources that exist under the ground," Clark said to applause at the Gander meeting.

The Atlantic provinces have been disputing with Ottawa over ownership of offshore resources which Ottawa has argued are jointly controlled.

Ouellet Lashes Socred's Roy

MONTREAL (CP) — Andre Ouellet, the Liberal party's chief campaign organizer in Quebec, lashed out Monday at Social Credit leader Fabien Roy, calling him "the new lieutenant of Rene Levesque, the new errand-boy of the Parti Quebecois."

In an emotional speech delivered after he was nominated as the Liberal candidate in the Montreal riding of Papineau, Ouellet charged that Roy wants to make the Socreds "into a branch of the PQ on the federal level.

"You (Roy) are in the process of scuttling the Social Credit Party," the federal minister of public works said before an enthusiastic audience of 300 Liberal party members.

"Real Caouette (former leader of the Socreds) must be turning in his grave. He was an authentic Canadian, a sincere federalist," he said. "Today, Fabien Roy is betraying Social Credit."

Earlier Monday, Roy told reporters in the east-end riding of Mercier that more than half the federal Socred members in Quebec are PQ memberson the provincial scene.

Ouellet also had some harsh words to say about Joe Clark, charging that the Progresssive Conservative leader was not making his position clear on the question of national unity.

He said that Clark appeared to be unconcerned by "the fact" that Roch Lasalle, MP for Joliette, had "met not long ago, in secret, with leading pequistes to obtain their support."

SERVING BRITISH COLUMBIA SINCE 1894

5 YEARS OR 80,000km

This Chrysler option protects you for 5 years or 80,000 km on the power train.
Two years longer than any other North American car maker's Plan.

You begin to appreciate what Chrysler engineering means when you compare how long we're willing to stand behind the most complex, and costly, engineering system in the entire car or truck: the power train. The Chrysler Canada 5/80 Protection Plan for 5 years or 80,000 km, whichever comes first, gives you longer coverage than GM or Ford by two full years.

Protection covers all major power train components.

When you buy the Chrysler 5/80 Protection Plan, you get coverage that includes both the cost of parts and labour for repair of major components in your vehicle's engine, transmission or transaxle, drive axle, and drive shaft. You pay only the first $50 of the total cost of repairs made to these power train components during a repair visit.

The only other requirement adds up to just plain good sense: use your car or truck in a normal way and give it the routine maintenance called for in your Owner's Manual. Do this, and the major components of the entire power train are protected from expensive repair bills for 5 years or 80,000 km from the time you take original delivery of your vehicle.

Available to buyers of new 1979 Chrysler Canada cars and trucks.

The Chrysler 5/80 Protection Plan is available to original individual retail buyers of most new 1979 Chrysler, Dodge and Plymouth vehicles purchased for personal use starting April 10, 1979. And the same low suggested retail price applies whether you lease or buy your car or truck. You can pay in a lump sum, charge it, or as with any other option, you can include it in your monthly payments.

You have up to 60 days to make up your mind.

You can buy your Chrysler 5/80 Protection Plan at the same time as you buy your vehicle, or up to 60 days after. However, if you wish, you can cancel within 60 days of purchase and you'll still get a full refund from Chrysler Canada.

Your protection includes coverage for towing, car rental, even a toll free number to call for help.

If you have a problem with a component covered by the Plan causing your vehicle to be out of use overnight while being repaired, you get a car rental allowance that starts when you Purchase the Plan: up to $15 a day for up to 5 days per repair visit.

Should your vehicle need to be towed because of a problem with a covered power train component, you'll be reimbursed up to $25 per tow starting after your new vehicle warranty period expires.

And if power train trouble occurs while you're on the road, you can call a Chrysler Canada operator for assistance, toll free, seven days a week. Toll free numbers for Canada and the U.S. are listed on the back of the Ownercard which you will receive with the Plan.

5/80 CHRYSLER PROTECTION PLAN

It's Chrysler Canada's contract with you. You can call over 5,000 Dodge and Plymouth dealers all over Canada and the U.S.

Because this is a manufacturer-backed Plan, you have over 5,000 Dodge and Plymouth dealerships to call for assistance. If you are travelling and are unable to let your selling dealer service your vehicle, just take it to any Dodge or Plymouth dealer, show him your special Ownercard with your Vehicle Identification Number, and you'll be taken care of.

Today, with inflation and the costs of repairs almost constantly on the rise, the price you pay for Chrysler 5/80 Protection could very well be recovered by only one visit to your dealer! That's an indication of Chrysler Canada's confidence in the engineering of our products, and of the quality you can expect in the new Chrysler, Dodge or Plymouth you buy.

Passenger Cars and Station Wagons	Suggested Retail Price
Colt, Arrow	$196
Aspen, Volaré	$232
Diplomat, Caravelle, LeBaron, Cordoba, Magnum XE	$257
Newport, New Yorker Fifth Avenue	$281
Light Trucks and Vans
Dodge D50	$226
Dodge Pickup (2-wheel drive)	$257
Compact Vans and Wagons, Sport Utility (2-wheel drive)	$289
Cut-Off Van ("MB" Model)	$398
All 4-wheel Drive Trucks	$459
Motor Home Chassis ("M" Model)	$489

NOTE: DEALERS MAY SELL FOR LESS

Chrysler Canada protection gets stronger and stronger.

1. You're protected by the Chrysler 12-month 20,000 km warranty that applies to every new car or truck.
2. You're protected by the Chrysler 36-month Anti-Corrosion Warranty for perforation caused by corrosion, with no limit on the distance you drive.
3. And now you can be protected by the Chrysler 5/80 Protection Plan, the longest offered in North America.

SPECIAL NO-CHARGE INTRODUCTORY OFFER

From now until May 10, 1979, the optional Chrysler 5/80 Protection Plan will be yours at no extra cost when you buy or lease a new 1979 Dodge Aspen or Diplomat, Plymouth Volaré or Caravelle, Chrysler LeBaron, Dodge Van or 2-Wheel Drive Domestic Pickup.

See your participating Dodge or Plymouth Dealer for more details.

Kaiser Res.

Kaiser Resources Ltd. has reported net earnings of $14.05 million or 52 cents a share in the first quarter of 1979, compared with net earnings of $13.38 million or 50 cents a share in the same period in 1978.

Revenue increased to $130.59 million, compared with $79.69 million in the 1978 period.

Edgar F. Kaiser, Jr., chairman and chief executive officer, said the improvement in first quarter earnings could be attributed to a higher level of coal shipments at higher prices and the addition of oil and gas activities to the company's earning base.

Brunswick

Brunswick Mining and Smelting Corp. Ltd. earned profits of $25.6 million in 1978, up more than 10 times from $2.4 million a year earlier, says the company's mining-division manager.

John Moerman said he expects the strong earnings to continue this year.

The company has already declared a dividend of 10 cents a share for the first quarter of this year, he said. The dividend is equal to total dividends paid last year.

He said an additional 65 cents a share of first-quarter earnings was retained for investment.

Net revenue for 1978 was $166.8 million, up from $11.7 million in 1977.

Finning

Finning Tractor and Equipment Co. Ltd. has reported net income of $4,073,000 or $1.03 a share in the first quarter of 1979, compared with income of $2,923,000 or 74 cents a share in the corresponding period last year.

Revenue increased to $79,422,000 in the period, up from $58,923,000 in the first quarter of 1978.

W. M. Young, board chairman and chief executive officer, said the results reflect a high level of confidence and activities in all the company's traditional markets.

Lornex

Lornex Mining Corp. has reported net earnings of $8,487,000 or $1.03 a share in the first quarter of 1979, compared with earnings of $2,252,000 or 27 cents a share in the same period last year.

Revenues rose to $31,972,000 in the period, up from $19,628,000 in the first three months of 1978.

A company spokesman said the increase was due to increased copper prices and higher foreign exchange gains.

Yankees 'Curiouser and Curiouser'

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Things around New York Yankees' clubhouse are, as Alice in Wonderland would put it, "getting curiouser and curiouser."

Pitcher Rich Gossage and reserve catcher Cliff Johnson get into a locker-room brawl, resulting in injury to Gossage's $2.75 million right thumb.

With the ace reliever on the sidelines for between six and eight weeks, Yankees owner George Steinbrenner's hopes for a fourth straight pennant and third consecutive World Series title could be in jeopardy.

It was a stupid act — mature men acting like schoolboys. At today's wage levels, it was about as dignified as a Rockefeller squaring off against a Mellon on the corner of New York's 51st St. and Park Ave.

Now a new chapter opens in the continuing drama: Will Billy Martin return as Yankees manager in 1980 — or won't he?

Bobby Richardson, a former Yankees infielder and a close friend of Martin's, rippled the waters when he told an audience last week that the Yankees had no intention of giving Billy his old job back — that the promise made to him on the Yankees' electric scoreboard was just a public relations gimmick to cool the heat of the fans.

Published reports at the time alleged that Martin got involved in a fracas and suffered an injured hand. He showed up with a cast on his wrist.

Martin insisted the reports were unfounded. Other guests at the scene backed him up. An investigation failed to uncover any untoward conduct.

At the time, Steinbrenner said there would be an investigation.

"We promised Billy and his agent that if he were found innocent in the Reno case (a previous altercation in which Billy was charged with punching a sportswriter) and got in no further trouble, the 1980 manager's job would be his," Steinbrenner insisted. "That still stands."

Who asked for the depositions? Were the Yankees trying to build a case against Martin so they could be excused for not keeping their end of the 1980 bargain?

"That is ridiculous," said Steinbrenner. "It is not our style. We operate above board. If there are requests for depositions, they are not coming from the Yankees."

Meanwhile, those who attended the Bachelors 3 bash apparently have become concerned that Martin's career has been jeopardized by the Fort Lauderdale report and are endeavoring to get Billy off the hook — if there is one.

One of them is Eddie Jaffe, prominent publicist for theatre and sports figures, who helped co-owner Joe Namath with media details of the Bachelors 3 opening.

"Billy showed up with a couple of New Orleans judges and friends," he said. "The place was a jammed — some 1,500 to 2,000 people turning out for free drinks. With 200 tables, it was hard to find a place to sit.

"But Martin was very patient. He posed for pictures with Namath and other guests. He signed autographs. He sat at the bar a while. There was not an incident of any kind."

If Billy threw a punch or even shoved anybody, it was a phantom act. Nobody saw it. And Steinbrenner says he's making nothing of it.

Andy's anger erupted when he was tagged out roughly by Rose. Adding to his unhappiness was victory by Phillies, 4-3 in 10 innings. (AP laserphoto)

Battle Pending Over Recruiting

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

A full-scale battle could erupt over basketball recruiting restrictions when the Canada West University Athletic Association holds its annual meeting May 2-4 in Saskatoon.

Calgary Dinosaur coach Gary Howard has already gone on record opposing rules that restrict schools to talking to players only from their own provinces.

"It's a ludicrous and unenforceable law," said Howard, who coached the Dinosaurs to second place last season behind the CWUAA champion UVic Vikings.

"By the letter of that ruling you can't even send a potential athlete a letter or phone him," he argued. But he claimed universities from elsewhere can recruit players from the Canada West area — Saskatchewan, Alberta and B.C.

Howard recently travelled to the Ontario high school championships and the Canadian junior college championships in Montreal.

"There are a couple of kids in the Ontario championships who have written me letters indicating their interest in Calgary," he said. "I didn't contact them first. They contacted me first, so they initiated recruitment."

Calgary athletic director Dennis Kadatz would also like to see the restrictions eased.

"I have some hesitations concerning letting my coaching staff go across the country to recruit," Kadatz admitted. "It's a whole new ball game, but I've got to admire Gary for taking a step forward."

While Kadatz feels obligated to abide by the CWUAA recruiting restriction, he plans "to fight like hell to change it.

"We proposed a modified recruiting rule last year that I thought they could all accept. It stated that while a coach could not travel out of province to openly recruit, he or she should still be able to initiate talks with prospective athletes by telephone or letter. Even that was voted down, and by a substantial margin."

National coach Jack Donohue sees Howard as a man trying to take Canada West out of the dark ages.

"The rule indicates that most of the league members aren't dedicated to improving their standard of basketball," Donohue said.

"Universities have an obligation to upgrade the level of sport in their areas," Elcock said. "I think it's baloney to say that the Maritimes, in particular, have upgraded the calibre of basketball in their area by whipping down to New York to sign kids like Mickey Fox."

Fox, a U.S. import, starred for St. Mary's Huskies of Halifax last season and was instrumental in that school's victory over UVic in the national college basketball final.

Even so, Elcock is willing to be convinced.

"If changing the recruiting rule was an advantage to UVic and this community, I'd be in favor," he said. But he's afraid that the inevitable result of importing out-of-province personnel will be the failure to develop area players.

"If this sort of thing is allowed to go unchecked, whoever's got the biggest recruiting budget will win," Elcock warned.

Parting Shots: Canada West delegates in Saskatoon will discuss a Canadian Interuniversity Athletic Union proposal creating a 12-school superleague in hockey. Among the teams sure to be included would be UBC Thunderbirds, Alberta Golden Bears, Calgary Dinosaurs, Manitoba Bisons, Toronto Varsity Blues and St. Mary's Huskies . . . Jim Day is back as athletic director at Lethbridge University, replacing John Affleck who resigned to sell real estate in Lethbridge. Affleck also served as men's basketball coach so the Pronghorns will be looking for a replacement. Day, a faculty member at the school, was appointed for a two-year term.

Truce Brings VITRA Back To Western

Club president Dan Wade and Speedway manager Tony Mortel confirmed Monday an agreement had been reached and that VITRA members would race at the Langford oval during the coming season.

"We're pleased that VITRA will be involved in the 26th year of auto racing at the speedway," said Mortel.

The two groups had been at loggerheads for more than two months and VITRA had been determined to pass up dates at Western to campaign exclusively at the Nanaimo track.

Western Speedway, in the the meantime, went ahead with a $250,000 improvement program which included new stands, washrooms and concessions.

"It's where we belong, but we couldn't run there for nothing," said Wade. "The things keeping us apart were minor. Both sides made concessions."

A majority of VITRA members are expected to ratify the agreement at a meeting May 1 and the grand opening of the new facilities is scheduled for May 5.

The major bone of contention between the two groups centred on backgate receipts paid by racers, crews, track officials and other workers on race nights.

Under the new agreement the speedway will get the backgate receipts but VITRA drivers will race for guaranteed purses and a larger share of the front gate receipts.

Wade also said VITRA would keep its commitment to the Mid-Island Auto Racing Association to race 10 times at Nanaimo starting May 6.

Luzinski Lights Fires for Phillies

"Greg is our key — no doubt about it," says Philadelphia Phillies team-mate Mike Schmidt. "He gets us going."

Take Monday night, for example. The Philadelphia outfielder slugged a two-run homer in the sixth to spark the Phillies' offence and Schmidt later applied the finishing touches with an RBI single in the 10th inning that brought the Phillies a 4-3 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers in a National League game.

Luzinksi also had a role in the Phillies' game-winning rally.

"Greg was the key there, too," Schmidt said. "His fly ball got (Larry) Bowa to third and it was a lot different going up to hit knowing you only need a fly ball to win a game, than needing a base hit. That's why Greg hits fourth for the Phillies and fourth in the All-Star Game."

In the only other National League game Monday night, St. Louis Cardinals beat Atlanta Braves 4-3 in 10 innings. In the American League, Texas Rangers blanked Toronto Blue Jays 5-0 and Kansas City Royals edged Chicago White Sox 4-3.

Before winning the game in the 10th, Schmidt had tied it 3-3 with an RBI single in the eighth. It was mildly surprising that Schmidt was in the lineup at all. The third baseman had severely bruised his right thumb Saturday and only appeared in Sunday's loss to New York Mets as a pinch runner and defensive player.

"I didn't even ask him how it felt," said Phillies manager Danny Ozark. "I just put his name in the lineup and he went out and played."

Jerry Mumphrey's two-out single drove in the winning run in the 10th inning as St. Louis edged Atlanta.

Cruyff Agrees To Terms

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Dutch soccer ace Johan Cruyff has reached an agreement on "all major points" for a one-year contract with the Cosmos of the North American Soccer League, the Amsterdam evening newsvaper Het Parool reported today.

The report said that after five hours of negotiations in New York neither Cruyff nor the club was prepared to name a price, but that it certainly was lower than the $4 million the Cosmos were reported to have offered for a two-year contract.

In New York, a Cosmos' spokesman said the NASL team had no comment on the report.

Cruyff, 31, was due to return home to Barcelona tonight, the story from New York by Parool sports writer Cees van Nieuwenhuizen said, and providing the contract details were complete, he hoped to make his debut for the Cosmos within two to three weeks.

The report said the Cosmos gave in to all but one of the conditions set down by Cruyff — that he be left out of a world tour scheduled for this fall.

"They were afraid that uproar would break out among the other players if they allowed only me to stay at home," Cruyff was quoted as saying.

Cruyff formally quit soccer after a farewell game in Amsterdam last November but he was looking to make a comeback in the NASL in a big money deal with the Cosmos.

Rangers Get 'Big Things'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers, three games down in their best-of-seven National Hockey League quarter-final against New York Rangers and shamed by a shutout Sunday, have come down a bit from their hopes of a strong dark-horse showing.

Another loss tonight and they'll be finished for the season.

"We're back with our rumps against the wall again," commented a rueful coach Pat Quinn.

"For us, this next one is an elimination game," he said. "Hopefully, we'll do the things we do right, but I thought we were doing things right."

Things look brighter on the New York side.

"Win the cup? Well, I don't see why we can't," said the Rangers' Eddie Johnstone.

If the Rangers win tonight, they will begin their semi-final round on the road Thursday night against New York Islanders, with Montreal Canadiens opening at home against Boston Bruins the same night in the other semi-final. If the Rangers lose to Philadelphia, the Montreal-Boston series will not start until Saturday.

New York's Pat Hickey said his team is "getting the big saves from (goaltender) John Davidson, killing the big penalties and scoring the big goals."

That could be why the Flyers have been outscored 18-2 in the last three humiliating games and haven't scored in the last 118 minutes, 22 seconds of action.

Or it could be their insistence on a rough, physical game, with the inherent time in the penalty box. They gave the Rangers six consecutive power plays in a stretch of Sunday night's contest, but managed somehow to surrender just one power-play goal.

During the first period Sunday, the Flyers shot everything they had at Davidson. Nothing worked.

And to add insult to injury, Davidson said: "I don't think we played that well in the first period and I just did my job. After that, we cleaned up pretty well in our end and I didn't have that much to do."

For the rest of the night, the frustrated Flyers kept trying — and theRangers kept scoring.

"He (Davidson) had me talking to myself in the second period," said the Flyers' Bill Barber.

Poland Drops From Top Pool

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States, sparked by outstanding performances from college rivals Joe Mullen and Jim Craig, defeated Poland 5-1 Tuesday to eliminate the losers from Group A competition in the world hockey championship.

It was the second win against a defeat and two ties for the Americans in the four-team relegation pool. The Poles, needing a win to stay alive, dropped down to the Group B championship next year.

Mullen, a New Yorker who plays for Boston College, once again spearheaded the American attack and was named his team's most-valuable player for the game. He scored one goal to raise his total to five in seven games.

Craig, a Boston University goaltender, stopped 15 shots by the Poles and received excellent support from the defence, led by Jack Brownshidle of the National Hockey League St. Louis Blues.

Poland, the only team without a victory in the Moscow championship, will be replaced by the Netherlands in the next world tournament in Sweden in 1981. The Netherlands won the Group B title last month.

Hawks Clinch Berth in Final

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Mike Toal scored 51 seconds into the second overtime period Monday night to give Portland Winter Hawks a 5-4 decision over Lethbridge Broncos in Western Hockey League playoff action.

The Winter Hawks now have won three and lost none in the western Hockey League round-robin playoff and are assured a place in the best-of-seven final. The Broncos are 0-and-3.

David Babych, Jim Dobson, Blake Wesley and Florent Robidoux scored the regulation-time Portland goals. Gord Williams had two for Lethbridge and Doug Morrison and Randy Ruff provided one goal each.

If the Broncos are to stay alive, they have to beat Brandon Wheat Kings tonight. They also must hope the Wheat Kings, who've won one and lost one, lose to Portland in the final game of the round-robin tomorrow.

Hopes Retained

PERTH, Australia (Reuter) — New Zealand defeated Kenya 8-2 and Britain beat Malaysia 3-1 Tuesday to keep alive hopes of reaching the semi-finals of an international field hockey tournament.

New Zealand and Britain now have four points each behind Pakistan whic tops the B Group standings with six points. The top two teams from each division advance to the semi-finals.

In Group A, the Netherlands and Australia, both with six points, have clinched semi-final berths. India and Canada are next with two points each and France has no points.

Wests Gunning for Two Titles

Victoria West will be gunning for two Vancouver Island Soccer League victories this week at Royal Athletic Park.

Wests face Victoria Athletics for the Price Cup, emblematic of the first division playoff title, at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday.

Last season, the Athletics came out on top when the same two teams met.

Both squads will be missing a player for the match with John McGuire of Wests and Dan Hood of Athletics sitting out suspensions.

Coach Brian Robinson of Athletics lost three players to professional North American Soccer League teams but managed to fill the gaps and go on to take the league title.

On Saturday, Bob English's Vic West crew will be back to full strength while tackling the surprising Prospect Lake second division side in the Jackson Cup final at 2:15.

Wests were knocked out of the Jackson Cup competition last season by Castaways, another second division squad.

Lakers have already bounced two first division teams — Gorge and Nanaimo United — in earlier Jackson Cup rounds and have only lost three matches during the entire season under coach Dave Keith.

If Prospect Lake wins, it will mark the first time in the 81-year history of the competition that a second division team has taken the title.

Wests have won the Jackson Cup 13 times.

The winner of the Jackson Cup, joins Athletics as the VISL representatives in the Province Cup playdowns.

Retiring Game Beckons Gorge Vale's Secretary

First things first, and a guy who will always be there, in my book, will head for retirement at the end of the year.

Leo Derman, secretary-manager of Gorge Vale Golf Club since April, 1950, will relinquish his post in December. "The Hawk" probably will go to work on his game and thereby continue his 45-year association that began when he took out membership at the Esquimalt course in 1935.

Gorge Vale will advertise shortly for a successor, but it's unlikely they will find anyone who will put in the days and nights that Leo contributed. In the early days, and before the installation of automatic oil furnaces, Leo always was first on the job to light the fires in six stoves and always the last to leave.

No one has kept track of the many times that Derman was aroused in the middle of the night, by Esquimalt police, to help clean up the clubhouse or pro shop after a break-in.

Also secretary of the District Committee from inception, Derman has long since been the unofficial historian of the district scene. He has watched the good ones come and go and can describe in infinite detail some of the most memorable games played around here.

Ironically, Derman's retirement comes in a year that marks Gorge Vale's 50th anniversary. While it operated as a nine-holer for a short time, Gorge Vale was officially opened as an 18-hole course Nov. 1, 1930 by Herbert Anscomb, then Victoria mayor.

Highlight of the 50th anniversary celebrations will be a field day June 16 and a special members' night in December.

Brother acts were prominent in Sunday's first round of match play in the CFAX Vancouver Island Open. Colwood's teacher-student combination of Bob Hogarth and Neil O'Leary prevented greater prominence.

The 15-year-old O'Leary beat Brian Rands in a handicap division battle while Hogarth, the pro, rallied to sideline Ed Beauchemin. Other brothers — pros Bruce Rands and Bob Beauchemin — won their championship matches.

Two other brother acts — Nanaimo's Ian and Bruce Harper and Colwood's Glen and Bruce Barlow —were successful in reaching next Sunday's second round.

Bruce Barlow, like O'Leary, is 15.

BRIEFLY: Two Island golfers, choosing mainland partners, have qualified for the Sun match-play tournament in Vancouver . . . Jim Rutledge teamed up with Tom Moryson for a four-under 67, one stroke behind John Sims and Con Bergstrom, the medallists at Carnoustie . . . Nanaimo's Sandy Harper and Vancouver partner Craig Bussey made it with a 70 on the same course . . . Tom and Don Dalgetti, a father-and-son combination, matched the 67 scored by Ken Gurney and Don Griffiths the share the medal at Langara . . . In all, 32 pairings qualified for the head-butting that starts next Sunday.

Coming up with hole-in-one shots in recent days were Kelly Oulton, on Cedar Hill's 15th, and Noel Morgan, on the seventh at Colwood . . . Which made it a good week for the Morgans because John, the pro, dressed up his record 59 at Cedar Hill last Friday with an ace on the 15th . . . Don Gowan won low gross honors with a 76 but the winners of the Walton Cup, a two-man handicap competition for Glen Meadows members, were Ed Bailey and John Brown, with a net 138 . . . George Russell scored 83-20 — 63 to finish two shots ahead of Bill Hazel, 96-31 — 65, in the Galt Cup test at Oak Bay . . . James Petterson won the McCall Trophy, an 18-hole test for Uplands juniors . . . Because of conflict with the CPGA tournament in Toronto, the CFAX-Metro Toyota tournament will avoid the Labor Day weekend this year . . . It's being moved to the Aug. 25-26 weekend.

Jets' Outburst Sinks Nordiques

QUEBEC (CP) — Winnipeg Jets scored five goals in the second period and went on to defeat Quebec Nordiques 6-3 in the first game of their best-of-seven World Hockey Association semi-final series Monday night.

Bob Guindon led the Jets with two goals and one assist, while Lyle Moffat, Rich Preston, Morris Lukowich and Willy Lindstrom added singles. Quebec captain Marc Tardif scored two goals for the Nordiques and Bob Fitchner had one before a crowd of 8,539 at the Coliseum.

The second game in the series will be played here Wednesday night.

Garry Smith went all the way in goal for Winnipeg, facing 31 shots, while Richard Brodeur and Jim Corsi split the netminding chores for Quebec and faced 30 shots.

Jets enjoyed a 6-2 lead after their second-period outburst, and Fitchner scored the only goal of the third period at 18:16 when he broke in alone after a pass from Paul Baxter.

The teams exchanged goals 29 seconds apart to create a 1-1 tie through the first period. Moffat deflected in a shot from the blue line by Kim Clackson at 17:10 to give the Jets a 1-0 lead, but the Nordiques came right back when Tardif hit with a slap shot from the faceoff circle after Fitchner won a draw in the Winnipeg zone.

Winnipeg took a 2-1 lead at 2:25 of the second period as Preston was set up in the slot by Lindstrom to beat Brodeur with a low shot to the glove side.

Guindon gave the Jets a 3-1 lead with an unassisted goal at 4:16 on a shot from the blue line. Brodeur got a piece of the puck, but it slipped into the net behind him.

Lukowich took a pass at centre ice from Terry Ruskowski and broke in alone to score at 11:06. Brodeur went down on the play as Lukowich skated across the front of the net and slipped the puck over the netminder.

Guindon picked up his second goal of the game at 13:53 when he was left alone in front of the Quebec net to deflect a pass home, putting the Jets up 5-1 and bringing Corsi in to replace Brodeur in the Nordiques net.

Tardif cut it to 5-2 when he scored his second goal on a slap shot from just inside the blue line, but Lindstrom gave the Jets another four-goal lead when he found himself alone and converted a rebound at 18:12.

Shutout String By Islanders

COQUITLAM — It was shutouts all the way for both Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association representative sides at a British Columbia junior team selection tournament here at the weekend.

Players at the tourney were being watched for the provincial camp in May when the B.C. senior, junior and Western Canada teams will be picked.

Island I scored two victories, beating Vancouver I 3-0 and South Okanagan 5-0, and played to scoreless draws with Mid-Island and Burnaby I.

Janet Ruest, Dana Harpam and Linda Shiplack scored against Vancouver while Cynthia McAlpine, Sue Chowen, Cathy Cavin, Harpam and Shiplack counted against South Okanagan.

Island II scored wins over Vancouver II (9-0), West Vancouver (3-0) and North Okanagan (3-0).

Trish Sherring led the attack against Vancouver II with five goals while Chris Monaghan added two and singles were contributed by Kerry Hodgkinson and Teresa Fanning.

Alison Breaks Two Records

SEATTLE — Alison Noble broke two meet records while winning three races and leading Victoria Flying "Y" Swim Club to a strong showing at the Seattle Marlins invitational swim meet at the weekend.

The 18-year-old set new marks while winning the 100-yard backstroke in 1:04.5 and the 200-yard freestyle in 2:01.4. She added a victory in the 50-yard freestyle and managed a second in the 100-yard freestyle.

Representatives of the "Y" won a total of 22 medals — eight firsts, nine seconds and five thirds.

Rachel Addison placed first in the eight-and-under 50-yard butterfly, took seconds in the 50 backstroke, 50 freestyle and 100 individual medley and placed third in the 50 backstroke. Maria Smythe won third in the 50 backstroke and 50 freestyle in the same age bracket.

Jeanne Helgeson won the 50 freestyle and finished third in the 50 butterfly for 11 and 12-year-olds while Holly Addison was runner-up in the backstroke.

Boyd Grealy won the 11 and 12 50 freestyle, picked up seconds in the 100 freestyle and 50 backstroke and placed third in the 50 butterfly and 100 breaststroke.

Burned Driver Still Critical

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Auto race driver Larry Brandon, 32, of Tucson, remained in critical condition in hospital today with second and third-degree burns over 90 per cent of his body suffered in a four-car crash in the Western World Sprint Car Championship race at Manzanita Speedway.

Jerry McCurdy, a Phoenix driver, also was in hospital but was reported in stable condition with burns over 10 per cent of his body.

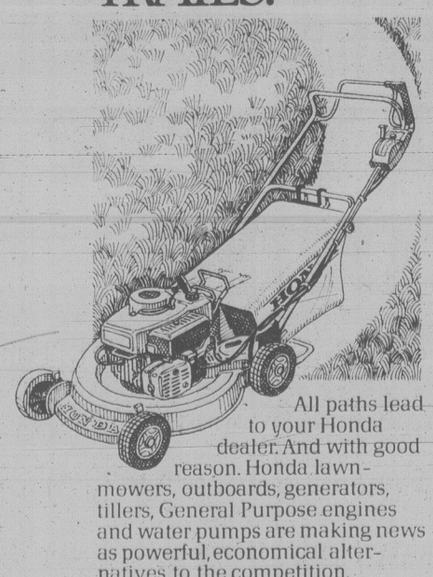
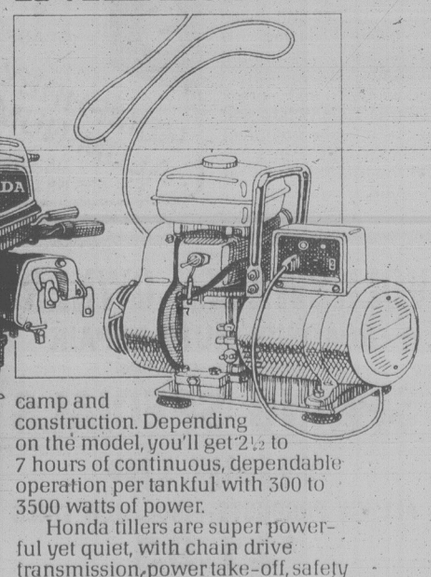
BLAZING TRAILS.
MAKING WAVES.
GENERATING INTEREST.





All paths lead to your Honda dealer. And with good reason. Honda lawnmowers, outboards, generators, tillers, General Purpose engines and water pumps are making news as powerful, economical alternatives to the competition.

That's because at the heart of every Honda power product is the world famous Honda engine. But we don't stop there. All major parts are Honda parts. Unlike some other manufacturers.

The result: maximum efficiency, reliability and long life.

Take our lawnmowers. Our exclusive Roto-Stop® clutch system* provides additional safety by allowing you to stop the blade in seconds, without stopping the engine.

The cast aluminum deck is specially designed to create the utmost suction for cleaner cutting. And yet, they're surprisingly easy to operate.

Honda 7.5 hp and 10 hp outboards are equally outstanding. We offer the only 4-stroke water-cooled engines in Canada. Using regular gas, they require no oil mixing. Very efficient. Very clean. Very quiet. Very dependable.

Honda portable generators are great for home, cottage, farm, camp and construction. Depending on the model, you'll get 2½ to 7 hours of continuous, dependable operation per tankful with 300 to 3500 watts of power.

Honda tillers are super powerful yet quiet, with chain drive transmission, power take-off, safety clutch and folding handle.

Finally, there are our General Purpose engines and water pumps.

Short Price In Feature

VANCOUVER (CP) — Barbie Baby returned the shortest win price of the season at Exhibition Park when she scored a three-quarter-length victory in the feature event Monday night.

The six-year-old mare, owned by the American Country Western Stable, returned $3, $2.40 and $2.30 after defeating five rivals in the 6½-furlong event for fillies and mares.

The exactor for Barbie Baby and Ask the Fleet returned $8, also the smallest of the year.

Jockey Ken Gold was taken to hospital following the sixth race when his mount, Floating Power, broke a left foreleg in the run to the first turn. Gold fell to the track but preliminary examination showed he did not break any bones.

'Too Late' for Return

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The six Championship Auto Racing Teams barred from the Indianapolis 500 want very much to enter the May 27 race, but CART president Pat Patrick says nothing will ever get him back into the U.S. Auto Club.

"There's no way I'd ever go back to USAC now, after the way they treated us," said Patrick, who has demanded an explanation for USAC's rejection of the six CART teams, totaling 19 entries.

Joe Cloutier, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway president, said he was preparing a reply.

"It's too late now" for CART to rejoin USAC, Patrick said in a telephone interview from his office in Jackson, Mich., Monday. "We thought we had a deal last week. They made us a proposal which we thought was acceptable. When they left us, we thought everything was fine. Then I got a telegram from (USAC president Dick) King that our entry (for the 500) had been denied. It was hard to believe."

USAC, which claims it has sole authority to accept or reject entries for the 500, said in its telegram to the six CART owners that the entries were turned down because they were "not in good standing" with USAC.

Patrick sent his telegram to Cloutier on Saturday night, and he set a 5 p.m. deadline Monday for Cloutier to reply or "... we will be compelled to resort to our available remedies."

He did not say what those remedies might be.

Patrick said Monday he had not received the reply, but he said the strict deadline was "no big thing. I just wanted to put the time thing on it so it wouldn't drag on forever."

Cloutier said earlier on Monday he intended to reply.

Waltrip Keeps NASCAR Lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip, third to Richard Petty and Buddy Baker in the Virginia 500, maintained his lead in the NASCAR standings.

Waltrip now has 1,487 points, giving him 86 points more than Bobby Allison, who finished fourth in the race on Martinsville Speedway. Petty, who Sunday collected his first win on a speedway less than a mile in length since 1975, is fourth with 1,299.

Cale Yarborough is third with 1,308 points through nine events of the 31-race schedule.

Benny Parsons has 1,244 for fifth place, rookie Joe Millikan has 1,242, Donnie Allison has 1,224, Dale Earnhardt has 1,216 points, D.K. Ulrich has 1,131 points and Richard Childress has 1,090.

While Waltrip continues to lead in the money-won column, Baker became the fifth driver to top the $100,000 mark on the year. Waltrip has earned $154,870, followed by Petty with $147,615, Bobby Allison with $124,605, Yarborough with $106,665, Baker $105,805, Donnie Allison with $86,515, Earnhardt $69,050, Millikan $63,210 and Parsons with $40,110.

Barbarians Trip Visitors

Barbarians topped Aversychan 15-9 in the exhibition match.

Colin McCartney and Barry Woods each scored a try for Barbarians, who face St. Michael's University School in the Howard Russell Cup final at 4 p.m. Friday at the University of Victoria. Nick Aleksenko kicked a penalty goal and two converts for the balance of Oak Bay's points.

RCMP Man Unaware Drug Payoff in Canadian Waters

An RCMP drug investigator testified Monday he knew there was to be a payoff in connection with a scheme to import $20 million worth of marijuana last year but said he was unaware money was to change hands in Canadian waters.

Staff Sgt. George Hawkes, in charge of the the RCMP's Victoria drug section, gave evidence at the trial of five men accused of conspiracy to import marijuana.

Police and armed forces intercepted ships alleged to have taken part in the landing of 13.63 tons of the drug near Tofino last July.

Hawkes was questioned by lawyer William Deverell, representing John Mobley Doss, 25, a former Newfoundlander, who has elected jury trial.

Hawkes agreed with Deverell that the drug scheme involved an arranged delivery orchestrated by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, with whom there had been police strategy meetings in Mexico and Seattle.

Hawkes said he knew two payments involving the captain of one ship had been made in Mexico and in Seattle and that about $40,000 was still to be paid, but he was unaware at the time that this happened after the contraband vessel entered Canadian waters.

He also confirmed that the plan was not to arrest the captain or crew of the ship Toernyn unless contraband was found aboard.

Canadian police responsibility in the matter began the morning of July 14, although the RCMP had been in close contact with the DEA for weeks previously.

Deverell asked whether Hawkes authorized the payoff, an amount given in earlier evidence as $140,000. Hawkes said this was a senior RCMP officer's role.

The jury and Judge Peter Millward heard the last two of 11 tape recorded telephone calls introduced as evidence. These two were alleged to contain the voice of Doss, of Dillon, Colo., who also was identified as Richard Andrews.

He is charged along with Garth Clarence Vincent Joseph Sexton, 28, of Vancouver; Ronald Cecil Spurrell, 31, of Surrey; Frederick Charles Scott, 28, of Vancouver; and Frank Piersanti, 28, an American.

Each also is charged with importing marijuana between April 1 and July 16, 1978, and possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

Others named as conspirators in the indictment are Neil Maxwell Kennedy, Terrance Gerard Trainor, Kevin Gerard Gushue, Robert Sherman Miller, Gordon Barlow Tait, Frederick MacKintosh Tait, Allen Valenti, Patrick Joseph Murphy, Melville Douglas Balfour, Jillian Penney, Vicki Hann, Nilo Batista, Maurice Pereira and Edwin Floyd Terry, also known as Philip Stanley Ward.

Sgt. Ronald Orser of St. John's, Nfld., RCMP, after hearing the last two tapes, said he recognized the voice of the man known to him for a number of years as Richard Andrews, who now answers to the name of Doss. Orser pointed to Doss in the prisoner's box.

The tapes were alleged to have been made when the RCMP intercepted telephone calls at the Chateau Victoria on June 19, 1978. Orser said Doss was the person called and placed the call in the second conversation.

Before The Judge

Tommy Ross Jr. is charged in the strangulation death last May 14 of 26-year-old Janice Aili Forbes whose body was found in her Queens Avenue apartment.

Ross was arrested in North Hollywood in December and voluntarily returned to Canada to face the charge.

Michael Harold Jose, 1114 Catherine, is charged with theft over $200, theft under $200, and two counts of possession of stolen property.

Jose was remanded until Wednesday for election of his trial method and plea.

A 25-year-old Esquimalt man spurned the help of duty legal-aid lawyer James Main, elected trial by judge and jury and consented to being remanded in custody until next Monday.

David Michael Henderson, 811 Colville, was charged with breaking and entering the fourth-floor office of Dr. Ben Page, an ear, nose, throat and eye specialist, at 1900 Richmond on Saturday.

Main attempted to speak but was interrupted by Henderson, who rejected Main's services.

William Joseph Suchla, 1083 Jenkins, pleaded guilty to two counts of impaired driving, two more counts of driving while suspended and one count of failing to appear in court. The drinking-driving charges stemmed from incidents July 11 and Nov. 24 last year.

Oslter levied a $750 fine for the first impaired charge, $2,000 on the second and $100 each on the other three charges.

Court was informed Suchla was convicted May 26, 1976, for impaired driving and was fined $350.

Design Clinics Start Wednesday

The Vancouver Island chapter of the Architectural Institute of B.C. is holding a series of free advisory design clinics beginning Wednesday and ending May 17 at the McPherson Theatre.

The clinics will take place each Wednesday and Saturdayfrom 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

A panel of architects will attend each session to help Victorians with any problems they have relating to residential design, planning and renovations.

The institute is also currently sponsoring an exhibit at the theatre, looking at "our built environment."

MDs Keeping Alive Double-Billing Issue

The debate on whether B.C. doctors will double bill is far from over a spokesman for the B.C. Medical Association said today.

Dr. Norman Rigby, executive director of the BCMA, said that negotiations are underway with the government to establish up-dated fee schedules.

But if those negotiations fail to establish a fee schedule satisfactory to the medical association, some form of supplemental billing may be introduced.

His comment came after Premier Bill Bennett said Monday in Campbell River that his government will not allow doctors to follow double billing practices now being used in other provinces.

Bennett also said that no doctors would be opting out of the B.C. Medical Plan.

In other parts of the country doctors have dropped out of medical plans or have begun sending supplemental bills to patients when they felt the provincial contribution didn't provide an adequate fee.

Rigby said the issue of fee schedules in B.C. and the possibility of double-billing "is a question that will be decided by the excellence of the settlement we get with the government."

"In our contract with the government if the fee schedule is unsatisfactory, balanced billing is an option . . . I don't wish to say more than that at this time."

Rigby said that because the fee schedule is under negotiation he is reluctant to comment on the matter.

It is understood that doctors around the province have been sent questionnaires by the BCMA to determine where they stand on the issue.

Under the existing system the province's 3,400 doctors all bill patients according to a set fee schedule contracted between the BCMA and the government.

Buyer Sought For Famed Canoe

VANCOUVER (CP) — The man with the $35,000 hollow log is still looking for a buyer for British Columbia's most famous canoe.

Geordie Tocher has had a few nibbles for the log, which is his beloved Orenda, the canoe he carved from a Douglas fir and sailed to Hawaii last summer.

Tocher has the canoe up for sale so that he can finance a commercial film he made of the voyage.

He made the voyage to prove that Haida Indians could have sailed from the northwest to the South Pacific as long as 1,400 years ago.

Tocher crafted his 12-metre canoe over a 2½-year period and went into debt for about $85,000. Most of the debt has been paid back, but he still needs money for a film venture.

Revenue from the film would finance a second voyage, providing he can borrow the Orenda back from its new owner, he said.

Alert Bay Probe in Public

An inquiry into health care at Alert Bay will be held in public.

Dr.C.F. Ballam, senior hospital consultant with the B.C. Health Ministry, said inquiry will be held as soon as he received assurance it will not prejudice a coroner's inquest into the death of an 11-year-old Indian girl.

The inquest into the Jan. 22 death in St. George's Hospital of Renee Smith was adjourned last Thursday until June 3 after nine nurses called to testify requested they be represented by a lawyer.

Ballam will head the committee to investigate health care in the community.

It will include representatives of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons, the B.C. Health Association and the B.C. Medical Association.

The inquiry was requested by both Indians and white residents of Alert Bay.

Meanwhile, band manager Pearl Alfred said the abrupt inquest adjourment until June had aggravated an already tense situation.

The Conservatives came within a hair's width of forming a government here in 1978 when it lost 17-15 to the Liberals who soon after that lost their leader and found themselves headed into a second election in less than a year.

For MacLean the successful election Monday was not a new campaign but an extension of the last one.

"Premier Campbell ran an excellent campaign but he had an impossible job to do," MacLean said. "He took over the leadership of his party at a time when it was foundering and it would not be reasonable to expect that he would be successful."

Campbell has been the Liberal leader since late last year, and said in an interview Monday night he has no intention of stepping down unless the party pushes him out.

"There's no question that as long as the Liberal party wishes me as their leader, I'm willing to act," he said.

The premier said he will hand over the reins of government to MacLean sometime within the next two weeks and move out of his office into that of the Opposition leader at the historic legislative building here.

While Campbell downplayed the connection between his defeat and the current bid by the federal Liberals to hold onto power, MacLean took a different view.

"It will have a psychological effect at least," MacLean said in an interview. "There are now no provincial Liberal governments left in Canada and that will have a psychological effect on the federal campaign."

This small province has just four MPs, two of them Liberals and the other Conservatives in the last Parliament.

MacLean said he would be spending today trying to relax and plan the initial steps that will be taken by his new administration.

He refused Monday night to give any indication what his priorities will be but he did say he would call the legislature into session at the earliest possible date.

His 2,121-vote margin of victory was more than the total vote garnered by the five-member NDP slate, which was virtually obliterated in the election.

conclusions I already had in my mind," Bennett said.

"We set up this committee of the legislature, the first of any British parliament, to look at Crown corporations. We will look at the report certainly and as government we certainly will be interested in its findings."

Bennett said he has not seen the report and was surprised it would be released after the legislature had been dissolved for the May 10 provincial election.

"It belongs to the legislature actually and more properly, in my view, should be given to the members of the legislature to who it is responsible to. It is not a report to government, it is a report to the legislature."

Bennett said he does not think the report will become an issue during the May 10 provincial election campaign, but will be instructive for the next legislature.

He said he agreed with the committee's recommendation that the government should be the final arbiter of Hydro policy. He added the government will decide energy alternatives after Hydro and the B.C. Energy Commission submit their studies.

He also said the directorship of the corporation, which supplies about 90 per cent of the province's electrical power needs, is too small and must represent more regions.

NDP leader Dave Barrett said Friday Hydro is responsible for $1 billion of the province's $6 billion in accummulated debt.

PM to Rule

tinue governing even if Progressive Conservatives win more May 22 election seats than the Liberals.

"This is unacceptable in a democracy," Clark said during a question-and-answer session with students during a campaign stop in that city.

The prime minister was suggesting that voters must elect a majority before a government could be changed.

A spokesman for the Tories, meanwhile, said today that Clark "is instructing officials in Ottawa to accept a proposed format" for a May 13 debate outlined Monday by TV network officials.

Trudeau and Broadbent had agreed from the outset to accept the debate as part of the May 22 federal election campaign.

CBC, CTV and Global TV network plans call for a 90-minute package with one-half hour segments that would allow Trudeau to debate Broadbent, Broadbent to debate Clark and Clark to debate Trudeau.

The package also included questions from journalists and perhaps others, and Clark's representatives originally turned the proposal down because it appeared to be designed mainly for television entertainment.

"It may be good television but it will not put the issues across," Finlay MacDonald, a Halifax broadcaster representing Clark said.

However, Clark's spokesman said during a campaign stop here that the Conservative leader, after reviewing the proposal, decided to accept it.

He planned to raise questions about the amount of time journalists would have to question the leaders. But it was not an objection that would stand in the way of his acceptance, the spokesman said.

TOWN TALK

What's the word for a collection or group of candidates?

A promise? A blather? A handshake?

Whatever, it would be appropriate to use the term in relation to the political aspirations concentrated in a modest-sized professional building at 1020 McKenzie.

Occupying campaign offices on the ground floor are NDP candidates John Mika (provincial election, Saanich-The Islands) and Bob Cameron (federal election, Esquimalt-Saanich) while Cameron's Conservative opponent, incumbent Don Munro, has his office on an upper floor of the same building.

But Cameron would probably deny any suggestion that Munroe is closer to heaven, and reply sagely that he who is higher has further to fall.

Dave Reidie, photo editor of the Edmonton Journal, was in town on vacation this week and took an afternoon off to do a little fly fishing in one of the local lakes. He caught some nice trout and also tied into a bragging-sized smallmouth bass of well over five pounds.

He released the fish and kicked himself all the way back to the truck — where he'd left the cameras he almost always carries with him.

Sign at Tory headquarters, 3937 Shelbourne, reads "Elect Vic Stephens a leader."

Town Talk thinks there should be a comma in there somewhere.

A call to the campaign office of Social Credit candidate and former MLA for Esquimalt Lyle Kahl reveals his signs weren't ordered until after the April 19 nomination meeting when Kahl beat Frank Heinrich to win the nomination.

The pair will be interviewed by Bob Fortune Friday night on CBC-TV on their Dawal engine, a new lightweight concept in internal combustion.

They are working on two new prototypes designed for utility purposes, like lawnmowers, chain saws and light equipment.

They have already attracted the attention of the logging industry, an aircraft manufacturer and the automotive industry and have been advised to develop a diesel version of the Dawal.

Does the B.C. Wildlife Federation know something about the provincial election the rest of us don't?

On the agenda for the Fed's upcoming annual convention is a speech by Environment Minister Rafe Mair.

Mair is to address the gathering at noon on May 11 — the day after the election.

Truth is that the convention agenda was set up long before the election was called. Mair may attend, but he might not be a minister in the government by then.

The Victoria traffic department will purchase a $7,500 time-lapse camera for use at city intersections and in school zones.

"Unfortunately we can't zoom in on licence plates, though," he said. "Otherwise we'd be able to start sending people 8 x 10 glossies with a note saying 'Here you are, caught in the act.' "

Some Discords But Festival in Tune

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

There was, to quote Victoria Music Festival executive secretary Ada English, a certain degree of confusion about day one for the festival's voluntary office staff.

But few people would have guessed it Monday, the 29th successive year, the festival slipped promptly and smoothly into its accustomed complex rhythm.

Halls were fully staffed and problems that rose were quickly resolved.

One major problem had emerged a week ago when it became known that the University of Alberta's Isobel Rolston, one of two piano adjudicators, was ill and would not be able to fulfil her engagement.

Fortunately Dr. Lyell Gustin, an examiner for the Royal Conservatory of Music and former chairman of the music committee of the Saskatchewan Arts Board, was free to replace her.

Throughout the day, dozens of pianists from Grades 1 to 10 presented themselves to adjudicators Mossie Hancock of Saskatchewan and Dr. Gustin for sight reading classes. Entry in a sight reading class of the appropriate grade is mandatory to qualify for a prize or bursary award.

Piano sessions are taking place in First United Church Sanctuary and Fellowship Hall on Balmoral.

The extremely resonant St.Andrew's Kirk Hall on Courtenay is the setting for vocal classes. Winnipeg's Frances Wickberg heard junior singers during the day and was delighted with "so many promising voices" and the excellent training she perceived.

Monday evening one of the major classes — lieder, any voice — produced 11 pairs of performers. Singer and pianist are a duo in lieder singing, the pianist also receiving adjudication. It was disappointing that Gustin's adjudications of the pianists was somewhat aloof and pedantic.

This class as a whole was a revelation of the advances that have come about in the vocal work in this city. Quality throughout was superior and so was the teaching and coaching these singers are receiving.

Sessions follow the same plan at First United and St. Andrew's through today and the balance of the week.

Speech arts with adjudicator Walter H. Kaasa occupy St. Matthias Hall on Richardson at Richmond. Studio dance classes began at Oak Bay Junior Secondary and will continue through the end of the week. The adjudicator is Hilary Cartwright, ballet mistress of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet and a former principal dancer with the Royal Ballet in London.

Tonight's major attraction will be the folk dance honors performance, traditionally a colorful and pulse-stirring event which takes place at Central Junior Secondary starting at 7:30.

SC Threat Of Harm Confirmed

Duncan Mayor Ken Paskin has confirmed reports a prominent Socred party member threatened him with physical harm if he ran for the Conservatives in the May 10 provincial election in Cowichan-Malahat.

Paskin, who declared his candidacy Monday, said the man approached him a couple of weeks ago in the Duncan Legion beer parlor and warned him in front of witnesses that if he ran in the election he'd take a baseball bat to him.

Paskin said he was so flabbergasted he asked the man to repeat the threat so two other persons sitting at the same table could hear it. He did and then walked away.

Paskin said the man came into his fish-and-chips store two or three times earlier and said if he ran, his business would be ruined, he'd be finished politically and would be run out of town.

He also said he received a phone threat along the same lines but the caller wouldn't give his name.

Rumors of the threats had been circulating through the riding for several weeks.

The man who allegedly made the threat was contacted by the Times but would neither confirm nor deny making the statements.

"Any comments made over the past six months were made in the spirit of friendship and jest," he said.

"Frankly, I'm surprised Mayor Paskin has taken them in that light. It's not in my vernacular to say things like that."

Paskin said he originally hadn't planned to run but after the threats changed his mind.

"I'm not easily intimidated," said Paskin, who tips the scales at 250 pounds. "I've never been threatened before in my life."

He said he'd helped the Socreds in the last provincial election but altered his allegiance this time because of his long-standing friendship with Vic Stephens, Conservative party leader.

"Ninety-nine per cent of the Socreds in this riding are okay," he said, "but the other few are very dangerous people. I wouldn't want power to get into their hands."

Brigitte Meagher, a former North Cowichan alderman, echoed Paskin's sentiments.

"There's a small circle of people, I call them the Socred mafia, who are so righteous and so dangerous that I find it really frightening to our whole system of freedom.

That Hot Air Isn't Political

Vancouver Island's climate has suddenly grown a lot warmer and it has nothing to do with the hot air generated in the B.C. and federal election campaigns.

Monday's high temperature of 21 degrees at Victoria international airport was two degrees higher than the previous record for April 23 set in 1977, and also the warmest of the year.

"Records there go back so much further (to 1914, compared with 1941 at the airport) it would have to be a pretty warm day to set any new mark," explained weatherman Norm Dressler.

Nanaimo and Port Alberni both tied their previous date record at 21 degrees while Tofino at 18 was a balmy four degrees above its previous high.

The good news is that there's more to come, thanks to a high-pressure system sitting over the eastern Pacific which is deflecting storms over Alaska and the North West Territories.

Dressler says for the next couple of days temperatures should be in the high range of 18 to 21, dropping to 2 to 4 overnight.

Pre-Parade Added To Victoria Day

There will be a 45-minute pre-parade as an added attraction to the May 21 Victoria Day pageant, the Greater Victoria Festival Society said today.

About 24 vintage cars, several square dance teams, a motorcycle club and upwards of 200 joggers will entertain the early arrivals.

"We are concerned about the long wait for those who come early, especially the children," parade chairman Julian North said.

"It can be uncomfortable sitting on cold pavement with nothing to do. We hope to keep them entertained with the pre-parade."

The main parade, one of the longest in North America, begins at 9 a.m. and runs to 11:30 a.m.

The pre-parade activities will begin shortly after 8 a.m.

Having the Victoria Square Dancers perform in the pre-parade solves two problems, North said.

Besides entertaining the early birds, it lets the dancers show their routines without slowing down the floats and marching bands.

"We think the parade will go more smoothly this year than on previous occasions because of this. There should be very few hold-ups."

In the main parade there will be 30 American bands along with local commercial floats. The organizing committee is looking for more local entries to balance the list.

Entries can be made by phoning 382-3111 by Friday.

Parade theme is Good Times 79.

This will be the first parade organized by the Greater Victoria Festival Society, successor to the Victorian Festival Society.

"Everything is going smoothly, much better than we expected," North said.

The vintage cars will be part of the Tartan Invitational Tour that will be here for a convention.

The joggers are local people in a federal Partisipaction event.

Parade marchers can be anyone from school age up. An attempt to have the age limit raised has been abandoned due to protests by parents.

Prowler Arrested

The man faces breaking and entering charges.

Officers went to the restaurant at 5:30 a.m. after receiving a report of a prowler in the area.

Sidney Mayor Resigning

Sidney Mayor Dick Leigh is resigning from office April 30 because of ill health.

He told council in a letter Monday he has been unable to fulfil his duties as mayor since he was hospitalized March 1 by a cardiac condition.

Search Off In Inlet

Chester Coons, 3971 Cedar Hill Crossroad, went to his summer home on Lawrence Road last Wednesday morning and is believed to have drowned while canoeing.

Cultural Funding Process Criticized

While Greater Victoria residents are satisfied with the artistic and cultural activities available to them, the people that provide those services are unhappy with the funding processes now in existence, according to a federal government study.

The survey, undertaken by the Secretary of State, reveals that over-all, Victorians are pleased with what's available.

But widespread disatisfaction was found when researchers began interviewing the individuals "who through their jobs, financial support or voluntary service had a prime moving force on the cultural life of Victoria," states the report.

"One thing seems clear, and that is that the arts and cultural organizations feel that today's funding structures are ineffective and do not promote artistic growth."

The report said that many individuals were critical of the present funding set-up because "nearly all the arts organizations and the three governments, which provide funds, operate on an ad hoc basis with very little, if any, medium to long-range planning . . . generally everyone reported that daily concerns with lack of funding on any committed long-term basis made planning beyond the next season an impossibility . . .

"The major complaint was that the greatly diversified claims by innumerable organizations and individuals on essentially bureaucratic bodies for a slice of the dwindling pie was inefficient and often resulted in unfair proportioning of the available funds."

The survey, which was undertaken last summer, said that many of the key people involved in the cultural-arts scene feel that government money that supports the arts should be channelled to the various groups through centralized clearing houses with major co-ordinating centres at the regional level.

"This kind of organization would eliminate much of the confusion and misspending which seems to characterize the ad hoc approach of all three government levels today," says the report. "This structure would also improve the accountability of how the tax payers' money was being spent."

On the other hand, adds the report, "in all fairness it seemed to us that what they were suggesting was simply an alternative bureaucracy to replace that which existed. The major difference, of course, is that people more directly involved in the cultural life of Canada would have the final say about where the money should be spent."

But while the organizers have been struggling with funding, Victoria residents have been enjoying the services provided.

The reports states that residents are "satisfied with both the quantity and quality available to them" in the artistic/cultural fields.

The study also states that Victorians are active in providing their own entertainment. For instance, 63 per centof all the age groups surveyed were involved in some form of sporting activity, while 46 per cent were into crafts, 24 per cent played musical instruments, 17 per cent danced, 13 per cent painted and 12 per cent wrote. (That totals more than 100 per cent because many people were involved in more than one activity.)

The survey was based on interviews with 1,000 people.

City Rally Driver Narrowly Beaten

McDonald, of 757 Newbury, finished second in the national Young Drivers of Canada car rally held in 23 cities across the country.

A scant six seconds beat him out of the top prize, a 1979 Honda Hatchback, which went to Liz Cocuzzo, 24, of Kitchener, Ont.

Victoria YDC centre director Harris Bredavs said today the two had exactly the same points following an hour-long road rally.

They were neck-and-neck in most of the skill test trials, until the slalom event. Cocuzzo covered the course in 38 seconds. McDonald took 44 seconds.

Brevas said McDonald, driving a 1966 VW with 135,000 miles on it, was one of 20 drivers who competed in Victoria.

The rally here was sponsored by the Victoria Motor Sports Club.

Second Site Sought

The Greater Victoria School Board decided Monday night to look at a second site for the school district's administrative offices.

By a 5-4 vote, trustees approved a motion calling for an investigation into using the Tolmie School site as an alternative to the Cecelia Road warehouse which trustees had earlier considered an ideal location.

They agreed to spend $3,200 on a feasibility study.

Trustee Winfield Mott argued it may be cheaper in the long run to convert Tolmie School into office space.

The administration offices are now located in the Paul Building on the Camosun College campus off Henderson Road but the college needs room to expand.

Trustee Martin Levin noted the cost of relocating to Cecelia Road has been pegged at $1.2 million and said the board has a responsibility to explore other sites to see if the move can be made for less.

Trustee John Young said the savings could run into tens of thousands of dollars.

"We'll never know how good a bargain Cecelia Road is until we have some other place to compare it to," he said.

But trustees Susan Brice, Mark Fisher, Peter Yorke and Glyn Williams said the administration had examined a number of sites and felt Cecelia Road was best.

"It's a horrible motion," Yorke said.

In other business, the board deferred for two weeks a motion by Mott asking that Campus View School be chosen for a French immersion course. Similar programs are already offered at Willows and Cloverdale elementary schools.

Several trustees said they could not make a decision because they didn't have enough evidence to warrant starting a third immersion course in the district.

Fisher was so incensed by Mott's motion and the lack of information tendered in support that he exploded: "If this goes through, then my participation on the board with respect to planning is finished. You can take it and shove it."

Mott, however, said it is vital for the board to make a decision soon as registration for kindergarten classes begins the end of the month and parents should be aware of the options open to them.

He suggested registration should be postponed until the board has had a chance to examine the need for a third immersion class, but trustees voted him down.

Registration will begin as scheduled on April 30.

This Lady's Long Tresses Are Used for Hanging

NEW YORK — When Marguerite Michele pays a visit to the hairdresser, her dark, hip-length tresses tend to draw compliments.

"Oh, you have pretty hair," the beauticians tell her.

And Miss Michele replies, "You know what I do with my hair?"

Like lots of other women, the 28-year-old Miss Michele brushes her hair every night before bedtime and she shampoos regularly. And, oh yes, one other thing: she hangs by her hair over circus arenas — sometimes at a height of 100 feet — while she juggles fiery batons, twirls plates and performs acrobatics.

"It took me about three years till I could do the whole act," said Miss Michele, who leaves no doubt that tress stress hurts, even though her hair is wrapped around a metal device that is attached to a clip on the end of a cable when she enters the arena.

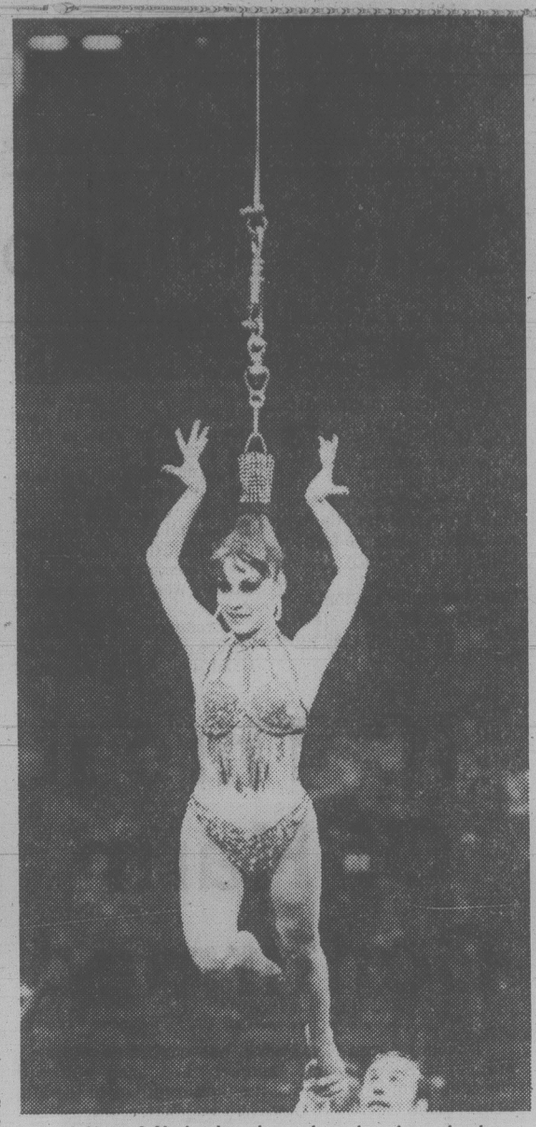
"My grandmother used to do it, maybe 50 years ago," said the five-foot-tall, 100-pound Miss Michele, who comes from a Mexican circus family. But while Grandma could endure the pain of hair hanging for only about half a minute, Miss Michele says she stays hair-borne for 12 minutes in an act that takes her to a height of 20 feet at Madison Square Garden, where she is currently appearing with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

Miss Michele, who said she joined Ringling Brothers last Dec. 28 and is married to Miguel Ayala, a wire walker, first appeared in a circus when she was 13 years old. She performed on the flying trapeze, appeared in a riding act and took part in an aerial ballet before she decided to revive and expand her grandmother's routine.

"She used to go up and take the cape off and toss it," she said. "And I say, 'I'm going to do it different, do something more and stay longer in the air.' "

Gradually Miss Michele lengthened the time she could spend in the air; and when that became less painful, she concentrated on learning to juggle, first on the ground and then while suspended.

"I think hanging by my hair is good for my hair. It stimulates my scalp," she said. What do doctors say? "They say I have a healthy scalp and can do the act for many, many years."



Miss Michele dangles by her hair

A friend noticed another byproduct of hair hanging. "She doesn't have any wrinkles," the friend said. "She says it keeps your skin very tight."

And to the hairdressers who compliment Miss Michele on her hair, she says, "You know what I do with my hair? I hang by my hair."

But it doesn't do any good.

"They never believe what I say," said Miss Michele. "They say, 'I think you are joking.' "

Gout Isn't Status Sign

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Gout, once thought to be the status-symbol disease of the rich, is unfortunately the unpleasant plight of many people in all economic levels.

We're all familiar with the picture of the overweight tycoon, sitting on his overstuffed armchair with one foot elevated on a downy pillow, his large toe encased in mounds of protective bandage. Anyone who has ever suffered with gout knows that there is nothing funny about this picture, or the disease.

Gout is a peculiar disorder and disturbance in the manufacture and the elimination of uric acid. Because of some metabolic disorder, uric acid tends to accumulate more readily in the blood of some people. When that uric acid level becomes high, the joints of the body may be affected. Swelling of the toes, ankle, elbow, shoulder and other joints can occur.

There seems to be some hereditary or family tendency toward gout. People with such a history should be careful about their diet since there are specific foods that tend to increase uric acid in the blood. These foods all contain high amounts of purine, the substance from which uric acid is derived. Among those foods are asparagus, anchovies liver, liver, bran, meat extracts, sweetbreads, gravy, peas and lentils. Alcohol, too, seems to play an important role in this problem.

At first it may seem that there is a great deprivation of foods for gout sufferers. Actually, there are limitless meats, fish and vegetables that are low in purine and therefore do not tend to increase the uric acid formation in the blood.

There is a simple test for the study of uric acid that readily establishes the diagnosis of gout. Once this is determined, dietary restriction and the use of drugs can control the symptoms.

There are now two types of drugs for the treatment and control of gout. One drug, probenecid, is used to encourage the elimination of uric acid from the blood by way of the urine. Another drug is colchicine, which is used particularly for acute, sudden painful episodes of gout. With this drug, the results are very dramatic. Pain and swelling disappear within 24 hours. The drug, of course, is used under the direct supervision of the doctor. Cortisone, too, is used in specific cases.

A new and valuable drug, allopurinol, is extremely beneficial. This drug acts in a very special way. It prevents the formatin of uric acid from the purines in food. In some instances, the drugs that are now available are used in combination with each other for the maximum benefit to gout sufferers.

Once a gouty tendency has definitely been established, the person afflicated with this conditin must always be aware of the possibility that gout can flare up at any time if diet and drugs are neglected.

Canada's $1 Billion Hangover

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A United States expert on alcoholism says Canadians drink so much that the country is suffering a $1-billion-a-year hangover.

David Shay, director of an alcohol treatment centre in Maryland, told a recent seminar that drinking costs Canada $800 million a year for health related problems.

Added to that is $50 million a year for the cost of crimes committed after drinking and $60 million anually for such social problems as child abuse and family court appearances.

Seven to nine per cent of all North American workers have alcohol problems, Shay said.

"And every person with such a problem usually affects four or five others close to him."

Statistics presented at the seminar on alcohol, drugs and the family indicated that the average Canadian guzzles more alcohol than the average person in the U.S., Britain or Sweden. And it's projected that average consumption will double before 1985.

Becoming Occupation

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A University of Wisconsin anthropologist says being a full-time crazy person is becoming an occupation for some people. Sue Estroff, who spent two years living with a group of chronically disabled people to research her doctoral thesis, says she found that because the society supports people who admit their disabilities, many "earn their living by being different."

Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Saul Levine, psychiatrist; Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

DEAR YOUTH CLINIC: Why is sexual permissiveness and premarital sex such a big thing these days? Why are so many teens becoming pregnant? Why is a male virgin so undesirable? What's worng with a few old-fashioned morals?

I am an 18-year-old male with great looks, a good personality, a mature outlook and what I consider a normal sex drive. I have been going around with a very special, very attractive girl of the same age and we have not had intercourse. My reason is simple and valid but apparently not good enough for other males. I love my girlfriend!

If guys really cared about their female partners why do they insist on having intercourse when it risks the health and well-being of that person so close to them?

A couple can still be active without "going all the way." If marrying a virgin is so important to men why don't they work at contributing towards their goal?

People feel that birth control methods make things acceptable but even then the methods are unreliable or may prove to be hazardous. Is it worth hurting that someone close to you for a few moments of satisfaction?

DEAR DR. LEVINE: I am 23 years old, and I constantly tell lies. Until just recently I felt everything was all right. I actually believed the lies I told but now things have seemed to backfire. I was found out and I was confronted with it. My biggest problem is that I have been telling these lies for so long that I can't seem to distinguish the lies from the truth and I am afraid it's going to happen over and over again. Please tell me what I can do. I am afraid that it's something beyond my control.

ANSWER: Unfortunately, lying is becoming an extremely common fact of life. (Read Lying by Cecily Bok). We all use subterfuge, duplicity, dishonesty in varying degrees. There are some who believe that the end justifies the means, that if a "good" result unfolds, then the lie is acceptable. We are often less than honest with each other — our friends, family — to protect them from painful truths.

Lying is not unusual in young children. It enables the development of fantasies, "showing off." In young adolescents, lying is used to appear "with it," to keep up a facade with the peer group. And we all have used the term "white lies' to describe minor untruths that we've told, for better or worse. The term "pathological liar" should only be used for those who are truly out of control, and usually have a serious underlying disorder.

The danger, as you are obviously aware, is that lying can "take over" the personality. Deception becomes self-deception. Not only do you have difficulty separating what is truth and what is not, but lies have a way of building on each other until you have a shaky superstructure of fantasy, which can crumble.

In your situation, it sounds like you may be on the verge of this point. You say that it's beyond your control, and if that is the case, then you'll need some help. But you've written me a very honest letter — not an easy thing to do. Try that in your daily life. When you feel yourself about to tell a lie, try the opposite alternative, even if it hurts. See what happens to you and others, if you are honest as much as possible. You may be pleasantly surprised.

If this proves to be impossible, or if the results are too painful, you would be wise to consult with a counsellor or psychotherapist, who can help you understand why you lie constantly and what you can do about changing. Judging by the tone of your letter, I am optimistic that you'll overcome this problem.

DEAR DR. POWELL: I am a young girl with a very embarrassing problem. During my childhood I used to be a tomboy. I've got scars all over my body. I'd like to know how I can get rid of these scars. I heard that a dermatologist can do the job, but how much would it cost, and how could I get in touch with him? I'd like to know how old you have to be to see a dermatologist.

ANSWER: Scars result from injury to the skin. If the injury has gone completely through the skin and has destroyed some of the deep layers of skin, healing will result in a scar. In time the scar will fade and be less noticeable but it will always remain. Injuries such as deep cuts or severe burns will leave scars.

However, most injuries which occur during childhood do not destroy the deep layers of the skin so they heal without leaving serious scars. You must have been some tomboy and had some rough friends to have left your body covered with scars. It is true that scars can be improved or removed by several means used by either plastic surgeons or dermatologists. To remove the scars will depend on how deep the scar is.

Some young people who have had severe acne may be left with scars on their face. These can be improved by various techniques used by dermatologists. Deeper scars which result from deep cuts or deep burns, can be treated and be made less obvious.

These can be treated by cutting out the scar an resuturing it so that the scar is less disfiguring. Cosmetic surgery for disfiguring scars is usually only done when the scar is on the face or when the scar interferes with the function of a part of the body. It is possible for you to see a dermatologist and your age has nothing whatever to do with it. You can arrange an appointment through your own doctor or through a clinic but you must be referred by a doctor.

You would have to discuss his fees with him. Since I have not seen your scars I cannot guess at the type of treatment you require or the extent of the treatment. I am sure that something can be done to make your scars less conspicuous.

DEAR DR. COTTER: I am a 13-year-old girl. A guy in my class is really great, at least I thought so until I found out he doesn't like me the way I like him. The reason is we're not the same religion, and I never thought that was the way he is.

I'd like to know if there's a way to get him to change his mind about religion. I don't think it's him as much as his parents but it hurts me to see him in class knowing he doesn't like me because of our religions. I want us to be closer than just friends.

ANSWER: If he thinks it matters, then it matters to him, no matter what you think. You have to accept that.

It is true that most kids his age accept their parents' view on religion, but this may be true of you too.

Yes, it hurts that you can't have your own way and get him to feel the way you feel. But that is good because you are prevented from overcoming him with possessiveness. The hurt, in this case is a sign that you are trying to do something to change him that you should not.

I suggest you just go on liking him in spite of this difference. By respecting him you may encourage him to respect you more.

A Lifetime of Use In Her 27 Years

Any spare time she has during the week she works with stained glass, plays a guitar and also the piano. She lives in an apartment filled with books, records, macrame ornaments, plants and the comfortable clutter that is the hallmark of today's youth.

Yet she has packed more usefulness to humanity into the past nine years than most people do in a lifetime.

That, in a nutshell, gives you a picture of Judith Miriam Armstrong, named by City Council of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority as its 1979 Lady of the Year.

She will be honored and receive the title officially at the sorority's Founder's Day banquet and rituals ceremony in the University of Victoria's Craigdarroch Hall next Monday.

From high school days Judith Armstrong has been devoted to helping the handicapped.

She first became interested as a volunteer at a 1968 Easter Seal camp on Lake Cowichan. Two years later she spent some time as a live-in sitter for a family where there was a handicapped child and that increased her interest.

In 1972 she was named Okanagan region recreation and youth co-ordinator for the B.C. Association for the Mentally Retarded, with headquarters in Vernon.

The following summer she went down to Ontario and worked at Guelph resident camps for the mentally retarded. The summer after that she was in Squamish assisting handicapped children in a program for B.C.'s mental health department.

This was followed in 1975 by a stint as recreation director at the G.R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children.

Judith was organizer back in 1971 of the first Operation Trackshoes for Vancouver Island and lower mainland handicapped people, and she is still the co-ordinator of this yearly sports event.

That first year there were 100 entrants. Today, Trackshoes has grown in popularity to such an extent a core group of 12 to 15 volunteers, headed by Ms. Armstrong, meets regularly the year around to plan details.

This year's event June 15-17 at Centennial Stadium on the UVic campus is expected to draw 700 or more entrants and the small year-around committee will be joined by 300 extra volunteers to ensure its success.

During the past 2½ years, Judith has been one of two part-time co-ordinators for a special project, funded by the ministry of human resources.

Through this program efforts have been made to integrate the physically handicapped into every kind of leisure activity enjoyed by the non-handicapped, to give them an opportunity to join handicraft classes, to go shopping and to dances, attend the theatre and to become involved in every phase of social life.

In this connection Judith has taken many handicapped people on various outings — some in wheelchairs.

She accompanies two deaf children to Sunday School each week and interprets the program for them in hand-sign language.

There is also a regular musical get-together for handicapped children that she leads as part of the Cedar Hill Centre recreation program.

ARMSTRONG
. . . Lady of the Year

And to round out her busy schedule she has, on occasions, served on the Crisis Line.

Ms. Armstrong was born in Victoria in June, 1952. She attended Norfolk House School, graduated from Oak Bay High and has completed her second year toward a university degree at Camosun College.

That she has been named Lady of the Year for 1979 she accepts with a dignity far beyond her years.

What makes the honor very special in her thinking, however, is that her mother, the late Miriam Armstrong, was a long-time member of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority in this city.

Postscript — The Lady of the Year program, sponsored by 16 chapters through the City Council of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, is planned to focus attention on the important contribution women are making in community work, in business, government and in education.

Names and qualifications are submitted to the membership by a nominating committee and the winner is chosen by secret ballot.

Hollywood's Seamy Other Side

Scott's World

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — On the other side of the bright glamor, sparkling romances, and big bucks of Hollywood are the shady deals, casting couches and seamy infighting that accompanies the production of almost every movie.

One of the most incisive observations of the cut-throat business and social rites of the film colony has been written by screenwriter Eleanor Perry in her roman a clef novel, Blue Pages.

The title refers to the rewrite pages of a movie shooting script and what goes into the making of them after producer, director, stars and financial backers get through with their personal contributions.

The star fattens his part. The director adds a character to accommodate a strumpet with whom he is sleeping. The producer's wife, who fancies herself a writer, insists on plot changes.

Anyone who has been around the Hollywood jungle for a few years can pick out the real life counterparts of almost every character in the book although author Perry — with a great big grin — says they are all fictional.

The book apparently is autobiographical. The heroine is a screen writer who is married to a director younger than herself. Together they produce a couple of hit films. The director dumps his wife for another woman.

Coincidence or not, that is the story of Eleanor and Frank Perry.

David and Lisa was their first hit. It was nominated for an Academy Award, followed by Diary of a Mad Housewife and The Swimmer.

After the Perrys divorced, Eleanor wrote for other producers and directors, most of whom are the scum of the earth if Eleanor's book reflects even a scintilla of accuracy.

Altogether Eleanor has written 10 screenplays which were produced, six of them with Perry. She's authored nine others that never made it to the screen. Her credits include eight TV movies and a pair of Emmys, for The House Without a Christmas Tree and A Christmas Memory, the latter with Truman Capote.

More than anything else, Eleanor's novel-memoir is a revelation of the miserable estate of the screenwriter in Hollywood, low man or woman on the totem pole financially and socially.

Writers are often treated as creative pariahs by illiterate producers and drug-oriented directors, self-appointed "auteurs," anointing themselves as renaissance men if not saviors of the "cinematic art."

What saves Blue Pages from being a profound tragedy is Eleanor's lively sense of humor which peels off layers of tinsel from the phonies encountered in her book — and in every studio in town.

"I'm sure a lot of people in Hollywood will recognize themselves," Eleanor said, smiling. "But I insist my characters are fictional."

She then reeled off the real life counterparts of almost every weirdo in the book.

Eleanor, in her 50s, has few illusions about Hollywood but she's not altogether cynical either. She still has the capacity to fall in love — almost always with the wrong guys.

She saves her real cynicism for the process of filmmaking.

"Writers are the women of the film industry," she said. "By that I mean they have the fewest rights and are the most put-upon. Even the best paid, most famous writers are just employees of producers and directors. Money has the clout in this business, not talent.

"Every writer who works in Hollywood is at the mercy of the wives and girlfriends of the producers, directors and stars.

"In my case, being a woman is an additional hindrance. The men in this town don't see us as intellectual equals. And my age has something to do with it. I have gray hair which intimidates a lot of people."

Eleanor, a stylish New Yorker, took two years off to write her novel which she found a great deal more difficult that turning out a scenario. The book was far more personal than anything she has written for the screen.

"I decided to let it all hang out," she said. "Blue Pages is very close to me and enormously revealing. I didn't try to hide anything, no matter what people in this town might think.

"The woman in this book is very much myself. She's a survivor. She doesn't go to pieces or get drunk or take drugs when her personal life falls apart. She survives with a sense of humor."

Eleanor said she would love to write a screenplay based on the book.

"It has all the elements of a good movie," she said. "It's a love story that starts at the top and plummets to the pits."

FM Regulations Changing: Camu

TORONTO (CP) — FM radio stations may have more prime time commercials and less repetition of chart-topping records this fall, the chairman of the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission said Monday.

Pierre Camu said he hopes new regulations allowing the changes will be in effect by the end of the year.

He told reporters at the opening session of the two-day annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters the CRTC discussed its proposals to change FM radio policy during a private meeting with the association earlier in the day.

Association president Ernie Steele told reporters than in addition to new FM regulations, the association discussed with the CRTC the possibility of a public hearing into television programming "to find out more about what the public wants from their Canadian broadcasting system."

Camu and Steele also said both sides agreed that handing jurisdiction of cable television systems over to the provinces would create problems and should not be done. The transfer was discussed in January at the federal-provincial constitutional conference.

Camu said the CRTC will hold a public hearing in the fall on the changes to FM radio regulations.

Under the changes, broadcasters would be able to concentrate commercials in prime time, allowing them to make more money, instead of spacing commercials throughout six-hour time blocks as required under current regulations.

Broadcasters licensed for both AM and FM radio stations would be permitted to broadcast programs simultaneously under certain circumstances, such as election coverage.

The commission would reduce to 18 from 21 the number of times FM stations may repeat a recording during any one week.

In an address later, former CRTC chairman Harry Boyle criticized a suggestion that provincial governments be allowed to engage in general broadcasting.

The suggestion was made by the consultative committee on telecommunications, headed by John Clyne, former justice of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

Provincial governments now are allowed to operate only educational broadcasting stations.

Boyle said current regulations guard against the temptation of provincial governments to use broadcasting as a defence against media criticism.

Research Job Plan Extended

OTTAWA (CP) — A program to create permanent research jobs has been extended for a year, the department of science and technology announced Monday.

The Scientific and Technical Employment Program now will run to March, 1980, and cost an additional $5.9 million.

The program is aimed at the creation of jobs in the private sector for recent graduates. In the first year of operation about 450 jobs were created, the department said.

Clothing Giant Charged With Acts Against Union

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — One of Canada's largest clothing manufacturers and distributors and two of its officials were charged Monday with conspiracy to break labor laws and disrupt a union organizing campaign.

A spokesman for Peel Regional Police said the charges against Dylex Ltd. were laid after a joint investigation by Metropolitan Toronto and Ontario Provincial Police.

The company, its marketing director, Lewis Pearsall, 58, of Toronto, and manager Gunter Leverenz, 44, of Burlington, Ont., are charged with conspiring to commit a unfair labor practice by causing a fight that led to the dismissal of two employees active in organizing 175 Dylex workers under the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers.

Pearsall and Leverenz also are charged with conspiring to commit a lawful act — dismissal of employees — by unlawful means, "namely by assaulting these employees."

Also charged are Centurion Investigation Ltd. and its former president Daniel McGarry, 45, Centaur Temporary Help Ltd. and Mark-Anada Associates Ltd., all of Toronto.

In July, 1977, the Ontario Labor Relations Board certified the clothing workers' union to represent Dylex warehouse employees after the union lost a certification vote 145 to 25. The board ruled that the company had deliberately played on employees' fears for their job security and in doing so had affected the vote.

However, the union was unable to assemble a negotiating committee to seek a first contract and earlier this year it was decertified.

Dylex showed a profit of more than $12 million for the year ending Feb. 3, 1979, on sales that topped $329 million.

The clothing conglomerate operated 458 men's, women's and family clothing stores at the end of 1977 under such names as Tip Top, Fairweather and Thrifty's. Among its various manufacturing operations are Posluns Sportswear and National Knitting.

Rescue Boat Gets Rescued

OTTAWA (CP) — "I've never been so humiliated in all my cotton-pickin' life. Thanks a lot fellas."

The embarrassed speaker was Sgt. Denis Lacroix of the police aquatic rescue squad and he was thanking two men he was supposed to be rescuing from the Ottawa River.

Police said they received an alarm that two canoeists were stranded on a island after their craft was swamped while trying to shoot the rapids.

The police powerboat was called for its first rescue of the year. But the motor wouldn't start. They finally got it going after borrowing battery booster cables from one of many onlookers on the scene.

Their troubles were not over. The motor conked out again when the police craft reached the shivering canoeists, Lyle Davis, 24, and Gary Benjamin, 19.

The drenched canoeists had a chance to get warmed up though. They helped police paddle the rescue boat back to shore, their canoe in tow.

Dredging Trial Snags Persist

TORONTO (CP) — Jurors in the 14-month-long dredging fraud-conspiracy trial had a question for the judge Monday: If a person receives a payoff from a conspiracy, without knowing of the existence of the conspiracy, is he a party to that conspiracy?

The jurors' written question came during the second day of their deliberations. It took an hour to assemble the 21 defence and prosecution lawyers.

And while defence lawyers argued what the judge's answer should be, a sheriff's officer reported to he court that one of the jurors was ill and the jurors wanted to return to their hotel.

The four women and seven men on the jury have been sequestered since Associate Chief Justice William Parker finished his 11-day charge April 9. But the judge instructed jurors not to begin deliberations until he had heard defence and prosecution objections to his instructions.

Parker heard 11 days of objections, then called the jurors back to the courtroom Saturday to given them another 16 minutes' instructions, adding that they could begin their deliberations and set their own schedule.

The judge interrupted defence lawyers Monday to say jurors were objecting that they couldn't return to their hotel after being told they could set their own hours for deliberations. They had said they would not sit past 5 p.m.

On trial in Ontario Supreme Court are 11 dredging company executives and nine of their firms, charged with defrauding the Ontario and federal governments of at least $4.8 million by rigging bids on seven dredging contracts between 1967 and 1974.

New Cache Of Dynamite

EDMONTON (CP) — City police found about 14 kilograms of dynamite in a green plastic bag on top of a garbage can behind an Edmonton house Monday. A police spokesman said the dynamite was in good condition and was safely disposed of at Canadian Forces Base Namao.

It's the second discovery of dynamite in recent months. About 22 kilograms were discovered under an Edmonton house.

S. America N-Plant Plea

"We already have an energy crisis in many Latin American countries," Andre Gilbert of the Canadian consulting firm of SNC International Ltd. told the Canadian-Association-Latin America conferemnce. "The effects are disastrous today and will be more so tomorrow, especially for countries which do not have oil reserves."

Gilbert said conventional energy supplies are rapidly running out and alternative forms of energy such as solar, wind or tidal power are at least 15 years away.

He said studies have shown safe nuclear energy could be economically feasible as a transitional energy source until these alternative sources are developed.

Opening lead - king of clubs.

Good trump management is often the key to successful dummy play. To lose control of trumps may well prove fatal, and that is why the defenders so often continue to lead a suit that forced declarer to ruff.

Thus, West's method of attack early in this deal was routine. He led his three top clubs and South was forced to trump the third one. Declarer now decided not to bother with a trump finesse. He therefore played the ace of hearts and continued with the jack.

As a result, West suddenly found himself in the driver's seat. He ducked the jack of hearts and, with East showing out, South realized that he could no longer make the contract.

If he continued with the nine of hearts, his last trump, West would take his king and play a fourth round of clubs. Whether dummy ruffed this club or the next one, South would eventually go down two. If South abandoned trumps and led his winners, he would go down one.

Had declarer played more carefully, he would have made the contract. After ruffing the club at trick three, South should have attempted to guard against a 4-1 trump division.

He could have done this by playing the jack of hearts, not the ace, at trick four. If West takes the king, there is nothing he can do to stop the contract. If West refuses to take the jack, South continues with the nine. Again West is helpless, whether or not he takes his king.

If West ducks the nine also, South cashes his ace of trumps and plays his spade and diamond winners. West scores his king of hearts, but nothing else. Maintaining control over trumps does the job regardless of how West decides to defend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Efforts pay dividends. Older persons are willing to make room for you. Accept challenge, responsibility. Love and marriage could be part of scenario. Cancer, Capricorn persons figure prominently — so does the number 8.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Service, basic issues, finishing tasks, dealing with dependents are all on the agenda. Keep health, nutrition, diet resolutions. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Heated dispute is resolved in your favor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Create your own style, strive for originality, independence and new approaches to current situation. Personal magnetism becomes a major factor — members of opposite sex are drawn to you. Leo, Aquarius individuals figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Collect needed information: you have rare opportunity to correct past mistakes and build on solid base. Adhere to facts — don't base actions on what might or could be. Older individual may make "sympathy appeal". Stick to your own principles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Ideas abound; be selective. Accent on relatives, short trips, special messages which have direct bearing on your immediate future. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure in scenario. In matters of speculation, stick with number 3.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — March 20): Shore up personal defences against inflation. Genuine bargain is available if your search is intelligent and persistent. Someone may be trying to sell you proverbial bill of goods. Know it and tuck in your chin. Good money news could be delivered by an Aquarian.

IF APRIL 25 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have "sensational" opportunity to begin anew in 1979, a year which features fresh starts, added independence and love. July could be your most significant month of this period. You make a major domestic or lifestyle adjustment in May. You are sensuous, psychic and your own worst critic. Pisces, Virgo individuals play important roles in your life. You are spiritual as contrasted to religious in the orthodox sense. You are able to perceive when something of significance is to occur in your life. You succeed when you follow your instincts. You fail when you bury your intuition with too much "rational thinking." You make money with Gemini, confide secrets to Aries, make career advances with Aquarius and love to Virgo. In June, you will make some exciting discoveries — about yourself.

309 IN MEMORIAM

"He had a nature you could not help loving,
And a heart that was purer than gold;
And to those who knew him and loved him,
His memory will never grow cold."
Dear Dad and Grandpa, we miss you so very much.
Colleen and Ron, David, Sheila and Tim.

Bradley - In loving memory of a dear Husband, Father, and Grandfather, Herbert A. Bradley who passed away April 24, 1974.
Nothing can ever take away.
Fond memories linger everyday...
Remembrance keeps him dear.
Sadly missed, always remembered, your loving wife-Frances and family.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

Press Talks Stuck

VANCOUVER (CP) — Both sides in the strike-lockout that has left Vancouver without its two daily newspapers for nearly six months have rejected proposals to resume publication while they try to reach a settlement.

Clark Davey, publisher of the evening Sun, said the unions have rejected a proposal to submit to compulsory arbitration and go back to work. He also confirmed reports the company turned down a labor offer to turn the issue of press manning over to a union-management committee.

The main issue in the dispute is the number of pressmen and mail room employees working on a given shift.

Bill Solberg said the pressmen met Sunday and are "100 per cent solid."

The Sun and morning Province have been shut down since Nov. 1 when members of two unions at Pacific Press, which produces both papers, walked out and members of four other unions were locked out.

Solberg said members of his union want a meeting with members in the other five unions to demonstrate their solidarity. There are 1,400 employees at Pacific Press.

But Jim Young, a spokesman for the Newspaper Guild, which represents editorial staff, said the guild will return to its membership for a decision on his union's next move, if the pressmen stand firm.

Solberg said 10 pressmen were brought into the talks to confirm their support for the labor-management committee proposal.

Sight Baffles Ideal For Splitting Garden

GARDENING
jack beastall

Reasons for dividing a garden occupying one or two lots into a number of small areas are many.

One is to create the effect of a much larger property. This is achieved by using suitable sight baffles, such as fences and shrub plantings, which prevent the entire area from being viewed from one spot.

Each area can be developed as a miniature garden in itself. There can be a spring bulb garden, a spring flowering shrub garden, a heather garden, a mid-summer garden, and a garden of fall colors.

Separate areas like this can be most intriguing. Even the garden owner develops a curiosity that compels walking around the sight baffle to see what is on the other side. To the visitor not familiar with the layout, the trip around the garden is exciting and leaves the impression of having travelled around a small park.

The normal baffle layout involves a lot of plants, more than many gardeners may wish to purchase or look after, but the same effect can be obtained if each baffle is designed to serve two purposes.

Besides limiting the view, a baffle can be used to make a micro-climate for growing special plants, either those which need a warm spot or those which require a cool, shaded spot.

A baffle will lessen the damage done by cold winds in winter or protect the small areas from cool winds off the ocean in summer.

A third use for baffles can be for the growing of trailing plants in the minimum of space. Berry fruits on wires can separate the vegetable garden from the outdoor living space; espaliered apples and pears make a remunerative baffle.

The word "baffle" is used instead of "fence" or "hedge", because the latter have different meanings to different gardeners, but a suitably designed wooden fence, a narrow row of hedge material, a trellis of wood or wire on posts, or a planting of compact upright shrubs can serve the same purposes of limiting the area open to view from one position or reducing wind and creating micro-climates.

In a small garden these dividers should not be more than four feet in height if they are to be in good proportion to the size of the lot. Nor should they be elaborate in a way that detracts from the plants being grown. When the construction work serves its purpose without being noticeable the ideal has been accomplished.

Rambling roses, especially the fragrant Albertine, are perfect for training along a dividing barrier, also the climbing hydrangea, Hydrangea petiolaris, with rich brown stems in winter and peeling bark, a pleasant green foliage in summer as a backdrop for other plants, and true hydrangea heads of flowers, the fertile ones like heads of corsage pins ringed by the white petalled sterile flowers.

Excellent effects can be obtained when two or more large flowered hybrid Clematis of different colors or flowering times are allowed to intertwine on a four-foot high trellis. Cut low each spring they make a mass of color below eye level.

Other climbing or trailing plants can be used for good effects. Jasminum nudiflorum for spring with Jasminum "Bee's Pink" for summer; blackberries, loganberries, and similar varieties, or the espaliered fruit trees will give the bonus of their much appreciated fruits.

In frosty areas it is wise to have plants which are leafless in winter to allow sufficient air drainage, also to permit the low-angle winter sun to reach other plants. The bare stems will break the force of winter winds without impeding the air flow.

With simple design and careful positioning, we can create the conditions we need in the garden, enhance its appearance, and have cut flowers and good fruits as a bonus.

Damaged N-Fuel Remains Jammed

The reactor was shut down last Thursday for repairs and an Ontario Hydro spokesman said it probably will not be operating again until after Wednesday.

Station manager H. L. Austman said Monday a fuel bundle, believed to have been defective, lodged in the end of a fitting inside the channel during refuelling April 14.

Earlier, 12 other bundles were pulled from the channel and dumped in the spent fuel bay.

Hydro spokesman Don White said a rod will be inserted into the fuel channel to try to push debris from the bundle on to a scoop to allow removal.

Austman said it is unusual for a bundle to become jammed in the fuel channel. He said the problem will result in changes in the method of refuelling the station, about 40 kilometres southwest of Owen Sound.

Tot a Racer

LEOMINSTER, England (CP) — The country's newest and youngest motorcycle racer is four-year-old Clint Price who travels to bike races throughout England with his father. Although it will be another 12 years before the boy can legally take to the roads, he already has been clocked at almost 80 kilometres per hour.

Map of Alaska Highway Pipeline, already two years late

By ANDREW MALCOLM

WHITEHORSE (NYT) — A huge, multicolored, plastic chart covers one entire lobby wall of the Yukon Territorial Government Building here.

It depicts, in perhaps more detail than required by the average passer-by, a vast array of plans and schedules for the Alaska Highway pipeline, which is to carry natural gas from Alaska's Prudhoe Bay southeast through the Yukon and Western Canada, then south of the border to the fuel-hungry states.

Although both Canada and the United States recently reaffirmed their intention to lay the multibillion-dollar strand of steel tubing, the project is more than two years behind schedule and still has a nest of regulatory hurdles to overcome.

But that has not kept the pipeline from becoming the focus of some ambitious economic planning — and not a few concerns — for the future of this vast Canadian territory. And, as usual, when it comes to developing and exploiting the Yukon, or most Canadian natural resources, American money is not far away.

At least half the 100,000 fabled goldseekers who scoured the Yukon in the gold rush of the late 1890s were Americans. In fact, one major reason for the Yukon Territory's creation was to protect this isolated corner of Canada from American encroachment.

The Yukon's first road to the south, the Alaska Highway, was built during The Second World War by Americans securing the Alaskan front against the Japanese. The Americans are set to spend $250 million soon to pave 300 miles of Yukon roads just to link up northern Alaska with its distant panhandle. And much of the Yukon's supplies must still move on the White Pass and Yukon Railway through the Alaskan port of Skagway.

As seen from the perspective of politicians, government leaders and businessmen here, the benefits of the 56-inch pipeline across 512 miles of the Yukon include some construction and supply work during its building and about 200 maintenance and monitoring jobs afterward.

Far more important, however, is the subsequent spin-off attraction of people, taxes and hydroelectric and industrial developments, including more mines and processing facilities. This is vital for the financial, and consequently the political, future of the Yukon, which wants to become Canada's 11th province in the next decade.

"We are committed to growth and development," said a spokesman for the Conservative territorial government.

The Yukon has the size (it's 26 times larger than New Jersey). It has the resources (lead, iron ore, zinc, copper, gold, silver, asbestos, coal, cadmium and one of the largest remaining untapped hydroelectric potentials in North America). But it does not have the tax base or the people (23,000 or two-thirds of whom live in the capital city of Whitehorse.

The whole territory, except for 351 square miles in towns, is owned by the federal government in Ottawa, which usually seems much farther than 3,500 miles away. And federal-Indian talks on native land claims, which have resulted in a virtual freeze on land sales, are stalled.

Nonetheless, local officials have begun serious discussions with Kaiser Aluminum over locating a large new smelter here with 1,200 jobs. The company, which is drawn by the local abundance of cheaper hydroelectric power, has already done a preliminary site survey and Yukon officials must now consider what type of tax and other inducements they are prepared to offer.

Next to government payrolls, mineral extraction has been the foundation of the Yukon's economy since the gold rush. The value of production has risen markedly in recent years, soaring from an anemic $12 million in 1966 to more than $228 million last year despite large, lingering stockpiles and depressed world prices in some sectors.

Tourism has become the Yukon's second-largest business, annually attracting more than 300,000 visitors, or 13 times the total number of residents. The government has begun an ambitious promotion and site restoration program, especially in such fabled historical locales as Dawson City.

This month the Yukon will open the $97 million Dempster Highway, a 460-mile dirt road that provides North America's first year-round land link north of the Arctic Circle. In addition to attracting tourists, the Yukon hopes the road will make the territory the jump-off point for the Far North's growing resource explorations. It may also form the right-of-way for another pipeline to tap the Mackenzie Delta's rich reserves.

Such growth potential, ignited by the pipeline's possibility, has already had considerable economic impact. Real estate prices here, once as steady as the long winter night, have soared, with the average price of a house here rising by 27 per cent in the 12 months ending last December to $67,627. Wages too are climbing, at times beyond the ability of some local employers to pay before any of the growth benefits materialize.

"We need no boomers here," said Commissioner Ione Christensen, the federal government's chief representative here, cognizant of the hectic, crowded, high-crime, fast-paced growth that exploded in parts of Alaska during its pipeline construction.

"That is our biggest dilemma," said Christensen, a native of the Yukon, "being how to develop an economy that can support us while simultaneously protecting what we all came here for." And that is some of the most spectacular scenery and cleanest air anywhere, in an isolated, informal setting.

"I hope this pipeline business goes right down its own tube," said Art Smith, a 45-year-old mechanic and fur trapper, who sees nothing but problems and change in "so-called progress."

But economic pressures are beginning to change Yukon life already. Pro-development forces, including newspapers and the Chamber of Commerce, are in control.

"We don't want to be just someone's pretty parkland," said Jim Beebe, editor of The Whitehorse Star.

"But you've got to be careful when you're dealing with these big international companies like Kaiser," warned Iain Mackay, an accountant and Liberal member of the legislature. "At the same time as they bring you some benefits, they can take your shirt off, and we don't want to become the Pittsburgh of the North," he said.

Other Yukon old-timers have noticed some more subtle erosion of the territory's treasured small-town atmosphere as population turnover increases. "We're becoming another stop on the business world's career ladder," notes Beebe. "People don't know each other as well anymore so the import rituals like wearing suits and ties, that were unheard of here before."

"Of course, we're worried about growth," said Chris Pearson, head of the Progressive Conservative Party, "but you realize nothing is for nothing. Each economic development costs us something. The difficulty is balancing it all out."

Oak Bay Prepares 1979 Tax Notices

Oak Bay's budget bylaws were given first reading Monday so notices can be prepared.

The municipal tax levy dropped this year by 3.37 mills to 60.6 mills — equal to a $137.91 reduction in tax on a $75,000 home.

The mill rate for general and debt purposes, which amounted in 1978 to 63.97 mills, does not include the regional district levy or the rate for education which is decided by school trustees and added to the municipal tax bills.

A total $4.37 million will be raised by the 1979 mill rate, an increase of $163,820 owing to assessment changes, and the muncipality will spend $11 million including grants.

In calculating the effect of the new mill rate, treasurer-collector Ian Forster used the example of a home assessed at the full rate of 15 per cent of actual value, or $11,250, which would raise $1,294.99 compared with $1,332.90 in 1978.

The 1979 amount drops to $914.99 taking into account the proposed $380 homeowner grant, or to $714.99 for homeowners over 65.

Tax notices will be mailed after the bylaws receive final reading.

In other business, council was told developers of the former riding academy site on Cedar Hill Cross Road will build the first two phases of a luxury townhouse project, of which all 32 units have been sold.

Orders are being taken on the remaining units that will bring the 9.3-acre project to 64 large apartments, including some two-storey suites.

Prices, yet to be established, are expected to start at more than $100,000.

Aldermen received two petitions from residents concerned about the proposed construction of a restaurant at 2044 Oak Bay on land designated for office and retail space.

Sixty-nine letters describing the proposal were sent by municipal staff to persons living in the area and 13 favorable or supporting phone calls came back. Four persons opposed the project.

The 21 signatories of the first petition, residents of an apartment at 2056 Oak Bay, wanted the land limited to its original zoning and expressed concern that the restaurant with liquor facilities might be open beyond its intended 7 p.m. closing.

Sixteen persons who signed the second petition were residents of adjoining houses on Chaucer where it was feared traffic hazards would increase.

Arts Council Offers Grants

The Community Arts Council of Greater Victoria has some funds available for theatre, music, visual art and dance students who plan to attend a summer school or a post-secondary institution.

The bursaries are designed to help students hoping to continue in-depth study of the arts.

Information and application forms can be had by phoning or visiting the arts council office at 45 Bastion Square, Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. The phone number is 386-1814.

Since receiving its $25,500 per capita grant from the B.C. Cultural Fund, the arts council has given annual awards to many regional arts groups, including the McPherson Playhouse Foundation, $1,500; Victoria Theatre Guild, $1,000; Four Seasons Musical Theatre, $700; Victoria Actors Association, $500; Victoria Choral Society $650; and Greater Victoria Music Festival, $550.

Among others receiving grants were Victoria Handweavers, $400; Juan de Fuca Arts and Crafts, $400; Signal Hill Creative Centre, $250; Victoria Balalaika Orchestra, $350, and the Victoria Musical Art Society, $400.

Doomed Star 'Strangest Heavenly Discovery'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A baffling cosmic discovery — possibly a doomed star in "some terribly weird kind of trouble" — was described Monday as one of the strangest things found in the heavens in years.

He said the evidence appears to reveal an object that's racing along at up to 190 million kilometres an hour — 115 million m.p.h. — apparently in two directions at once so that it seems to be coming and going at the same time. The velocity swings up and down along a regular 160-day cycle.

Margon told a Washington meeting of the American Physical Society that he and a team of UCLA scientists discovered the mystery while studying an inconspicuous star called SS 433, which like our sun and 100 billion other stars is part of the Milky Way galaxy. Too dim to be seen with the naked eye, SS 433 is about 10,000 light-years from earth. A light-year is about 5.9 trillion miles.

Margon said in an interview that a tentative explanation for the strange discovery "is that this is some kind of star that's in some terribly weird kind of trouble."

He said the dying star apparently rotates on a 160-day cycle. As it spins, it's spitting out two great streams of gas, much as a spinning lawn sprinkler shoots water from opposing nozzles.

But that theory, Margon said, "is just the wildest of guesses at the moment ... We really don't know."

Astronomers can determine a star's speed and direction by measuring changes in the wavelengths of its light. Margon said the changes in SS 433 were "larger by a huge factor than anything we've ever seen in a star."

Even more startling, he said, the wavelengths were simultaneously shifted in opposite directions, as if "one chunk of the object is coming toward us at an enormous velocity and another chunk is going away from us at an enormous velocity."

Margon said if his theory is right, the velocity would seem greatest when one gas jet is aimed directly at Earth and the other is going away from us. The slowest speeds would be measured when the jets were shooting off to the sides.

He said the star must have an enormous power supply but there's no telling what it might be, since "stars just don't eject material at such enormous velocities."

Nor do scientists understand why the gas seems to shoot out only in two opposite and roughly equal streams rather than being blown out in all directions, as when a star explodes into a supernova.

United Talks Snap Again

United Press International

With no break expected soon in resumed negotiations, United Airlines has extended cancellation of all scheduled flights through May 5 because of the strike by members of the International Association of Machine and Aerospace Workers.

An airline spokesman said Monday the decision to cancel was made to avoid inconvenience to the traveling public by accepting reservations when operations are uncertain. When a contract settlement is reached, the company will announce a start-up date, he said.

A federal mediator said Monday he didn't expect any break for for a few days in resumed negotiations aimed at ending the 24-day-old machinists' strike against United Airlines.

The negotiations between United, the nation's largest air carrier, and the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers Union had broken off April 4 in Washington, D.C. They resumed Monday in Denver.

Robert Harris of the National Mediation Board said at the start of the renewed talks that he was neither pessimistic nor optimistic about their prospects.

"Obviously I don't have any prediction to make at this point, but I think it'll be a couple of days before we have anything one way or the other," Harris said.

Oil Pipe Hearing Delay Veto

OLYMPIA (AP) — County pleas for more time to study Northern Tier's oil pipeline proposal before engaging in land-use hearings have been turned down by Washington state officials.

Representatives of several Washington counties told the Energy Facility Site Evaluation Council on Monday that the Montana-based consortium had provided insufficient environmental impact information for them to proceed with land use hearings.

Clallam County officials have said the information Northern Tier has supplied is so scanty that it doesn't constitute a legitimate application to the state.

However, the council turned down requests for hearing delays saying postponments could open the door to lawsuits.

Northern Tier has asked the state for authority to construct a superport and pipeline from Port Angeles to Clearbrook, Minn.

Journalists Told To Back Printers

LONDON (Reuter) — The main British journalists' union instructed its members Monday night to honor a printers' union picket line at The Times and not to work on the paper's planned new weekly overseas edition.

The Times has not published its daily and Sunday papers or its several supplements since Nov. 30 because of a dispute over the introduction of new technology which threatened the jobs of many printers.

Earlier Monday, The Times chapter of the National Union of Journalists (NUJ), which has agreed to the new technology, said its members should consider crossing the picket line as a "matter of conscience." Many of them crossed it.

But later, the NUJ's national executive instructed member journalists not to cross the line. The NUJ chapter at The Times, Britain's oldest and best known newspaper, plans to meet today to reconsider the matter.

A Reward For Buried Treasure

WHITE RIVER, South Africa (Reuter) — A 13-year-old black youth who found a large gold nugget in a buried tin can near White River has received a reward of about $6,000, police said today.

The reward is a fraction of the value of the nugget, which weighs almost 2.9 kilograms.

Police, who have not named the youth for his own protection, said most of the reward money will be invested for him.

Wives Are Sacrificed In Bureaucracy Battle

WASHINGTON (WP) — Competition is so tough in the Japanese civil service that the road to bureaucratic job happiness sometimes requires junior G-men to follow the Take-My-Wife, Please! road to success.

Atsuyuki Suzuta, senior editorial writer for the Mianichi Shimbun did a story about The Way of the Bureaucrat for the respected magazine, Japan Echo. It provides fascinating insights into the daily power struggle in the bureaucracy. None is more interesting than the extreme example of the executive who chose overtime as the way to get to the top.

Writing of the upward-bound Japanese bureaucrat, Suzuta says, "... the first thing that he is tested for is his willingness to sacrifice himself (and his family) to the demands of his work. It is often said that the hardest-working bureaucrats are those at the deputy director level ..." who sometimes put in 200 overtime hours monthly.

"During budget season," he continued, "these Budget Bureau deputy directors cannot go home even to take a pregnant wife to the hospital." (If he is that busy, one wonders how she got that way). Anyhow, he continues:

"In fact, one division director lost his wife to the budget wars. He was working every day until after midnight drawing up the budget requirements for a national project when his wife came down with pneumonia. Her illness was not discovered until it was too late."

Like many sad stories, this one does have a happy ending. Or at least 50 per cent of one.

"The bureau director and the vice-minister paid her the highest homages of grief at the funeral. As a true bureaucrat's wife, she had been 'killed in action.' It was a home-front death in the bureaucracy's most important campaign, the battle of the budget."

Uganda Seeks Kenya's Aid

NAIROBI (Reuter) — Officials of the new Ugandan government met Kenyan leaders today for talks considered as vital in the rebuilding of Uganda's economy after eight years of chaotic rule by fugitive dictator Idi Amin.

The two sides met as a Kenyan newspaper, The Standard, reported that the eastern Ugandan towns of Mbale and Soroti were "liberated" Monday by units moving ahead of the army of President Yusufu Lule's new government. The troops are concentrating on trying to reopen the essential land link to Kenya, farther south.

"We have an enormous task to reconstruct our country after eight years of misrule and destruction to life and property," Ugandan Foreign Minister Otema Alimadi said at the start of today's talks.

"We cannot do this in isolation. We definitely need the goodwill of friendly countries like Kenya."

Alimadi said the new administration in Kampala attaches great importance to road, rail and probably air transport links between his country and Kenya.

"Kenya is ready to co-operate in every way possible with the Ugandan government and is ready to give every assistance for the reconstruction of the sister country of Uganda," Kenyan Foreign Minister Munuya Waiyaki said.

He said it is not always realized that Kenya had been a victim of the Amin regime.

"For instance, many Kenyans lost their lives at the hands of the murderers of the fallen regime," he said. "Millions of shillings worth of property was lost or destroyed during the period of misrule by Amin. Details of these losses were given to that regime but were ignored."

Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania shared basic services, including transportation, as members of the East African Community until it broke up about three years ago.

Tanzanian-Ugandan soldiers who took the town of Jinja on Sunday were pushing toward the Kenyan border and landlocked Uganda's lifeline to the sea.

The Standard said Mbale and Soroti and other areas of eastern Uganda were "liberated" by units of the Save Uganda Movement with the knowledge and blessing of Lule's government in Kampala.

Meanwhile, as the Tanzanian-Ugandan army pushed on toward the Kenyan border, other columns are moving into other parts of Uganda not yet under the new government's control.

Nine Decades of White Rule Ended

Rhodesia Nod To Muzorewa

SALISBURY (AP) — Bishop Abel Muzorewa was elected the first black prime minister of Rhodesia today as his party easily swept 51 out of 72 black seats in parliamentary elections.

The United African National Council, led by the dimunitive, 54-year-old Methodist bishop, captured more than four times as many parliamentary seats as any of his black opponents.

Muzorewa will form the first black-majority government in Rhodesia after nine decades of exclusive rule by the white minority.

With final results in, the 51 seats of Muzorewa's party were followed by 12 seats for Rev. Ndabaingi Sithole's Zimbabwe African National Union and nine seats for Chief Kayisa Ndiweni's United National Federal Party, which champions the minority Ndebele tribe.

The uneasy alliance of the three moderate black leaders collapsed under the pressure of election reverses. Sithole, trailing badly, charged "gross irregularities" and demanded an investigation.

The other 28 seats in parliament were won by Smith's Rhodesian Front Party in an election two weeks ago. The 28 seats and a quarter of cabinet posts are reserved for the white minority under a constitution that also leaves the whites in control of the police, military, judiciary and civil service for at least five years.

Smith, prime minister for the last 15 years, will take a parliamentary seat as leader of the white minority.

Sithole on Monday declared that the five-day election last week expressed the "will of two million people." But a few hours later, after first unofficial returns put his party in third place in both Salisbury and the second largest city of Bulawayo, Sithole accused the Internal Affairs Ministry of "stage-managing" the voting. He said his party will not consider the results "the verdict of the people" until his charges are investigated.

He said he had reports "from black and white farmers, black teachers and civil servants" that the department "instructed people what party to vote for at polling booths."

"The elections are over and that's it," said Chirau.

Sithole's charge was certain to be seized on by guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe. Vowing to continue their seven-year-old war, they boycotted the election and contended that the new constitution is a sham that gives the blacks the trappings of powers but preserves white control.

Last Grit Gov't Out

Times News Services

CHARLOTTETOWN — The Progressive Conservative party will officially take over the reins of power from the only provincial Liberal government in the country within the next three weeks, premier-elect Angus MacLean said Monday night.

MacLean's Conservatives, out of office for the last 13 years, Monday scored a solid victory over the Liberals led by Bennett Campbell.

Meanwhile, Conservative Leader Joe Clark has seven provincial colleagues — all but Social Credit in British Columbia, New Democrats in Saskatchewan and Parti Quebecois in Quebec.

The defeat also follows federal byelections last October in which Liberals won only two of 15 contests and comes just before a May 10 British Columbia election in which the Liberals are not a potent force.

When he forms the new government here MacLean will join the ranks of sister administrations in Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

The 64-year-old blueberry farmer had stumped across P.E.I. with his youthful campaign aides who said that in MacLean they had a leader who respected the province's lifestyle and social traditions.

Final standings:

	1979	1978
PC	21	15
Lib	11	17
Total	32	32

MacLean's victory over Campbell, 35, was apparently a victory for those who believe the province can prosper if it clings to the land and the sea as the source of its wealth.

The most responsive chord MacLean struck with the electorate, 85 per cent of whom trekked to the polls Monday, apparently came when he slammed the government for what he said

AIR CANADA'S FLYING HIGH

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada will pay the federal government a dividend of more than $40 per share, or $13.2 million, as a result of 1978 operations.

Despite rising fuel costs, a 10-day strike and the sagging dollar, Air Canada showed a $47.5 million after-tax profit for 1978, its biggest ever, the airline announced today.

The airline has 329,009 equity shares, all owned by the government.

The airline's previous best profit year was 1977, when it made $20 million, and president Claude Taylor predicted a $60 million profit this year.

Profit before taxes was a record $84.1 million, but the airline estimates it lost more than $48 million in pre-tax earnings during a 10-day strike last August by its 7,500 ground-service employees.

If Tories Win by 10 Seats Trudeau Will Keep Power

Times News Services

Prime Minister Trudeau says he would try to form a minority government even if the Conservatives win a "few" more Commons seats in the May 22 election than the Liberals.

And Tory leader Joe Clark has finally decided to enter into a TV debate with the other major party leaders.

(Other federal election stories on pages 8 and 9).

But the PM ruled out attempting to run a minority government if the Tories emerge from the election with a margin of more than a "few" seats — five to 10 — though less than a majority in the 284-seat Commons.

Commenting on his likely post-election strategy should the Tories win a razor-thin plurality, Trudeau said: "I'd put it to the Commons and see what (NDP) leader Ed) Broadbent would do.

Trudeau's remarks were the first time he has speculated about his options if the Tories beat the Liberals in the number of ridings won on election day.

Reacting to Trudeau's statement, Broadbent in St. John's again refused to indicate how his party will deal with a minority Liberal or Conservative government.

Broadbent said Trudeau's comment was "typically arrogant." Minority government is not on the federal election ballot, he said.

In Grand Fall, N.B., Joe Clark said today that Trudeau is "playing games with democracy" with suggestions that he will try to con-

Patients Evacuated

Times News Services

The Manitoba government will begin evacuations today of hospitals and senior citizens' homes in the Red River Valley.

Premier Sterling Lyon made the announcement at a morning news conference before boarding a helicopter to dicuss the possibility of further evacuations with municipal officials at Morris, 50 km south of Winnipeg.

"The levels of the 1950 flood are now being predicted," said the premier, referring to the disastrous Red River flood that year. He cited forecasts based on 18-hour-old rainfall data.

"When last night's precipitation is factored in it will now be exceeded," he said.

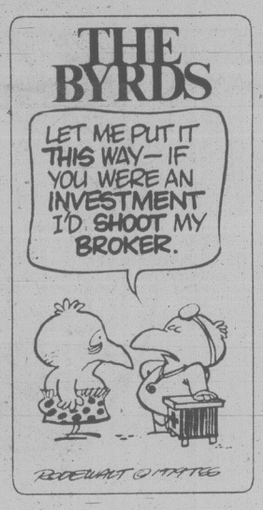
While stopping short of ordering a full-scale evacuation, the premier said he would advise all residents of the area to make their own plans to leave.

Lyon also expressed concern for stored grain in bins and advised farmers to keep track of their losses so that they can be partly compensated later.

If a mass evacuation becomes necessary, "It would have to be an armed forces show," said acting Government Services Minister Harry Enns.

On other flood fronts, about 350 residents of Carman 80 kilometers southwest of Winnipeg have abandoned their homes in the face of Boyne River floodwaters that spilled over dikes.

Flood peaks forecast for Grand Forks, N.D., 200 kilometers south of Winnipeg are around 15 meters above the winter low — and more than a meter higher than the 1950 flood whose effects were so severe it has served as a benchmark of devastation ever since.



Grits Skip City

The provincial Liberal party today announced it does not plan to run candidates in any Victoria area riding.

Doug Denholm, campaign organizer for party leader Jev Tothill, said the Liberals will concentrate on four Lower Mainland ridings.

"We are not encouraging our members to nominate candidates in any other ridings."

Deadline for nominations is noon Thursday.

In the Victoria area in 1975, the strongest Liberal campaign was run by former party leader David Anderson who polled 6,677 votes in the two-member riding of Victoria. His running mate Terry O'Grady received only 3,102 votes.

Bennett Agrees On Hydro

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett said Monday he agrees with a legislative committee which suggests B.C. Hydro should be broken up into several smaller companies because it is inefficient in its present size.

The premier said Crown corporations like Hydro must be accountable to the people and should not be protected by government.

The legislative committee said in a report released Monday that Hydro had planned poorly in building three major dams in B.C. It said the province's financial credibility would be damaged if other dams on the Columbia River were built in the same fashion.

The $550 million Revelstoke dam now is under construction on the Columbia River in eastern B.C. and is expected to begin producing power in 1983.

The committee said that in building the Duncan, Arrow and Mica Dams, Hydro miscalculated financing before putting out the projects to tender and that excessive costs showed management was not able to control costs.

It also said the Crown corporation had broken the law on at least two occasions by not putting jobs out for public tender.

"I'm not surprised that a committee looking into this would arrive at the same

U.S. Oil Firms Report Whopping Profit Jumps

NEW YORK (AP) — Major U.S. oil companies — led by Exxon Corp's $955 million — have begun reporting sharp profit increases for the first three months of the year.

Several other large oil companies plan to release first-quarter earnings this week and experts expect similarly rosy reports.

Exxon and Standard Oil of Indiana, which reported first-quarter earnings of $349.1 million, both said Monday they gained from tight supplies of oil and gasoline — a problem precipitated by the revolution last winter in Iran.

Exxon's first-quarter profits rose 37.4 per cent to $955 million, which translates to $2.16 a share over its 1978 results of $695 million, or $1.55 a share. Sales rose to $18.7 billion from $15.2 billion in 1978's first quarter.

The profits are the highest ever in a quarter for Exxon, the second-largest industrial firm in the United States. The previous record of $862 million was set in the fourth quarter of 1974, at the height of the energy crisis caused by the Arab oil embargo.

Standard of Indiana announced Monday that its $349.1 million in earnings translated to $2.39 a share in the first quarter, a 27.6 per cent increase from $273.5 million, or $1.87 a share, a year ago. Sales for the Chicago-based firm, best known for Amoco gasoline, were $4.4 billion, up from $3.8 billion.

President Carter plans to lift controls on the price of domestic crude oil but he also wants to tax what he calls the "windfall profits" that the oil companies would reap as a result of decontrol.

Exxon and Standard of Indiana also gained from increases in the price of oil and gas during the current supply squeeze, particularly in Europe, where tight supplies drove prices of gasoline and other consumer products up sharply.

Carter said Monday opponents of his proposal to divert additional oil profits to new energy-related programs are trying to pull off a "charade" that will create $4 billion to $5 billion in more oil profits.

340 Facing Riot Charges

LONDON (UPI) — Police charged 340 demonstrators with public disorder offences today over six hours of bloody clashes at an extremist election rally in suburban west London Monday night in which one civilian died and more than 20 policemen were injured.

Three policemen were still hospitalized today with more serious injuries suffered in the running street battles in the Southall district with about 5,000 left-wing demonstrators protesting at an election rally by the right-wing National Front party.

Two policemen were stabbed in the Southall trouble and others suffered broken bones and eye injuries, police said.

The dead man was identified by police as Blair Peach, a New Zealand school teacher aged in his 20s or 30s. He staggered into a house with blood streaming from his head and collapsed. Peach died in hospital four hours later, police said.

A police spokesman said it was the worst rioting since demonstrators fought bloody battles with police and National Front members in the London district of Lewisham — another suburb heavily populated with Asian immigrants — two years ago.

"All 340 persons arrested have been charged with a variety of offenses including assault and causing public disorder and will appear in court within about two weeks," a police spokesman said.

Trouble flared because the National Front, a vocal minority which has no members of Parliament but which advocates compulsory repatriation of immigrants among its extremist policies, were holding a rally in the local town hall. Southall, where almost half the population is Asian, has one of the highest concentration of immigrants in Britain.

Fighting erupted when some of the demonstrators threw paint and stones at police surrounding the building. Attempts to smash past police lines were repulsed by scores of mounted officers.

A promise? A blather? A handshake?

Whatever, it would be appropriate to use the term in relation to the political aspirations concentrated in a modest-sized professional building at 1020 McKenzie.

Occupying campaign offices on the ground floor are NDP candidates John Mika (provincial election, Saanich-The Islands) and Bob Cameron (federal election, Esquimalt-Saanich) while Cameron's Conservative opponent, incumbent Don Munro, has his office on an upper floor of the same building.

But Cameron would probably deny any suggestion that Munroe is closer to heaven, and reply sagely that he who is higher has further to fall.

Some Discords But Festival in Tune

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

There was, to quote Victoria Music Festival executive secretary Ada English, a certain degree of confusion about day one for the festival's voluntary office staff.

But few people would have guessed it as Monday, for the 29th successive year, the festival slipped promptly and smoothly into its accustomed complex rhythm.

Halls were fully staffed and problems that rose were quickly resolved.

One major problem had emerged a week ago when it became known that the University of Alberta's Isobel Rolston, one of two piano adjudicators, was ill and would not be able to fulfil her engagement.

Fortunatey Dr. Lyell Gustin, an examiner for the Royal Conservatory of Music and former chairman of the music committee of the Saskatchewan Arts Board, was free to replace her.

Throughout the day, dozens of pianists from Grades 1 to 10 presented themselves to adjudicators Mossie Hancock of Saskatchewan and Dr. Gustin for sight reading classes. Entry in a sight reading class of the appropriate grade is mandatory to qualify for a prize or bursary award.

Piano sessions are taking place in First United Church Sanctuary and Fellowship Hall on Balmoral.

The extremely resonant St.Andrew's Kirk Hall on Courtenay is the setting for vocal classes. Winnipeg's Frances Wickberg heard junior singers during the day and was delighted with "so many promising voices" and the excellent training she perceived.

Monday evening one of the major classes — lieder, any voice — produced 11 pairs of performers. Singer and pianist are a duo in lieder singing, the pianist also receiving adjudication. It was disappointing that Gustin's adjudications of the pianists was somewhat aloof and pedantic.

This class as a whole was a revelation of the advances that have come about in the vocal work in this city. Quality throughout was superior and so was the teaching and coaching these singers are receiving.

Sessions followed the same plan at First United and St.Andrew's through today and the balance of the week.

Speech arts with adjudicator Walter H. Kaasa occupy St. Matthias Hall on Richardson at Richmond. Studio dance classes began at Oak Bay Junior Secondary and will continue through the end of the week. The adjudicator is Hilary Cartwright, ballet mistress of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet and a former principal dancer with the Royal Ballet in London.

Tonight's major attraction will be the folk dance honors performance, traditionally a colorful and pulse-stirring event which takes place at Central Junior Secondary starting at 7:30.

SC Threat Of Harm Confirmed

Duncan Mayor Ken Paskin has confirmed reports a prominent Socred party member threatened him with physical harm if he ran for the Conservatives in the May 10 provincial election in Cowichan-Malahat.

Paskin, who declared his candidacy Monday, said the man approached him a couple of weeks ago in the Duncan Legion beer parlor and warned him in front of witnesses that if he ran in the election he'd take a baseball bat to him.

Paskin said he was so flabbergasted he asked the man to repeat the threat so two other persons sitting at the same table could hear it. He did and then walked away.

Paskin said the man came into his fish-and-chips store two or three times earlier and said if he ran, his business would be ruined, he'd be finished politically and would be run out of town.

He also said he received a phone threat along the same lines but the caller wouldn't give his name.

Rumors of the threats had been circulating through the riding for several weeks.

The man who allegedly made the threat was contacted by the Times but would neither confirm nor deny making the statements.

"Any comments made over the past six months were made in the spirit of friendship and jest," he said.

"Frankly, I'm surprised Mayor Paskin has taken them in that light. It's not in my vernacular to say things like that."

Paskin said he originally hadn't planned to run but after the threats changed his mind.

"I'm not easily intimidated," said Paskin, who tips the scales at 250 pounds. "I've never been threatened before in my life."

He said he'd helped the Socreds in the last provincial election but altered his allegiance this time because of his long-standing friendship with Vic Stephens, Conservative party leader.

"Ninety-nine per cent of the Socreds in this riding are okay," he said, "but the other few are very dangerous people. I wouldn't want power to get into their hands."

"There's a small circle of people, I call them the Socred mafia, who are so righteous and so dangerous that I find it really frightening to our whole system of freedom.

That Hot Air Isn't Political

Vancouver Island's climate has suddenly grown a lot warmer and it has nothing to do with the hot air generated in the B.C. and federal election campaigns.

Monday's high temperature of 21 degrees at Victoria international airport was two degrees higher than the previous record for April 23 set in 1977, and also the warmest of the year.

At the Gonzales weather station it was considerably cooler — a high of 17 — and no record.

"Records there go back so much further (to 1914, compared with 1941 at the airport) it would have to be a pretty warm day to set any new mark," explained weatherman Norm Dressler.

Nanaimo and Port Alberni both tied their previous date record at 21 degrees while Tofino at 18 was a balmy four degrees above its previous high.

The good news is that there's more to come, thanks to a high-pressure system sitting over the eastern Pacific which is deflecting storms over Alaska and the North West Territories.

Dressler says for the next couple of days temperatures should be in the high range of 18 to 21, dropping to 2 to 4 overnight.

Pre-Parade Added To Victoria Day

There will be a 45-minute pre-parade as an added attraction to the May 21 Victoria Day pageant, the Greater Victoria Festival Society said today.

About 24 vintage cars, several square dance teams, a motorcycle club and upwards of 200 joggers will entertain the early arrivals.

"We are concerned about the long wait for those who come early, especially the children," parade chairman Julian North said.

"It can be uncomfortable sitting on cold pavement with nothing to do. We hope to keep them entertained with the pre-parade."

The main parade, one of the longest in North America, begins at 9 a.m. and runs to 11:30 a.m.

The pre-parade activities will begin shortly after 8 a.m.

Having the Victoria Square Dancers perform in the pre-parade solves two problems, North said.

Besides entertaining the early birds, it lets the dancers show their routines without slowing down the floats and marching bands.

"We think the parade will go more smoothly this year than on previous occasions because of this. There should be very few hold-ups."

In the main parade there will be 30 American bands along with local commercial floats. The organizing committee is looking for more local entries to balance the list.

Entries can be made by phoning 382-3111 by Friday.

Parade marshal will be John King of the BPO Elks Lodge.

Parade theme is Good Times 79.

This will be the first parade organized by the Greater Victoria Festival Society, successor to the Victorian Festival Society.

"Everything is going smoothly, much better than we expected," North said.

The vintage cars will be part of the Tartan Invitational Tour that will be here for a convention.

The joggers are local people in a federal Partisipaction event.

Parade marchers can be anyone from school age up. An attempt to have the age limit raised has been abandoned due to protests by parents.

It was the second break-in at the restaurant in the past month.

Cultural Funding Process Criticized

While Greater Victoria residents are satisfied with the artistic and cultural activities available to them, the people that provide those services are unhappy with the funding processes now in existence, according to a federal government study.

The survey, undertaken by the Secretary of State, reveals that over-all, Victorians are pleased with what's available.

But widespread disatisfaction was found when researchers began interviewing the individuals "who through their jobs, financial support or voluntary service had a prime moving force on the cultural life of Victoria," states the report.

"One thing seems clear, and that is that the arts and cultural organizations feel that today's funding structures are ineffective and do not promote artistic growth."

The report said that many individuals were critical of the present funding set-up because "nearly all the arts organizations and the three governments, which provide funds, operate on an ad hoc basis with very little, if any, medium to long-range planning . . . generally everyone reported that daily concerns with lack of funding on any committed long-term basis made planning beyond the next season an impossibility . . .

"The major complaint was that the greatly diversified claims by innumerable organizations and individuals on essentially bureaucratic bodies for a slice of the dwindling pie was inefficient and often resulted in unfair proportioning of the available funds."

The survey, which was undertaken last summer, said that many of the key people involved in the cultural-arts scene feel that government money that supports the arts should be channelled to the various groups through centralized clearing houses with major co-ordinating centres at the regional level.

"This kind of organization would eliminate much of the confusion and misspending which seems to characterize the ad hoc approach of all three government levels today," says the report. "This structure would also improve the accountability of how the tax payers' money was being spent."

On the other hand, adds the report, "in all fairness it seemed to us that what they were suggesting was simply an alternative bureaucracy to replace that which existed. The major difference, of course, is that people more directly involved in the cultural life of Canada would have the final say about where the money should be spent."

But while the organizers have been struggling with funding, Victoria residents have been enjoying the services provided.

The reports states that residents are "satisfied with both the quantity and quality available to them" in the artistic/cultural fields.

The study also states that Victorians are active in providing their own entertainment. For instance, 63 per centof all the age groups surveyed were involved in some form of sporting activity, while 46 per cent were into crafts, 24 per cent played musical instruments, 17 per cent danced, 13 per cent painted and 12 per cent wrote. (That totals more than 100 per cent because many people were involved in more than one activity.)

The survey was based on interviews with 1,000 people.

City Rally Driver Narrowly Beaten

McDonald, of 757 Newbury, finished second in the national Young Drivers of Canada car rally held in 23 cities across the country.

A scant six seconds beat him out of the top prize, a 1979 Honda Hatchback, which went to Liz Cocuzzo, 24, of Kitchener, Ont.

Victoria YDC centre director Harris Bredavs said today the two had exactly the same points following an hour-long road rally.

They were neck-and-neck in most of the skill test trials, until the slalom event. Cocuzzo covered the course in 38 seconds. McDonald took 44 seconds.

Brevas said McDonald, driving a 1966 VW with 135,000 miles on it, was one of 20 drivers who competed in Victoria.

The rally here was sponsored by the Victoria Motor Sports Club.

Second Site Sought

The Greater Victoria School Board decided Monday night to look at a second site for the school district's administrative offices.

By a 5-4 vote, trustees approved a motion calling for an investigation into using the Tolmie School site as an alternative to the Cecelia Road warehouse which trustees had earlier considered an ideal location.

They agreed to spend $3,200 on a feasibility study.

Trustee Winfield Mott argued it may be cheaper in the long run to convert Tolmie School into office space.

The administration offices are now located in the Paul Building on Camosun College campus off Henderson Road but the college needs room to expand.

Trustee Martin Levin noted the cost of relocating to Cecelia Road has been pegged at $1.2 million and said the board has a responsibility to explore other sites to see if the move can be made for less.

Trustee John Young said the savings could run into tens of thousands of dollars.

"We'll never know how good a bargain Cecelia Road is until we have some other place to compare it to," he said.

But trustees Susan Brice, Mark Fisher, Peter Yorke and Glyn Williams said the administration had examined a number of sites and felt Cecelia Road was best.

"It's a horrible motion," Yorke said.

In other business, the board deferred for two weeks a motion by by Mott asking that Campus View School be chosen for a French immersion course. Similar programs are already offered at Willows and Cloverdale elementary schools.

Several trustees said they could not make a decision because they didn't have enough evidence to warrant starting up a third immersion course in the district.

Fisher was so incensed by Mott's motion and the lack of information tendered in support that he exploded: "If this goes through, then my participation on the board with respect to planning is finished. You can take it and shove it."

Mott, however, said it is vital for the board to make a decision soon as registration for kindergarten classes begins the end of the month and parents should be aware of the options open to them.

He suggested registration should be postponed until the board has had a chance to examine the need for a third immersion class, but trustees voted him down.

Registration will begin as scheduled on April 30.

Kmart

In 1929 the first Kresge store was established in Canada, bringing Canadians the finest of dime stores. Kresge stood by their promise of quality, value and service and by the end of the year, 19 stores were in operation.

In 1963 the first K mart discount department store was opened as an extension of the Kresge Company Ltd. Today there are Kresge and K mart stores across Canada. After 50 years you can still depend on our traditional pledge of quality, value and service... and we think that's worth celebrating!
